2814a. Agent receiving proceeds of sale of goods for credit of foreign Government.]—In 1917 pltfs., under licence from the Russian Imperial Govt. exported timber to this country, &, in accordance with the conditions of the licence, paid the purchase-money received by them for the timber to deft. bankers for the credit of the Russian Govt. They then became entitled to receive from the Govt. in Russia an equivalent amount in roubles at a fixed rate of exchange. In Mar. 1917, the Imperial Govt. was overthrown by a revolution, & was succeeded by a Provisional Govt., which in its turn, was, on Nov. 7, 1917, displaced by the Bolshevists, who, on Dec. 13, forcibly dissolved the Constituent Assembly & established a Soviet Republic. Pltfs. having received no roubles in Russia, brought actions against the bankers to recover two sums of money, one of which was paid to them by pltfs. in the second action before Nov. 7, & the other by pltfs. in the first action on Nov. 9, at which date they did not know of the Bolshevist revolution. Pltfs. in both actions alleged that the bankers & the Russian Govt. were merely trustees for them, & the money having been paid under a contract, the consideration for which had entirely failed, they were entitled to recover. Pltfs. in the first action further contended that they had paid the money under a mistake of fact, & on that ground also they were entitled to recover it: —Held: (1) this money had been paid to the bank as agents for the Russian Govt., & the ct. would not order payment of it in the absence of that Govt. or its representatives; (2) the bank were entitled to keep the money in their hands, but must undertake not to part with it without notice to pltfs. & an order of the ct.—STEAM SAW MILLS CO. v. BARING BROTHERS & CO., ARCHANGEL SAW MILLS CO. v. BARING BROTHERS & CO., [1922] 1 Ch. 244; 91 L. consigned by the manufacturers, under bills of lading with draft attached, to the deft. co. By the terms of said agreement deft. co. covenanted not to sell, mtge., etc., the cars without first having paid in cash the unpaid balance of the purchase-price, & to hold the cars in trust for pltf. until their price had been paid in full, & by the latter clause deft. co. also expressly admitted that until such amount was paid it had no right or title in the cars. The agreement was signed for deft. co. by deft., M., its president ; & through him deft. co. sold the cars without having made the payments called for by the agreement. syndicate's obligation to take up the 150,000 shares. By a sub-underwriting letter applt. agreed with the syndicate to subscribe 10,000 of the 150,000 shares underwritten by them & stated: "We now hand you application for the shares hereby underwritten by us together with cheque for £1,256, being deposit of 2*s*. 6*d*. per share." The letter also provided that applt. was only to be allotted & pay for so many of the 10,000 shares as should be his due proportion of the shares not taken up by the public, & that he was to receive a commission on the shares sub-underwritten by him. The letter also contained this clause: "This contract & our said application shall, notwithstanding any withdrawal on our part &/or any repudiation of our responsibility hereunder, or under the said application form, be sufficient to authorise & empower the directors to allot to us the above-mentioned shares & enter our name in the register of members in respect thereof." Applt. did not in fact sign or hand to the syndicate any written application to the co. for the 10,000 shares as contemplated by the sub-underwriting letter, but he handed to the syndicate the letter together with his cheque for £1,250 in their favour. On the issue of the prospectus only 55,000 shares were applied for by the public. On Dec. 12 the syndicate verbally applied in their own name & in the names of several sub-underwriters including applt. for an allotment of the total amount of the shares which they were bound to take up & paid with their own cheque for the total amount of the application money. On the same day the co. allotted to applt. 6,334, being his proportion of the 10,000 shares under his sub-underwriting letter. On Dec. 22, applt. wrote to the co. withdrawing his application for shares, meaning his sub-underwriting letter, but on Dec. 29 the co. sent him the usual formal notice of the allotment to him of 6,334 shares. 29b. —— —— ——.]—In Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9), s. 16 (1), which specifies the various kinds of question, difference, or claim to be determined by arbn. under the Act, the words "arising out of the termination of the tenancy of the holding" apply to a question, difference, or claim of any of the kinds previously mentioned in the sub-sect., &, consequently, no question, difference, or claim of any of these kinds can arise for determination by arbn. under the Act until after the termination of the tenancy.

The landlord of an agricultural holding gave to the tenant a notice to quit on a certain day. The landlord alleged that before that day the notice to quit was withdrawn by mutual consent. The tenant denied that he ever consented to a withdrawal of the notice to quit, & continued to occupy the holding after that day. Subsequently, on the application of the tenant the Minister of Agriculture & Fisheries appointed an arbitrator to determine in accordance with Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923, the following claims, questions, or differences between the parties—namely, (a) whether the tenancy had been determined by the notice to quit; (b) whether the tenant was entitled to compensation for disturbance, &, if so, the amount thereof; & (c) the amount of the compensation to the tenant for improvements & certain other matters:—Held: questions such as these were not questions which under sect. 16 (1) of the Act should be determined by arbn. in accordance with the Act, unless were questions "arising out of the termination of the tenancy"; that inasmuch as it did not appear that the tenancy had been terminated by the notice to quit or otherwise, these questions could not be said to arise out of the termination of the tenancy, & consequently that the arbitrator should be prohibited from proceeding with the arbn.—R. v. POWELL, Ex p. CAMDEN (MARQUIS), [1925] 1 K. one for part of farm.]—On May 20, 1912, T. let a farm to C. from year to year from Oct. 11, 1911, at an annual rent of £150. On Dec. 23, 1914, T. conveyed about half the farm to pltfs., subject to & with the benefit of the tenancy agreement. T. died on Jan. 4, 1919, & C. continued to pay the whole rent to her exors., as he had since the conveyance paid it to T. After Oct. 11, 1922, the rent fell into arrear. By a notice to quit dated Oct. 10, 1923, the agents of T.'s exors. & the agent of pltfs. jointly gave C. notice to quit the whole holding on Oct. 11, 1924. By an agreement dated Oct. 1, 1924, T.'s exors. agreed to sell their part of the farm to C., & it was conveyed to him on Apr. 17, 1925. C. refused to give up possession to pltfs. of their part of the holding, contending that under sect. 26 of the above Act the contract by T.'s exors. to sell to him rendered the notice to quit null & void. Pltfs. brought an action for a declaration that the notice to quit was effective, & to recover possession of their land:—Held: as the contract to sell a part was not made by the persons who gave notice to quit the entire holding, but only by some of them, sect. 26 of the above Act did not apply; the tenancy had been duly determined as regards pltfs.' land, & pltfs. were entitled to the declaration which they asked & to an order for possession of their land.—ROCHESTER & CHATHAM JOINT SEWERAGE BOARD v. CLINCH, [1925] Ch. 753; 95 L. 30f. —— To what holdings applicable—Holding let for horse breeding.]—A holding let for the breeding of pedigree horses is not necessarily an agricultural holding within Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9).

A lessor sold to pltf. the freehold of certain property subject to a lease to deft. The lease described the property as the P. stud farm; it contained covenants to repair, varnish, & distemper paddock boxes, stables, & coach-house, to graze down turf by stocking & moving, & not to use the premises otherwise than as a stud farm: & the schedule contained a description of the stud farm. The tenancy was due to expire by effluxion of time shortly after the sale to pltf., but deft. refused to give vacant possession, alleging that the lease created an "agricultural holding" within Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9), & that the holding had not been terminated by twelve months' notice, as required by sect. 23 of that Act. Upon a summons by pltf. for a declaration that the lease did not create a holding within the meaning of that Act, & that no notice was required for the termination of deft.'s tenancy:—Held: the main purpose of the letting was the breeding of race-horses, &, although there were in most of the fields plots of grass or portions of pasture land, the holding was not "wholly pastoral," & therefore Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9), s. 23, did not apply.—Re JOEL'S LEASE, BERWICK v. BAIRD, [1930] 2 Ch. 359; 99 L. 30g. —— Sale of holding—Agreement that notice to quit shall be valid—Form.]—The agreement of a tenant from year to year of a holding, by writing, that a notice to quit shall be valid, within sect. 26 (1) of 1923 Act need not be in the express words of the sub-sect. Where the landlords of such a holding gave the tenant notice to quit stating that they contemplated selling the property, a reply by the tenant acknowledging the receipt of the notice to quit & continuing: "We are sorry to leave & will give you possession of the farm & buildings" on the dates mentioned in the notice to quit, was held an agreement, by writing, that the notice to quit should be valid within the sub-sect.—RIGBY v. WAUGH'S EXORS. 56a. —— —— Grass land laid down by tenant.]—By a tenancy agreement made in 1894 the trustees of an estate, of which pltf. was the present tenant for life in possession, agreed to let to deft. certain farm lands & house buildings comprising 138 acres more or less, as described in a schedule attached to the agreement, on a yearly tenancy, at the rent of £48. The tenant covenanted to manage & cultivate the land in a husbandlike manner, & that he would not plough or otherwise break up "any grass land" without the consent of the landlord. In the schedule to the agreement the premises were described as consisting of 130 acres 1 r. 31 p. of arable & 8 acres of grass land. In 1898 the tenant laid down 40 acres more to permanent grass. On notice being given to him to determine the tenancy on Sept. 29, 1919, he claimed the right to plough up this 40 acres of permanent grass which had been arable at the commencement of his tenancy. In an action by pltf. to restrain him from so doing in breach of his covenants an interim order was made granting the injunction on the usual undertaking as to damages. Deft. counterclaimed for damages by reason of the interim order:—Held: (1) on the true construction of the agreement, the covenant not to plough up any grass land was not restricted to the 8 acres of grass at the date of the demise but

In ejectment for a forfeiture:—Held: (1) the work thus to be performed meant any work for which teams are generally used, & therefore included drawing coals to B Palace; (2) the tenant was not bound to supply a car or other vehicle for the purpose of the work.—MARLBOROUGH (DUKE) v. OSBORN (1864), 5 B. & S. 67; 3 New Rep. 568; 33 L. 173a. Right of vendor to reimbursement from purchaser.]—By an agreement for the sale of real estate it was provided that if from any cause whatever other than wilful default on the part of the vendors the purchase was not completed on Jan. 2, 1899, the purchase-money should bear interest at 5 per cent. A dispute arose about the wording of the conveyance, & the purchase was not completed on the day fixed; the purchaser brought an action for specific performance, & the judge held that the vendors had been wrong in the dispute & gave judgment for specific performance with costs. After the commencement of the action one of the farms agreed to be sold fell vacant. The vendors did not let it, but occupied it themselves, paid the valuation of the outgoing tenant, & farmed the land:—Held: under the account of rents & profits directed by the order for specific performance, which was not on the footing of wilful default, the vendors were entitled to be allowed what they had paid for the valuation & the expenses of realising the crops, but not for the losses incurred in farming.—BENNETT v. STONE, [1902] 1 Ch. 226; 71 L. 229a. Incoming tenant agreeing to repay compensation paid by landlord—Action by landlord on agreement—When cause of action arises.]—By an agreement dated Dec. 24, 1915, made under seal, pltfs. let to deft. a small-holding from year to year from Feb. 2, 1916, at a rent of £132 10*s.* a year payable by half-yearly payments on Feb. 2, & Aug. 2, each year. The tenant agreed "to pay on entry any allowance or compensation which may be due from the council to the outgoing tenant in respect of feeding stuffs or manures or any improvements mentioned in A. H. Act, 1908, Sched. 1, Part III." Deft. entered into occupation of the small-holding on Feb. 2, 1916. At that date the amount of the compensation payable to the outgoing tenant had not been fixed, & it was not until Feb. 11, 1918, that the amount of compensation was agreed to. It was then agreed that the council should pay the outgoing tenant £30 17*s.* 6*d.*, & that sum was paid by the council to the outgoing tenant on Mar. 17, 1921. On Jan. 13, 1923, pltf. council brought an action in the county ct. claiming to recover from deft. the sum of £30 17*s.* 6*d.* under the agreement of Dec. 24, 1915. Deft. pleaded that pltfs.' cause of action had arisen on Feb. 2, 1916, the date of his entry on the holding, & that therefore the claim was barred by Stat. Limitations, s. 3, because the action was not brought "within six years next after the cause of such action or suit" :—Held : pltfs.' cause of action against deft. did not arise on Feb. 2, 1916, when deft. entered on the holding but only on Feb. 11, 1918, when the amount of the compensation was ascertained by agreement; therefore the time only began to run from Feb. 11, 1918, & the action was not barred.—CHESHIRE COUNTY COUNCIL v. HOPLEY (1923), 130 L. 229 i. Purchaser.]—An estate was sold with entry to the purchaser at Martinmas 1922, & on the same date an existing lease of the lands terminated, & the tenant gave up possession. Less than two months later, he intimated a claim for compensation for improvements to the purchaser, & applied to the Board of Agriculture, who appointed an arbiter : —Held : the "landlord" liable to make payment of compensation to the tenant was the selling owner, in respect that he alone was the "landlord" at the termination of the tenancy when the tenant quitted the holding & the claim for compensation emerged, & the obligation so incurred did not transmit to the purchaser, & interdict against the arbn. proceedings granted. —WADDELL v. HOWAT, [1925] S. tenant farmer, who held a farm by successive tenancies beginning in 1912, in 1918 & in 1925 under different landlords, in each case with an undertaking by him not to convert any part of the farm, which in 1912 was all permanent pasture, into tillage, was in 1917 required to plough up two of his fields under reg. 2 (m) of the Defence of the Realm Regulations. These two arable fields were in 1919 laid down by the tenant as temporary pasture. On a claim by the tenant, who had left the farm in 1930 on a notice to quit by the present landlord who had purchased the farm in 1929, for disturbance under sect. 12 of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9), s. 12, he included particulars for an improvement of laying down those two arable fields as temporary pasture :—Held : the claim was enforceable as coming within the exact words of Sched. B. Compensation to Landlord.
See A. H. Act, 1923, s. 10.

264a. Notice of claim—Time for giving—Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76).]—Held : the meaning of sect. 19 of the above Act taken as a whole was that the landlord should have a right of compensation for deterioration under the sect. if he gave a notice before the termination of the tenancy & not otherwise ; but if he had a right under contract to claim for deterioration apart from the sect., nothing in the sect. should interfere with that right.

A tenant held a farm as a yearly tenant under the landlord upon the terms, as the arbitrator found, of an agreement in writing under which the father of the tenant had

A lease entered into before Jan. 1, 1921, bound the tenant to adopt one of two rotations of cropping. The tenant adopted one of the prescribed rotations, with the result that he made an improvement upon his holding within Sched. I. of above Act. On quitting the holding at the termination of his tenancy he claimed compensation for the improvement from the landlords : —Held : he was entitled to compensation as for a voluntary improvement, in respect that he was not required by the lease to execute the particular improvement but was merely bound to adopt one or other of two prescribed methods of cultivation.—GIBSON v. SHERRET, [1928] S. PART V. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 1.—H. (a).

sj. Agricultural Holdings (Scotland) Act, 1923 (c. 10)—"Question or difference"—What amounts to.]—The purchaser of a farm, who became proprietor as at Whit-Sunday 1928, had entered into an agreement on May 7, 1928, with the tenant, that, in consideration of the tenant vacating the farm by June 30, 1928, the purchaser would (inter alia) take over at valuation certain crops, stock, & implements. The parties thereafter executed a submission to two arbiters & an oversman, by whom a valuation was made. In an action at the instance of the tenant against the new proprietor for sums due under the valuation :—Held : the submission did not involve any question or difference within Agricultural Holdings (Scotland) Act, 1923, s. 15 (1), in respect (a) that the new proprietor's obligation to take over the tenant's crops, stock, & implements arose, not "out of the termination of the tenancy," but from an express agreement between the parties ; & (b) that, on May 7, 1928, the date when the agreement to take over at valuation was entered into by the parties, the relationship of "landlord" & "tenant" did not exist between them ; &, accordingly, the submission was not incompetent because it did not take the form, required by sect. 16 (1) of the Act of submission to a single arbiter.—CAMERON v. NICOL, [1930] S. C. 1.—SCOT.

sk. ——Effect of submission.]—Held : when both parties to an agricultural valuation allow arbn. proceedings to be carried on by a method which is not in strict conformity with the provisions of Agricultural Holdings (Scotland) Act, 1923, s. 16, & the arbiter has issued his award, they are barred personali exceptione from objecting to the competence of the proceedings.—CAMERON v. NICOL, [1930] S. 254 i. Award—Particulars not specified in.]—The proprietor of a farm & the outgoing tenant, entered into a submission, whereby they referred the valuation of certain crops, stocks, & implements, agreed to be taken over by the proprietor, to two arbiters, & to an oversman to be appointed by the arbiters to act in the event of their differing in opinion. An award was issued signed by the two arbiters & the oversman, which contained nothing to show in respect of which, if any, of the items under valuation the arbiters had differed in their estimate, thereby rendering necessary a devolution on the oversman :—Held : the valuation belonged to a class of arbn. where a rigid conformity with formal procedure was not exacted ; &, accordingly, that the award was not invalid because it did not distinguish between items valued by the arbiters alone & items upon which the decision of the oversman had been rendered necessary.—CAMERON v. NICOL, [1930] S. C. 1.—SCOT.

originally held the farm. On Aug. 20, 1920, the landlord served a notice to quit upon the tenant, which expired as to the land, other than the boozy pasture, on Feb. 2, 1922. The tenant gave up possession of the land except the boozy pasture, the tenancy of which did not expire until May 1, 1922, upon that date. On Mar. 28, 1922, the landlord gave notice of & particulars of a counterclaim against the tenant for waste wrongly committed or permitted by the tenant & for breach of contract or otherwise, whereby he claimed for neglect in the care of hedges & ditches on the land & dirty land :—Held : (1) the landlord's claim was not barred by sect. 19 of the above Act ; (2) the boozy pasture & the rest of the farm were held under one contract of tenancy ; the contract did not finally cease under sect. 10 (7) of the above Act until May 1, 1922, the date of the termination of the boozy tenancy, & the landlord's notice was therefore in time.—Re ARDEN & RUTTER, [1923] 2 K. The tenant remained on in possession for about nine months, & was finally ejected. Two days before his ejectment he furnished details of his claim for compensation :—Held : the tenant, from the date when his notice expired, was not holding under a contract of tenancy, & the land which he persisted in occupying unlawfully was not a holding within sect. 11 of the above Act, & he, therefore, was not within the benefit of the Act.—CAVE v. PAGE (1923), 67 Sol. 265b. —— Liability to pay compensation—"Landlord"—Purchaser entitled to rents—Purchase not completed till after claim.]—Certain landowners let a farm to tenants. In 1917 they gave notice to the tenants to quit at Michaelmas, 1918, with a view to the sale of the farm. In Oct. 1917, they agreed to sell the farm to a purchaser. On July 5, 1918, the tenants gave to the purchaser, who was then entitled to the rents & profits, notice in writing under sect. 1 (1) of the Act of 1914 of their intention to claim compensation in terms of sect. 11 of the Act of 1908. On July 18, 1918, the sale of the farm was completed :—Held : (1) the purchaser was the "landlord" within the Acts ; (2) the notice of intention to claim compensation was rightly given to him ; (3) he was liable to pay compensation.—BRADSHAW v. BIRD, [1920] 3 K. 265c —— —— Person entitled to rents at end of tenancy.]—(1) Where the tenant of an agricultural holding, who has been disturbed in his tenancy, becomes entitled under sect. 11 of the above Act to compensation for loss in connection with the sale or removal of his household goods, implements, or stock on the condition, among others, of giving to the landlord a reasonable opportunity of making a valuation of such goods, etc., the question whether he has given such a reasonable opportunity is in each case a question of fact depending on the circumstances. The mere lapse of an interval of several months between notice of intention to claim compensation & sale or removal is not of itself sufficient to satisfy the condition.

(2) Where the tenant of an agricultural holding has given notice to his landlord under sect. 11, proviso (b), of his intention to claim compensation for disturbance, & the landlord before the appointment of an arbitrator under that sect. assigns the reversion, the person who is liable to pay such compensation as may be awarded is the person who is entitled to receive the rents at the termination of the tenancy, & the notice of intention to claim so given to the original landlord will enure for the benefit of the tenant as against such last-named person.

(3) Assuming sect. 48 (2) of the above Act to apply to proceedings for compensation for disturbance as well as for improvements, the commencement of the "proceedings" is not the service of notice of intention to claim compensation, but the appointment of the arbitrator.—DALE v. HATFIELD CHASE CORPN., [1922] 2 K. The outgoing tenant claimed, under the above sect., as compensation for loss in connection with the sale of the farm produce, a sum representing the difference between the price he had received & the price of the actual quantity threshed :—Held : the loss was not "directly attributable to the quitting of the holding," but had arisen from an error of the arbiters.—MCGREGOR v. BOARD OF AGRICULTURE FOR SCOTLAND, [1925] S. 266e. Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76)—Right to compensation—Withdrawal of notice to quit—What amounts to.]—In Sept. 1920, a landlord gave to the tenant notice to quit his tenancy of a farm for which he was paying a yearly rental of £506 2*s*. On Dec. 31, 1920, the landlord wrote to the tenant: "I have received an offer of £670 per annum for your holding. If you choose to give me the same, you are most welcome to continue the tenancy" :—Held : having regard to sect. 10 of the above Act, the letter of Dec. 31, 1920, did not constitute an offer in writing to withdraw the notice to quit within the proviso to sect. 10 (1) of that Act.—Re PERRETT & BENNETT-STANFORD, [1922] 2 K. 266f. —— —— Ejectment proceedings following notice to quit.]—The landlord of a farm served on the tenant a notice to quit on Mar. 25, 1923. Owing to the illness of his wife, the tenant did not quit the farmhouse at the expiry of the notice, but he quitted the land, save as under the custom of the country, immediately after the expiry of the notice. Ejectment proceedings were brought by the landlord & judgment was obtained by default of appearance. On being served with the notice to quit, the tenant duly served on the landlord a notice of intention to claim compensation for disturbance under sect. 10 of the above Act :—Held : if the tenant was ejected, the ejectment was in consequence of the notice to quit, &, therefore, the tenant had quitted the farm in consequence of the notice to quit terminating the tenancy, & the tenant was accordingly entitled to compensation under sect. 10 of the Act.—MILLS v. ROSE (1923), 68 Sol. Jo. 420, C. A.

266g. —— —— Necessity for proof of loss or expense—Entire holding in occupation of sub-tenants.]—The effect of sect. 10 (6) of the above Act is that as a condition precedent to his right to compensation for disturbance a tenant must prove that he has incurred some loss or some expense of the kind indicated in the sub-sect.; that on proof of that he is entitled as a minimum to one year's rent of the holding; but that unless he proves some loss or some expense of the kind indicated he does not bring himself within sub-sect. 6 & is not entitled to compensation. Therefore where a lease of a holding under the Act was duly determined by notice to quit & the holding was entirely in the occupation of sub-tenants whose sub-tenancies terminated without notice on the termination of the lease, & the lessee did not sell or remove any household goods, implements of husbandry, fixtures, farm produce or farm stock on or used in connection with the holding :—Held : he was not entitled to compensation for disturbance under sect. 10.—AGRICULTURE & FISHERIES MINISTER v. DEAN, [1924] 1 K. 266i. Given under Act subsequently repealed—Necessity for notice under repealing Act.]—A tenant who had on Sept. 29, 1920, received notice to quit his farm on Sept. 29, 1921, gave notice on Nov. 17, 1920, to his landlord of his intention to claim compensation for disturbance under A. H. Act, 1908, s. 11. That sect. was repealed by the Act of 1920, which came into force on Jan 1, 1921, & by sect. 10 substituted a new right to compensation for disturbance. The tenant gave no notice of his intention to claim compensation under that sect. as required by sub-sect. 7 (b) thereof :—Held : not having given notice under sect. 10 of the Act of 1920, he had no right of claim under that sect., but his right of making a claim under A. H. Act, 1908, s. 11, was preserved by Interpretation Act, 1889 (c. 63), s. 38, notwithstanding the repeal of sect. 11.—HAMILTON-GELL v. WHITE, [1922] 2 K. B. 422; 91 L. J. K. B. 875; 127 L. 266j. Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9)—Right to compensation—Refusal or failure to agree to arbitration.]—(1) A landlord of a holding gave the tenant notice to quit, & in the same document stated that he had no desire to terminate the tenancy if the tenant would agree to his demand that the rent should be fixed by arbn. The tenant did not agree to arbn. :—Held : the tenant did not thereby disentitle himself to compensation, for the refusal or failure to agree to arbn. dealt with by sect. 12 (1) (e) of the above Act is a refusal or failure which has taken place before the date of the notice.

(2) It cannot be laid down as a matter of law, that in no case can the minimum compensation of one year's rent provided by sect. 12 (6) be reduced under the provisions of sect. 12 (8) if the tenant, having held two or more holdings as tenant, remains in possession of one of them. But the provisions of sect. 12 (8) have no application to a case in which the tenant remains in possession of the other holding or holdings, not as tenant, but as owner.—WESTLAKE v. PAGE, [1926] 1 K. 266l. —— Liability to pay compensation—"Landlord"—Agreement for sale—Whether purchaser entitled to rents.]—In July, 1924, the owner of an estate, which included a farm in the occupation of tenants, agreed to sell the farm to a purchaser, who agreed to pay the purchase money in Oct. 1924. The agreement was subject to conditions of sale, by one of which the purchaser agreed to pay the balance of the purchase money on the day named in the contract, & in that respect time was to be of the essence of the contract ; & it was further agreed that "all rents & periodical outgoings" should be "apportioned up to the completion," & added to or deducted from the purchase money as the case might require. On Sept. 23, 1924, notice was given to the tenants to quit the farm on Sept. 29, 1925. The purchase was not in fact completed until Oct. 1925 :—Held : (1) "completion" in the condition of sale meant actual completion, & not the date named for completion ; (2) on Sept. 29, 1925, the vendor was the "person entitled to receive the rents & profits" of the farm within sect. 57, & he, & not the purchaser, was the "landlord" within sect. 12 & the person to pay compensation to the tenants.—RICHARDS v. PRYSE, [1927] 2 K. 266m. —— Notice of claim—By whom given—Joint tenancy.]—W., who had been tenant of a farm for many years, entered into negotiations with his landlord to have his tenancy agreement, upon the termination thereof, transferred to himself & B., & as the result of those negotiations W. became joint tenant of the farm with B. at the request of, & for the protection of, the landlord. Upon the termination of W.'s tenancy B. paid W. for the tenant right & also provided the whole of the finance necessary for carrying on the farm. On Feb. 21, 1924, W. alone gave notice to quit. On Mar. 21, 1924, the landlord served notice to quit upon both tenants, upon the ground that they were not cultivating the farm according to the rules of good husbandry. Thereupon B. gave notice to the landlord of his intention to claim compensation :—Held : (1) the notice given by B., being the one of the joint tenants who owned the household goods & agricultural implements & had suffered loss by their removal or sale upon the expiration of the joint tenancy, was sufficient to give the arbitrator jurisdiction ; (2) it being the object of sect. 12 (7) (b) of the above Act that the landlord should have notice of what compensation was claimed against him, it would, in the case of a joint tenancy, be a great hardship upon the tenant who had a proper & valid claim for compensation which was to be defeated because his joint tenant, who had no such claim, had not joined in the notice.—HOWSON v. BUXTON (1928), 97 L. J. K. B. 749 ; 139 L. T. 504, C. A.

266n. —— Notice to quit—Reason must be stated—Effect of notice giving alternative reasons.]—A tenant in giving a notice to quit under sect. 12 (3) of above Act, on account of the landlord's refusal or failure to agree to the tenant's demand for arbn. as to the rent of the holding, is, as a condition precedent to his right to compensation for disturbance, bound to state correctly the reason for the notice which in fact exists, but he may put himself right by putting his notice in the alternative by stating that the notice given was either for the reason that the landlord had refused or that he had within a reasonable time failed to agree to the demand made on him by the tenant for arbn.

Where the landlord had within a reasonable time failed to agree to such a demand but had not refused to do so & the notice to quit wrongly stated that it was given by reason of the landlord's refusal to agree :—Held : the tenant could not succeed in his claim for compensation for disturbance.—SELLECK v. HELLENS (1928), 98 L. J. K. B. 214 ; 140 L. T. 353 ; 45 T. L. R. 179 ; 73 Sol. Jo. 76, C. A.

266o. —— —— —— Form of notice.]—The landlord of a holding served on the tenant notice to quit in the following form : "In accordance with sect. 12 (1) (a) & (b) of Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9), we hereby as agents for" the landlord "give you notice to quit," etc. The tenant, in accordance with this notice having quitted the holding, claimed compensation for disturbance, contending that the notice did not sufficiently state that it was given for any of the reasons specified in sect. 12 (1) of the Act, or did not specify for which of those reasons it was given :—Held : the notice to quit sufficiently stated that it was given for the reasons indicated in sect. 12 (1) (a) & (b), & was an effective notice to bar the tenant's claim to compensation if the allegations were sustained.—Re DIGBY & PENNY, [1932] 2 K. SUB-SECT. 3*a*.—COMPENSATION FOR ENFORCEMENT OF PROPER CULTIVATION.

. Corn Production Act, 1917 (c. 46), s. 9 (9)—Who is person interested—Tenant.]—(1) A notice to convert certain land into tillage, made under sub-sect. 1 of the above sect. & Defence of the Realm Regulations, 1914, reg. 2 M, was served on the owner of land who was in occupation. After the service of the notice the owner agreed to let the land to a tenant who entered into occupation & carried out the requirements of the notice. The notice had not been served on the tenant. The tenant claimed compensation for loss alleged to have been suffered by him by reason of his having carried out the requirements of the notice, & the claim was referred to arbn. under the Act, & the arbitrator stated a case in which he asked the ct. certain questions :—Held : the tenant was a " person who was interested in the land in respect of which the notice was served," within sub-sect. 9 of the above sect., inasmuch as he was interested at the time when the loss was alleged to have occurred ; & the tenant came within the words of the sub-sect. " who suffers any loss by reason of the exercise of the powers conferred by this sect." & was entitled to compensation for the loss, if any, though the notice had not been served on him, as he had carried out the requirements of the notice.

(2) Two notices were served, each in respect of a different field in a separate farm occupied by the same tenant :—Held : in the circumstances, the loss, if any, in respect of each field should be assessed separately.

(3) The tenant of certain land in respect of which a notice to plough had been served under the Act sent in a claim for compensation on Sept. 28, 1918, for the year 1918, & in 1919 he sent in a claim for compensation for 1919. The arbn. to assess compensation was held after both claims had been sent in : —Held : the assessment should not be based on the loss, if any, in each year separately ; (BANKES, L.J.) the arbitrator should take the experience of the two years, setting off any profit in one year against any loss in the other ; (SCRUTTON & ATKIN, L.JJ.) the whole effect of the exercise of the powers conferred by the sect. had to be considered by the arbitrator, including an estimate of the probable loss or profit in the future. —Re TODD & NORTH RIDING OF YORKSHIRE AGRICULTURAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, [1921] 1 K. 266t. In respect of what holdings compensation payable—Tenant sub-letting farmhouse.]—By an agreement of tenancy a landlord demised to the tenant a farm of 1,000 acres together with a farmhouse & some cottages. There was a provision that the tenant should use the demised premises for farming purposes. The tenant subsequently, with the permission of the landlord, sub-let the farmhouse to a lady who used it as a house for paying guests. Upon the determination of the lease, the tenant made a claim for compensation under A. H. Act, 1908 :—Held : the ct. must have regard to the substance of what had been done ; by the lease the holding was an agricultural one, & the fact that the farmhouse had been let to a sub-tenant did not cause it to cease to be a " holding " within the Act.—Re RUSSELL & HARDING (1922), 128 L. In May, 1922, the landlord contracted to sell the holding, subject to the tenancy, to resp., completion to take place on Sept. 29, 1922. The completion in fact took place on Nov. 2. The contract of sale contained a general condition that the rents, profits or possession of the property should be received or retained & the outgoings discharged by the vendor up to the time appointed for completion, & that current rents should be apportioned. Particulars of claim—Sufficiency.]—Held: having regard to the severity of the penalty attached to non-compliance with Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76), s. 18 (2), namely, total extinguishment of the claim, the presumption was that the requirement of "particulars" was not intended to be construed strictly, &, for the purpose of keeping the claim alive & enabling the parties to get before the arbitrator, a less degree of particularity was required to satisfy the sect. than would be required of particulars of a statement of claim in an action, notwithstanding that when the parties get before the arbitrator he might be of opinion that the particulars were insufficient, & might order further & better particulars to be given.—JONES v. EVANS, [1923] 1 K. Act, 1908, on the ground of error appearing on the face of it where there has been no misconduct on the part of the arbitrator is not taken away by that Act. That jurisdiction was not excluded by Arbitration Act, 1889 (c. 49), & when the jurisdiction under that Act with reference to arbn. proceedings under the A. H. Act, 1908, was transferred to the county ct. by that Act, the inherent jurisdiction of the High Ct. in those matters was neither expressly nor by implication transferred to it.—Re JONES & CARTER, [1922] 2 Ch. 599; 91 L. 266z. —— —— Time for notice of motion to set aside.]—In an arbn. under the A. H. Act, 1908, the award was made on Apr. 8, 1921, & on June 3 applt. gave notice of motion to set aside the award on various grounds. There was no rule either under County Cts. Act, 1888 (c. 43), or under A. H. Act, 1908, dealing with the time within which a notice of motion to set aside an award must be given:—Held: the words "principles of practice" in County Cts. Act. 1888 (c. 43), s. 164. did not refer to specific rules of the High Ct., & the time limit of six weeks under R. S. C., Ord. 64, r. 14, was not a "principle of practice" within that sect. of the Act; therefore the only time limit applicable in the present case was under Stat. Limitations & under the doctrine of laches, & the motion to set aside the award was made in time.—MCCREAGH v. FREARSON (1921), 91 L. J. K. B. 365; 126 L. T. 601, D. C.

266dd. Costs—Agreement as to—Validity.]—The parties to an arbn. under A. H. Act, 1923, agreed beforehand that the successful party should have costs on the High Ct. scale. The agreement was not communicated to the arbitrator, who gave his award in favour of the landlord, & awarded that each party should pay his own costs. In an action by the landlord to enforce the agreement the judge gave judgment for the tenants, on the ground that the Act gave discretion to the arbitrator as to costs:—Held: the agreement was valid & enforceable.—MANSFIELD v. ROBINSON, [1928] 2 K. B. 353; 97 L. J. K. B. 466; 139 L. T. 349; 92 J. P. 126; 44 T. L. R. 518, D. C.

267a. —— "Treated as a market garden."]—(1) Held: the word "treated" in sect. 42 (1) of the above Act, in the collocation in which it was there used did not mean simply that the holding should be in use or cultivation as a market garden, but that it should be let by one person as landlord & occupied by the other as tenant as a market garden, & so treated as between them for the purpose of govening their rights in respect of the holding as a market garden.

By an agreement in writing dated Dec. 31, 1919, & made between the landlord of the one part & the tenant therein described as "market gardener" of the other part, it was agreed (clause 1): that the landlord should let & the tenant should take the farm therein described for the term of one year from Sept. 19, 1919, & so on from year to year at the yearly rent of £185 by half-yearly payments on Mar. 25 & Sept. 29 in each year, & that the tenant should pay to the landlord as a further rent at the rate of £6 per cent. per annum on all sums of money expended by the landlord in the supply of any fruit trees during the tenancy. By clause 7 the tenant was to cultivate the land on the best & most approved system of gardening in general practice in the neighbourhood, & was not to cut down, grub up or destroy any fruit trees growing in or upon the land, or at any time to be planted thereon, under the provisions of the agreement, without the consent in writing of the landlord or his agent first had & obtained. By clause 9 the landlord was during the term to supply the tenant at his own expense with all fruit trees which might at any time be agreed between the landlord & tenant to be necessary, & the tenant was to pay a certain additional rent in respect of the fruit trees so supplied. Clause 11 contained the following proviso: "That nothing herein contained shall be deemed to be an agreement by the landlord that the premises hereby demised or any part thereof shall be let or treated as a market garden or give rise to a claim for compensation for fruit trees or bushes under A. H. Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof": —Held: (2) clause 11 of the agreement contained the clearest possible expression of the intention of the parties that the holding was not to be treated as a market garden; there was therefore no agreement in writing within sect. 42 (1) of the Act, by which it was agreed that it should be let or treated as a market garden, & therefore no claim to compensation on that basis arose, because the existence of such an agreement was a condition precedent to such a claim; (3) the agreement was not one which was avoided by sect. 5 of the Act, because the condition precedent to the tenant having the right to claim compensation had not been satisfied.—Re MASTERS & DUVEEN, [1923] 2 K. A lease of a farm contained a covenant by the lessee to deliver up at the end of the term all the demised premises & all new & other buildings & erections thereon & all such fixtures as were in anywise affixed or fastened to the freehold of the premises:—Held: the covenant effectually excluded the provisions of sect. 21 of the Act, & the tenant was not entitled to remove certain buildings & fixtures erected & affixed by him during the term.—PREMIER DAIRIES v. GARLICK, [1920] 2 Ch. 17; 89 L. 286 vi. —— —— Dependent on terms of contract.]—The question whether a contract relating to timber constitutes a sale of chattels or relates to an interest in land depends on the terms of the contract. A contract for the sale of standing timber to be cut & removed by the buyer, who is given "as much time as he desires" to remove it, is one which deals with an interest in land within the meaning of sect. 34 of Land Registry Act, R. S. B. C., 1924, &, therefore, it is one which must be registered thereunder in order to pass such interest.—CARLSON v. DUNCAN, [1931] 2 W. W. R. 343; 3 D. L. R. 570; 44 B. C. R. 14.—CAN.

An intention in a statute to depart from a common law rule would need to be expressed with the utmost clarity, & sect. 59 (c) does not pretend to enact that planted & growing fruit trees are to be treated as chattels or personal property.—MCCLELLAN v. R., [1932] EX. The crop became infected with a disease & deft. did not put his sheep on to eat any part of the crop. Pltf. required the use of the 30 acres for cultivating for the 1932 harvest, & alleging that he was prevented from so doing by deft.'s neglect to clear off the turnips, claimed £20 damages for breach of contract in addition to £180 purchase price :—Held : the crops were "goods" within Sale of Goods Act, 1908, & the second contract, being oral, was unenforceable.—SCULLY v. SOUTH, [1931] N. 311b. —.]—At an auction sale of grass crops held at a farm pltf. purchased the crop of swedes in one of the fields, & deft. purchased the grass on an adjoining field. One of the conditions upon which pltf. purchased the crop of swedes was that he should not remove from the field more than one-half of the crop of swedes, the other half having to be consumed on the field. Deft. put a number of sheep into his field of grass, & the sheep got into pltf.'s field of swedes & did considerable damage to the swedes :—Held : the fact that the right of pltf. to remove the swedes from the field was limited to one-half of the crop did not prevent him from maintaining an action of trespass in respect of the damage done by deft.'s sheep, as pltf. had such an exclusive right of possession in the crop as would entitle him to maintain an action of trespass.—WELLAWAY v. COURTIER, [1918] 1 K. 652a. —— —— ——.]—(1) By a settlement certain hereditaments were settled to the use of certain trustees during the life of A. without impeachment of waste upon the trusts, & with & subject to the powers thereinafter declared, with remainders as therein mentioned, & it was declared that the hereditaments were thereby limited to the trustees upon trust, during the life of A., that if at the time of such limitation taking effect in possession A. should not be or have been bkpt. the trustees should allow him to enter into & remain in the possession or receipt of the rents & profits of the settled estates during his life or until he should become bkpt. By an agreement, dated Dec. 7, 1920, A. agreed to sell all the timber standing in certain portions of the settled estates. On Jan. 18, 1922, a contract was entered into by A. for sale of part of the settled land, subject to the agreement of Dec. 7, 1920, & on Mar. 14, 1922, such land was conveyed to the purchaser, subject to the agreement:—Held: the proceeds of sale of the timber belonged to A.

(2) At the date of the contract for the sale of land & at the date of the conveyance, part of the timber, to the value of about £500, remained uncut:—Held: although as regards the purchaser of the land the timber was divided from the freehold, yet nevertheless it remained part of the inheritance & subject to the limitations of the settlement; accordingly, it did not vest in A., but being however part of the inheritance & still remaining subject to the limitations of the settlement, on severance it became the property of A., & therefore the £500 belonged to him.—Re LONDESBOROUGH (EARL), SPICER v. LONDESBOROUGH (EARL), [1923] 1 Ch. 500; 92 L. After logging for two years, deft. decided to cease work & as some merchantable timber remained the parties agreed that two cruisers, one appointed by each party, should estimate the quantity left & deft. should pay pltf. $7 per M. for what remained. The cruisers reported, but pltf. being dissatisfied with their finding, had two of his own cruisers to make an estimate & they found that more than double the amount of merchantable timber remained. On examination, the joint cruisers admitted they did not cruise two of the lots, as these lots had been logged by deft., & they concluded, without examination, there was no merchantable timber there. Pltf.'s own cruisers reported that there were 80,000 feet of "down" timber on these two lots which were merchantable. Pltf.'s action to recover the value of the remaining timber as found by his own cruisers was dismissed :—Held : the joint cruise was such a partial estimate of the remaining timber that it could not be regarded as a cruise contemplated by the parties, & it was not binding.—REINSETH v. NICOLA PINE MILLS, LTD. & MCDOUGALL, [1928] 1 D. 810a. Confiscation by foreign State—Frustration.]—By a contract the vendors agreed to sell & the purchasers to purchase the timber then standing uncut in a forest in the Republic of Latvia, the purchasers to have fifteen years in which to cut & remove it, such time to be extended if the purchasers were prevented by an act of the Govt., or otherwise by force majeure, or by war, from cutting or disposing of the timber. Merchantable timber was to mean & include all trunks & branches of trees not less than six inches in diameter at a height of four feet from the ground. The purchasers took possession of the forest, but shortly afterwards an agrarian law was passed in Latvia under which the forest & all the timber therein became the property of the Latvian State, the agreement became annulled, & all the rights of vendors & purchasers in the forest & the timber became entirely confiscated:—Held: the contract was not an executed contract on the part of the vendors at the date when it was signed, & the property in the timber had not passed, to the purchaser; the performance of the contract was entirely frustrated by the act of the Latvian State, & the parties were released from it.—KURSELL v. TIMBER OPERATORS & CONTRACTORS, [1927] 1 K. sh. —— Forfeiture for breach of covenant—Waiver.]—A timber license over an area in Newfoundland for ninety-nine years was issued in 1915 under the local Crown Lands Act, 1903, as amended in 1911, the licensee agreeing to pay an annual rent & royalties. The license provided that it was subject to the express condition that the licensee should erect a saw mill or pulp factory to be completed by 1920, also to the conditions of the Act, & that if the licensee should make default in performing "any of the conditions herein contained" the license should be null & void. One of the conditions in the Act was that a licensee was to work the licensed area in a bonâ fide manner, & operate the mill or factory erected, in each year; but that condition was not set out in the license. The Act, as amended in 1911, provided for forfeiture only for non-payment of rent or royalties; for any breach of the other conditions the licensee was to be liable to a penalty not exceeding $10,000, & a penalty not exceeding $100 for every day the breach continued. By an amending Act of 1918 a breach of any condition was made a cause of forfeiture. The licensee & his assign did nothing under the license except to pay the rent. Rent paid in 1928 was accepted, but was returned later. In 1930 the Crown sued for a declaration that the license was null & void, or was forfeited, & for penalties & damages:—Held: (1) the license was subsisting, because (a) the provision that upon relevant default it was to be void was to be treated as making it merely voidable at the option of the Crown; (b) the words "conditions herein contained" meant the conditions set out, & did not include the incorporated statutory conditions; (c) the condition set out as to the erection of a mill or factory had been broken once & for all in 1920, & forfeiture on that account had been waived by the acceptance of rent in 1928, & there had not been any later breach of a condition for which there was a right of forfeiture, as the Act of 1918 applied only to licenses issued after it was passed; (2) damages could not be recovered, as there was no contractual obligation by the licensee to perform the conditions, nor daily penalties, as there was no continuing breach; but, by agreement, the case should be remitted for the trial ct. to decide the amount of lump sum penalty to be imposed.—JARDINE v. A.-G. This bough suddenly broke in fine weather, fell upon pltf.'s vehicle then passing, & caused damage. Neither deft. nor his servants knew that the bough was dangerous, & the fracture was due to a latent defect not discoverable by any reasonably careful inspection:—Held: deft. was not liable, as the mere fact that the tree overhung the highway did not make the tree a nuisance, & as he neither knew nor ought to have known of the actual danger, & there was no absolute obligation on him to support a tree overhanging the road unless it appeared, or would appear on a proper inspection, that nature could no longer be relied upon to support it.—NOBLE v. HARRISON, [1926] 2 K. NOTE.—Fertilisers & Feeding Stuffs Act, 1906 (c. 27), was repealed by Fertilisers & Feeding Stuffs Act, 1926 (c. 45).

971a. Feeding stuffs—Act of 1906, s. 1 (4).]—In Sept. 1922, pltf., a pig-keeper, saw defts.' managing director, who offered to sell him the bakery sweepings as pig food at 2*s.* 6*d.* a bag. Pltf. accepted the offer & purchased the sweepings from defts. & fed five pigs with it successfully from Sept. 1922 to Jan. 1923, when the pigs became ill & four of them died. The sweepings consisted of ingredients used in making bread, together with dust & dirt & other odds & ends & string:—Held: the words "on the sale of any article" in the above sub-sect. were wide enough to cover the sale of these bakery sweepings; the effect of the sub-sect. was to put the risk upon the seller, who, knowing the constituents of the article which he chose to sell as food for cattle, was made responsible if in fact it contained some article deleterious; if the seller desired to protect himself against the stringent provisions of the Act, it was competent to him to do so by a special contract made for that purpose.—PULLING v. LIDBETTER, LTD., [1924] 2 K. 975a. —— Sending of sample to seller—Act of 1906, s. 3 (3).]—It is a condition precedent to a prosecution of the seller under sect. 6 (1) (a) of the above Act, on a charge of not sending an invoice on the sale of a fertiliser of the soil according to the provisions of sect. 1 (1), that a prescribed portion of the sample thereof taken with a view to the proceedings under sect. 3 (3) shall have been sent to the seller.—VAUGHAN v. GRINDELL, [1921] 3 K. 978a. —— Effect of—"Reasonable excuse."]—(1) As the object of the Act of 1906 in requiring the vendor to give the statutory invoice & imposing on him a penalty in the event of his default is to protect the purchasers of fertilisers, the effect of non-compliance with the requirement is not merely to render the vendor liable to the penalty, but also to make the sale illegal & preclude the vendor from suing for the price. (2) The fact that, owing to the nature of the article sold as a fertiliser, an analysis of it would necessitate so expensive a process as to make it impossible to sell it after analysis at a profit, affords no "reasonable excuse" within sect. 6 (1), for omitting to give the invoice required by the Act. Semble: neither will impossibility of analysis afford any excuse, the intention of the statute in that event being to prohibit the sale of the article altogether. (3) The expression "without prejudice to any civil liability" in sect. 6 (1) refers to the civil liability of the vendor, not to that of the purchaser.—ANDERSON, LTD. v. DANIEL, [1921] 1 K. 978b. Fertilizers & Feeding Stuffs Act, 1926 (c. 45)—Implied warranty of fitness—Sale for purpose of resale.]—Pltfs. bought from defts., both being cattle food merchants, a quantity of linseed cake. Defts. sold in their own name, but they were in fact acting in the transaction as brokers for a bank to whom the goods had been hypothecated as security for certain bills of exchange which had been refused acceptance by the drawees. The sale note stated (inter alia) that the cake was sold "tel quel," & that the analysis, for which defts. said they accepted no responsibility, showed that the cake was "castor free." Pltfs. resold portions of the cake to their customers as food for cattle. It then appeared on further analysis that portions of the cake contained castor seed, a constituent injurious to cattle; and in fact cattle which were fed on some of the cake were injured. Claims were thereupon made upon pltfs. by their purchasers in respect of the damage so caused to their cattle, & pltfs. then claimed damages from defts., including in their claim the amounts they had to pay to the sub-purchasers:—Held: (1) the sale of the cake by defts. to pltfs. was a sale for use as food for cattle, within sect. 2 (2) of above Act, notwithstanding that pltfs. themselves did not intend to use the cake for that purpose but intended to resell it to those who would so use it; (2) the sale, though in fact effected by defts. on behalf of the bank, was not a sale "in exercise of a statutory power to enforce a right or to satisfy a claim or lien," within sect. 24 of above Act, so as to be exempt from the operation of the Act; (3) pltfs. were entitled to damages from defts. for the breach of the statutory warranty, & were entitled to include in those damages the amounts they were liable to pay to their sub-purchasers.—DOBELL (G. A board elected by hop growers framed a scheme by which all hops were to be sold through their agency, &, after paying expenses, etc., the money so received was to be pooled & divided amongst the growers according to the value of the produce taken from each one :—Held : although the 1931 Act authorised the board to "buy" the regulated product, the taking, pooling, sale & division constituted what in fact was a purchase from the producer & a sale on his behalf, & the scheme was therefore not an infringement of the terms of the Act.—R. v. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE & FISHERIES, Ex p. BERRY (1932), 101 L. 13a. —— ——.]—By an Order in Council made on Nov. 5, 1914, Cyprus was annexed, & by a Proclamation made thereunder on Mar. 3, 1915, revoking an earlier Proclamation, it was provided that " all Ottoman subjects, resident in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914, have become British subjects." An amending Order in Council made on Nov. 27, 1917, after reciting that doubts had arisen as to the effect of the Order & the proper interpretation of the Proclamation, ordered that the following persons (inter alios) should be deemed to have become British subjects by virtue thereof : " any Ottoman subject who was ordinarily resident & actually present in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914." Resp., an Ottoman subject by birth, carried on business in Cairo from 1893 to 1913. In Dec. 1913, he went to Cyprus, & after three or four months brought his family there. He rented a house in Cyprus monthly, & while there discontinued his business in Cairo. He was present in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914, & remained there until Oct. 1915, when he returned to Cairo, his family following in December. He sued for a declaration that he was entitled to registration :—Held : if there were any difference between " resident " & " ordinarily resident " the latter became the test by virtue of the interpretative Order of 1917 ; but on the facts resp. was both " resident " & " ordinarily resident " in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914, whether or not Cyprus was then his domicil ; & whatever may have been his motive for going there, he was a British subject by virtue of the Order in Council.—GOUT v. CIMITIAN, [1922] 1 A. Pltfs. had left their birthplace, Idar, in the district of Birkenfeld, about 1893, & with the exception of short annual visits to their mother, &, in the case of one, six weeks' military training in 1896, they had resided uninterruptedly out of Germany from 1893

Further, S. was not a British subject, as he ceased to be such by sect. 6 of Naturalisation Act, 1870 (c. 14), when he became naturalised as a citizen of the United States of America.—BRADFIELD v. SWANTON, [1931] I. to 1917 or 1918, when they were repatriated, after war internment, to Idar, where according to the police register entries, if genuine, they were registered as stateless on their arrival, & also on their departure for Amsterdam in 1920. On Jan. 29, 1923, the Birkenfeld Govt. after inquiry as to the period of pltfs.' absence from Germany, & as to their German visits during that period, granted them certificates to the effect that during that period they had forfeited their German nationality by ten years' "uninterrupted" residence abroad within North German Nationality Law, 1870, s. 21, & were therefore stateless on Jan. 10, 1920. These certificates were based on the view of the Administrative Cts. which, in considering whether German visits break the ten years' period, look to the number, length, purpose & intent of those visits. They were, however directly contrary to the view of the Leipzig Reichsgericht, which holds that the smallest visit, accidental or otherwise, breaks the period:—Held: (2) the certificates, which were admittedly only primâ facie evidence & open to review in any German ct., were not conclusive in an English ct., & the onus was on pltfs. to substantiate them; (3) if the Leipzig ct. view was right, the certificates were invalid; (4) even if the Administrative Ct. view was right, pltfs. had failed to satisfy the English ct. that an Administrative Ct. on being informed of all the circumstances, including fraudulent conduct by pltfs., applications as German nationals in 1915 & 1921, & previous false statements as to their German visits, would necessarily uphold the certificates; (5) having regard to the conflict of opinion in the German cts., pltfs. had failed to discharge the onus of proving that by unquestionable & undoubted German law they had lost their nationality on Jan. 10, 1920.—HAHN v. PUBLIC TRUSTEE, [1925] Ch. 715; 95 L. —— —— British subject marrying German —& naturalised as German during war.]—By a settlement dated in 1902 a fund of £5,000 was vested in trustees on trust to invest & pay the income of the trust funds to H. during his life or until he should become bkpt. or charge it, "or until some event shall happen . . . whereby the income or any part thereof if belonging absolutely to him would become vested or charged in favour of some other person or persons or corpn.," & in the event of the determination during the life of H., of the above trust in his favour the trustees were given a discretion to apply the income for the benefit of all or any the said H., & his present or any other after-taken wife & his issue & the persons interested for the time being under the ulterior trusts, &, subject thereto, were directed to hold the capital & income of the trust funds upon trust for the benefit of the issue of H. & in default of issue upon trust for H.'s nephews & nieces. H. was born in England of English parents but had resided in Germany since 1906 & had been twice married there to German wives. During the war, on Aug. 8, 1916, he obtained a certificate of naturalisation as a German. In these circumstances a summons was taken out by the trustees to have it determined whether the life interest of H. in the funds was forfeited by the charge imposed on property of German nationals in this country on Jan. 10, 1920, by the Treaty of Peace with Germany, art. 297, or Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, & how the income accrued since Aug. 4, 1914, ought to be disposed of. It was admitted at the hearing on behalf of H. that in a German ct. applying German law he would be recognised as a German citizen. No question arose as to the income before Nov. 4, 1915, which had been paid over to H.'s agent:—Held: (1) the decision whether a person was a German national within the Treaty & Order fell to be determined exclusively by German municipal law, & accordingly H. was a German national; (2) H.'s interest under the settlement was forfeited as on Jan. 10, 1920, & subject to the payment of costs the accumulations of income in the trustees' hands from Nov. 4, 1915, to Jan. 10, 1920, must be paid to the custodian; (3) as the question raised was one that might affect a large section of the British public the A.-G. was a proper party to the proceedings.—Re CHAMBERLAIN'S SETTLEMENT, CHAMBERLAIN v. CHAMBERLAIN, [1921] 2 Ch. 533; 91 L. In 1917 an objection was lodged against the re-election of applt., who was a British subject naturalised in this country & denationalised in Germany, at the election to be held in March of that year, on the ground of his enemy birth. Upon the invitation of the committee applt., first in a letter & afterwards at an interview, set forth various facts in proof of his loyalty to the country of his adoption, but eventually the committee refused to re-elect him. Applt. impeached this decision on the ground that the committee had acted arbitrarily & capriciously & had been influenced by irrelevant considerations :—Held : the decision of the committee had proceeded solely upon the ground of applt.'s enemy birth, & before deeming him ineligible for re-election on that ground he had been given an opportunity of being heard. 198a. ——.]—In Jan. 1914, pltfs. entered into a contract with defts., who were a co. incorporated under the laws of Belgium & had their registered office at Antwerp, to sell to them manganese ore deliverable in certain quantities during the second half of 1914 & the three following years alongside steamer in Bombay. In Sept. 1914, when the German armies were threatening Antwerp, the managing director of deft. co. removed all the co.'s goods & the money in bank to London & came himself to London, & there, without any formal authority from the co., carried on business in his own name, but for the benefit of the co. After the German occupation of Antwerp the German authorities placed the co. under compulsory administration. During the German occupation, meetings of the directors & shareholders were held at which formal business was transacted.

These meetings were held so as to comply with Belgian law & to keep the co. in existence. The co. also collected & paid debts due to & owing by it in order to prevent the German authorities from winding up the co. & investing the uncalled capital in German War Loan, & with the like object it created a debt against its uncalled capital in favour of its bankers for the purpose of paying arrears of dividend on its preference shares. Pltfs. contended that the co. was an enemy, & they claimed a declaration that the contract was dissolved & was no longer binding on them :—Held : pltfs. were entitled to the declaration claimed; though acts which were necessary merely for the purpose of keeping the co. in existence might not amount to "carrying on business" within the Proclamation of Sept. 14, 1915, the collection of debts & discharge of liabilities with the intention of continuing the business amounted to a "carrying on business," & constituted the co. an "enemy" within the Proclamation.—CENTRAL INDIA MINING CO. v. SOCIÉTÉ COLONIALE ANVERSOISE, [1920] 1 K. At the end of the first year there was a balance in favour of pltfs. In an action to recover the amount of the balance defts. pleaded that as the Bolshevists had in Nov. 1917, usurped supreme power in Russia, & as the British Govt. was carrying on warlike operations against them pltfs. were alien enemies, & that owing to the entire suspension of business in Petrograd by reason of the usurpation the basis of the contract had been destroyed :—Held : as the Bolshevist Govt. had not been recognised by this country as the Russian Govt., & as pltfs. had not adhered to the Bolshevists pltfs. were not alien enemies ; & as defts. with knowledge of the facts had continued to treat the contract as alive by crediting pltfs. with premiums & debiting them with losses, the Bolshevist revolution had not so destroyed the basis of the contract as to put an end to it, & pltfs. were entitled to recover. —EASTERN CARRYING INSURANCE CO. v. NATIONAL BENEFIT LIFE & PROPERTY ASSURANCE CO., LTD. 215 i. Licensed to trade for limited purposes—Banking transactions.]—The London agency of a German bank, which at the outbreak of war in 1914 became an enemy, held a bill, drawn by a German subject & accepted by a Scotsman, which had been sent from Germany for collection. It had been the practice of the bank that, if bills so sent were dishonoured, no legal proceedings were taken against ac-recovered judgment against the British owners of the steamship K. for the amount of the damage arising out of a collision between the two vessels, & the damages were referred to the registrar & merchants for assessment. Before defts. had filed their claim in the registry the war had broken out. A few days before the Peace Treaty was ratified the claim & vouchers were filed, but by consent they were treated as having been filed after the ratification. Thereupon pltfs. took out a summons for an order to set aside the filing & service of the claim & vouchers on the ground that under arts. 296 & 297 of the Treaty & Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, s. 1 (xvi & xvii), the parties had no right to litigate the claim in the registry, inasmuch as, being a debt owing to German nationals, it had to be settled through the intervention of clearing houses:—Held: (1) defts.' claim was not a debt but a right, which by the Peace Treaty, art. 297, was subject to the right to be retained & liquidated "in accordance with the law of the allied State . . . concerned," namely, Great Britain; (2) not being a debt, art. 296 did not apply; (3) although defts. would not be able to handle the sum awarded, there was nothing in art. 297 or in Treaty of Peace Order, s. 1 (xvii) to deprive defts. of their right to proceed to a reference, or to prevent pltfs. paying money into ct. with a notice that it was in satisfaction of the claim of German subjects.—THE MARIE GARTZ, [1920] P. 172; 89 L. No part of the annuities could be paid to the annuitants during the war by reason of Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914 (c. 12), but accumulations were retained by the exors., as no order was made under sect. 4 of the Act vesting the annuitants' interests in the custodian:—Held: (1) as the Act of 1914 only suspended payments to the alien enemies & did not determine the ownership & ultimate destination of their annuities, those annuities were not forfeited ab initio; (2) the annuities were forfeited & determined in the case of the German nationals as from Jan. 10, 1920, by the charge imposed by the Treaty of Peace with Germany & Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, & in the case of the Austrian national as from July 16, 1920, by the charge imposed by the Treaty of Peace with Austria & Treaty of Peace (Austria) Order, 1920; (3) the accumulations of the annuities until those respective dates became subject to the charges & payable therefore to the custodian or the administrator of Austrian property as the case might be.—Re LEVINSTEIN, LEVINSTEIN v. LEVINSTEIN, [1921] 2 Ch. 251; 91 L. The bill having been dishonoured on presentation, was retained by the London agency, which debited the German office with the amount, & filed a letter, which owing to war conditions could not be sent, to the German office intimating the circumstances. 215g. —— —— —— ——.]—Under the trusts of a marriage settlement of 1903 & in the events that had happened certain infant children, German nationals, were on Jan. 10, 1920, when the Peace Treaty came into operation, entitled contingently on attaining twenty-one or marrying to an annuity of £150 a year. If neither infant attained a vested interest the annuity passed to the husband, also a German national. The annuity was secured by the covenant of the wife's parents with the trustees, all British subjects, & was payable during the lives of the surviving covenantor & the surviving child, but the trustees were not to be liable for any loss occasioned by their neglect to enforce the covenant. The infants' contingent title accrued in possession on the wife's death on July 17, 1918, but the trustees had not enforced the payment of any instalment since then. The custodian having claimed the annuity, the trustees submitted the matter to the ct. The custodian had not obtained a vesting order:—Held: both the arrears & the contingent future instalments payable after Jan. 10, 1920, were property rights or interests within Peace Treaty Order, 1919, s. 1 (xvi), &, notwithstanding the infants' personal incapacity, were caught by the charge.—Re NEUBURGER'S SETTLEMENT, FORESHEW v. PUBLIC TRUSTEE, [1923] 1 Ch. 508; 92 L. The annuity was therefore accumulated in the hands of his legal personal representative, who made the proper returns to the custodian under Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914 (c. 12), s. 3, but no vesting order was made under sect. 4. By Treaty of Peace (Austria) Order, 1920, the annuity & its accumulations were, as from July 16, 1920, charged in favour of the administrator of Austrian Property, to secure (inter alia) payment of debts owing by Austrian to British nationals:—Held: (1) the accumulations up to July 16, 1920, passed to the administrator of Austrian property; (2) the charge created by Treaty of Peace Order was not an involuntary alienation or encumbrance within the meaning of the will, so that the current annuity since July 16, 1920, was not forfeited, but was payable to the administrator of Austrian property.—Re BIEDERMANN, BEST v. WERTHEIM, [1922] 1 Ch. 31; 91 L. sh. —— Property passing to Custodian—Shares vested in Alien Property Custodian for United States.]—Certain "securities," shares, note certificates & stocks, listed & dealt in on recognised stock exchanges, & the certificates for which were held in the United States, being owned by enemy nationals, were, upon demand of the Alien Property Custodian of the United States, surrendered to him or to others for him, in 1918, under the War legislation of that country, & were subsequently transferred to him on the books of the said cos., or new certificates issued. In regard to one of the above cos. no vesting order was ever obtained by the Canadian Custodian, but as to the others vesting orders were obtained subsequent to the action by the American Custodian, namely, in 1919, but none of the "securities" were ever transferred to him nor is it in evidence that such orders were served on the cos.:—Held: (1) the beneficial ownership in or title to the securities herein was in him who held the paper, & that it is the law of the place where the paper was that determined who was the holder. The contention that certificates of securities are but evidence of ownership, is not inconsistent with the idea that an assignment & delivery of the certificates carries the title and property in the securities; (2) under the Canadian Consolidated Orders enemy property was not automatically confiscated, but the owners' enjoyment thereof was suspended until the restoration of peace, &, subject to any legislation to the contrary or anything to the contrary contained in the Treaty of Peace, such enemy was then entitled to his property, or if liquidated, to its proceeds. It was only the transfer of securities by or on behalf of an enemy that was prohibited by the publication of these Orders; (3) under the Peace Order only two classes of enemy property passed to Canada: (a) property in Canada belonging to an enemy on Jan. 10, 1920, & not in the possession or control of the Custodian, & (b) enemy property in the possession & control of the Custodian on that date; (4) there was nothing to be found in the Canadian War Measures prohibiting or avoiding the transfers of the securities in issue as made by the American Custodian; on Jan. 10, 1920, the property, right or interest in the securities mentioned & the title to the same did not belong to an enemy, & was not at that date in the control or possession of the Canadian Custodian; & the property, right or interest in such securities & the title to the same belonged to the Alien Property Custodian of the United States.—SECRETARY OF STATE OF CANADA v. ALIEN PROPERTY CUSTODIAN FOR THE UNITED STATES & TORONTO POWER CO., LTD., & SECRETARY OF STATE OF CANADA AS CUSTODIAN OF ENEMY PROPERTY v. ALIEN PROPERTY CUSTODIAN FOR THE UNITED STATES & MONTREAL, CITY OF, [1930] Ex. 215l. —— —— —— Belonging to foreign bank in liquidation.]—Pltfs. were the receivers of the Austro-Hungarian Bank appointed by the Reparations Commission under Treaty of Peace with Austria, art. 206, & entrusted with the duty of liquidating the bank for the purpose of distributing the liability on the currency notes of the bank among the several States among which the territory of the former Austro-Hungarian monarchy had been divided. Art. 249 of that Treaty provided that "subject to any contrary stipulation" in the Treaty, the British Govt. might retain & liquidate the property in this country of "nationals of the former Austrian Empire" which expression, as the ct. found, included the Austro-Hungarian Bank, & charge it with the payment of claims by British nationals in respect of (inter alia) debts due to them by Austrian nationals. By the same article Austria undertook to compensate her own nationals for the retention of & charge upon their property. Defts. were the custodian of enemy property in this country & the administrator appointed by Order in Council to liquidate the property of Austrian nationals in this country & administer the above-mentioned charge. Pltfs. claimed that art. 206 was a "contrary stipulation" within art. 249, that the property of the bank in this country was consequently not subject to the charge, & that they & not defts. were entitled to administer that property :—Held : there was no inconsistency between the two articles, which dealt with different subject matters, the only effect of art. 249 upon the liquidation under art. 206 being to replace the assets of Austrian nationals in this country by assets of equal value in Austria if the Austrian Govt. carried out its undertaking, & the action must be dismissed.—LUXARDO v. PUBLIC TRUSTEE, [1924] 2 Ch. 147; 93 L. 215m. —— —— Policy money—Payable in England.]—Pltf. co. was incorporated by special Act of the Legislature of New York, & had its central office & the bulk of its assets in New York. The co. had a branch in London, & in most of the capitals of Europe, the branch in Paris being its head office for Europe. The general manager of the London branch had no general authority to issue policies in this country. Certain life policies signed by the president & secretary of the co. & countersigned by the general manager for Europe were issued in London to German nationals before the outbreak of the war. The policies were not under seal. The policy moneys were expressed to be payable in London, but all premiums were payable either at the central office in New York or at the office where the insurance was payable & proofs of death were to be furnished at the New York office. An indorsement on the policy provided that it should be construed according to English law. In an action to determine whether the policy moneys payable under the policies in question, which had matured on or before Jan. 10, 1920, the date when the Treaty of Peace with Germany came into force, were "property, rights & interests within His Majesty's Dominions" belonging to German nationals, & as such were subject to the charge created by Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, s. 1 (xvi) :—Held : (1) there was nothing in art. 299 of s. V of the Peace Treaty, or in par. 11 of the annex thereto, to indicate that the property, rights, & interests of the assured under such contracts were to be excluded from the general charge under par. 4 of the annex to s. IV.; (2) inasmuch as a corpn. might have a dual residence, & there was evidence that pltfs. were resident both in New York & in London carrying on business in both places & in both places being subject to the jurisdiction of the cts., it was permissible & necessary to look at the terms of the contracts & to determine from them at what place the debts would be recoverable. Applying that test in the present case, the debts were recoverable in London where they were expressed to be payable, &, that being so, they were situate within His Majesty's Dominions & became subject to the charge.—NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE CO. v. PUBLIC TRUSTEE, [1924] 2 Ch. 101; 93 L. 215n. —— Share of enemy partner in firm.]—So far as English law is concerned one partner in a firm who purchases the share of an enemy partner therein during hostilities acquires no fresh right & has no fresh remedy as a result of such purchase. Such enemy's interest in the concern still falls within the category of "property, rights, & interests" subject to the charge created by Treaty of Peace Order, s. 1 (xvi) for the purpose of giving effect to art. 297, & by Treaty of Peace Orders, s. 1 (xvii) (ccc) is payable to the administrator of German property.—FRIED v. GERMAN PROPERTY ADMINISTRATOR, [1925] Ch. 757; 95 L. 215o. —— Joint decisions of Clearing Offices—Effect.]—In 1913 defts. had entered into contracts with German sellers for the purchase of a quantity of nitrate, delivery of which was to be made to defts.' agent alongside the vessel at Iquique, & payment for which was to be made in London after presentation of bills of lading. Several cargoes were shipped, but war broke out before the vessels arrived at their destination & before the bills of lading, which were made out to order, could be presented. In these circumstances defts. procured delivery to their sub-purchasers by giving an indemnity to the ships, & presumably received payment for the nitrate from their sub-purchasers. After an interval the German sellers duly notified their claim for the price of the nitrate & for interest to the German clearing office, which in turn passed it on to the British clearing office. Defts. were prepared to pay what the Germans claimed as the price of the goods, though they disputed the existence of any debt, either in the strict legal sense or in the sense in which the expression is used in Treaty of Peace, art. 296, & they disputed the claim for interest. As the Treaty only contemplated the admission of debts, & defts. were prepared to pay the amount claimed as the price of the goods, the British clearing office admitted the debt, & the principal money was cleared in 1923. At a later period the claim for interest was again put forward. This claim defts. still disputed, but the two clearing offices arrived at a joint decision that interest was payable upon the principal sum admitted by the British clearing office. Notice of the decision was conveyed to defts. in a letter dated Sept. 13, 1923. The decision took the form of an intimation that the British & German clearing offices had jointly agreed that interest in accordance with par. 22 of the annex to sect. III. of Part X. of the Treaty was payable upon the admitted debt at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum calculated from dates specified. The notice then continued as follows: "In default of a notice of appeal under r. 22 of the Rules of Procedure of the Anglo-German Mixed Arbitral Tribunal, the interest on the said sum of . . . at the rate of 5 per cent. from (the date named) to the date of crediting & advice to the German clearing office will be credited by the British clearing office to the German clearing office." No appeal was brought, &, after the expiry of the time for appealing, pltf., the controller of the British clearing office, sought to enforce this joint decision by action on the ground that a joint decision unappealed from should, on a true construction of the Peace Treaty, be regarded in the same light as if it was a foreign judgment, or the award of an arbitrator, & should, therefore, be enforced by the cts. of this country on the same principle as either a foreign judgment or an award is enforced:—Held: under Treaty of Peace, art. 296, as carried out by Treaty of Peace Act, 1919, & Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, the joint decisions of the clearing offices were not in the nature of judgments or of awards under an arbn., so as themselves to be enforceable by action, & therefore the action failed.—CLEARING OFFICE CONTROLLER v. WEIR & Co. 221a. —— —— Liability of third party to put business in funds to meet bills.]—In June, 1914, defts. by their Paris branch, drew ten bills of exchange, payable in London three months after date, on the Dresdner Bank. The Dresdner Bank accepted the bills at their London branch & received as security Russian promissory notes. Defts. provided no funds to meet the bills when they fell due &, under an arrangement between the Treasury & the Bank of England, the amount payable was discharged by the Bank of England. By 1917 the Dresdner Bank in London had repaid the sum due for principal & interest to the Bank of England. In 1918 the Board of Trade, under the above Act, ordered the business carried on by the Dresdner Bank in London to be wound up, & appointed a controller to wind up the business, with power to collect all moneys owing to the bank & to bring actions in the name of the bank:—Held: (1) the transaction was part of the "business" of the London branch of the Dresdner Bank; defts.' liability to put the Dresdner Bank in funds to meet the bills was an asset of the London branch within the above sect., even if the London branch accepted the bills on the instructions of the head office in Berlin & debited the current account of the head office with the amount paid on the bills, & defts. were liable to repay pltfs. the money paid by them to the Bank of England in respect of the bills with simple interest at 5 per cent. on each instalment from the date of payment; (2) the action by the controller in the name of the Dresdner Bank (London Agency) was not an action in the name of a branch of that bank but an action in the name of the Dresdner Bank, & the addition of the words "London Agency," being merely descriptive, did not change pltfs. from being the Dresdner Bank into something unknown to the law as a legal person.—DRESDNER BANK v. RUSSO-ASIATIC BANK, [1923] 1 Ch. 209; 92 L. 223b. — —— —— After Treaty of Peace.]—The Treaty of Peace with Germany, art. 296, which declared that enemy debts as therein defined were to be settled through clearing offices to be established after the treaty came into operation, & the annex to that article, are qualified by art. 297, & the latter article & its annex cannot be construed as limited to a confirmation of what has been done under "exceptional war measures" prior to the coming into force of the Treaty, but must be held to validate all acts & procedure done thereafter in the execution of such exceptional war measures.

Where an action was brought four months after the coming into force of the Treaty of Peace by the controller with the sanction of the Board of Trade, in the name of enemy subjects formerly carrying on business in London, to recover assets of the business alleged to be in the hands of deft.:—Held: the action was properly brought; & a motion by deft. to stay the proceeding on the ground that it was prohibited by the Treaty of Peace was dismissed.—MEYER & CO. v. FABER, [1921] 2 Ch. 226; 91 L. 223d. —— —— ——.]—At the outbreak of war in 1914, a British subject, resident in England, & three German subjects, resident in Germany, were carrying on business in partnership in London. The outbreak of war having dissolved the partnership, the British partner with the sanction of the Home Office proceeded to wind up the business. He got in a large sum of money, representing assets of the business, & discharged nearly all the liabilities, & had a balance in hand. The controller, appointed in 1918 under Trading with the Enemy Acts, 1916 (c. 105) & 1918 (c. 31), sued, in the name of the firm, the British partner for the balance of assets. Deft. contended that he had himself claims against the business, & that he was entitled to the taking of partnership accounts to ascertain those claims before paying over the assets:—Held: under the Acts, the controller had not the powers of a trustee in bkpcy., his outside powers being those of a liquidator in a voluntary winding up, & he could not therefore override the ordinary law of partnership which entitled deft. to the taking of accounts between himself & the other partners.—MEYER & CO. v. FABER

His duties are to get in the assets & discharge the liabilities of the business.

By an agreement, dated Mar. 28, 1913, H. was engaged as manager of the Newcastle branch of a German co. registered in Holland until June 30, 1918, at a salary of not less than £1,000 per annum. On Aug. 14, 1916, the Board of Trade made an order to wind up the business & appointed a controller under sect. 1 (1) of the above Act. On Aug. 31, 1916, the controller dispensed with the services of H. At that date H. had in his possession certain moneys of the business, which he claimed to retain, as against the controller, to satisfy his claim for damages for breach by the co. of the agreement :—Held : the claim was against the co., & not against the business, & H. was not entitled to retain the moneys as against the controller.—Re VULCAN COAL CO., HARRISON v. HARBOTTLE, [1922] 2 Ch. 60 ; 91 L. sl. War Measures Act, 1914 (c. 2)—What property can be vested—Trust funds—Agreement by beneficiaries as to disposition of fund.]—By the will of W., a citizen of the United States, who died in 1916 resident there, the residue of his estate was given to a trustee for the sole use & benefit of the wife & daughter, share & share alike. His daughter was married to a German national, & was residing in Germany at the time of her father's death. W.'s widow was a citizen of the United States. Early in 1917, an agreement was made by the trustee & the wife & daughter, pursuant to clause 11 of the will, by which, in effect, it was agreed that the whole of the assets in Ontario should be allocated to the widow. In May, 1919, an application was made to the ct., by the Secretary of State for Canada, for an order vesting in the custodian appointed under Consolidated Orders respecting Trading with the Enemy, 1916, one-half of the assets situated in Ontario of the estate of W., on the ground that the said half belonged to or was held or managed for or on behalf of W.'s daughter, who was an enemy. The motion was made under Consolidated Order 28, which was passed pursuant to the above Act :—Held : it was appropriate & expedient to make the order asked for.—Re WALKER (1919), 46 O. L. The costs of a motion for an order under sect. 9D (2), of the Public Trustee & of the enemy subject were allowed out of the property in the hands of the Public Trustee. During the war W. Co. sold the goods &, shortly afterwards, sold its assets to C. Co. which assumed W. Co.'s liabilities, including the liability to F. In June, 1920, C. 235a. —— —— To wind up partnership—Parties.]—At the outbreak of war three German subjects were carrying on business in London in co-partnership with F., their English partner. Under the partnership articles F. was the managing partner in London, & on the dissolution by the declaration of war he carried on the business & collected the assets with the view of liquidation. No accounts had been taken between the partners since Dec. 31, 1913. F. died in 1920, & deft. was his legal personal representative. By an order of the Board of Trade it was ordered that all the property, rights, & interests of the three German partners in the assets of the firm in respect of any claim against the English partner, or his estate, should vest in pltf., who should take all necessary proceedings to collect what might be due to the German partners. In an action by pltf. as custodian of enemy property with the object of winding up the partnership he claimed an account against deft. of all dealings between the German partners & the English partner, including all dealings with the partnership assets since the dissolution, payment of what should be found due, & an inquiry of what the partnership property consisted. The German partners were not added as pltfs. in the action :—Held : in the absence of the German partners as parties to the action no such relief as was asked could be granted, & the action failed.—PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. ELDER, [1926] Ch. 776 ; 95 L. Vesting orders were made, under which the property in England of the German bank was vested in the custodian. An order had been made, under which the business of the London agency was wound up & a controller appointed. The controller applied to the ct. to give directions under the powers conferred by sect. 5 (1) or (2) of the above Act that the debt should be paid out of the property vested in the custodian :—Held : even if the power still subsisted under those subsects. to direct such payment to persons who were not British nationals under the Treaty of Peace, such power was discretionary & the ct. would not exercise it, except in very special circumstances, but would leave such debts to be dealt with under the Order in Council to be made at the termination of the war under sect. 5 (1) of the Act.—Re NATIONAL BANK FÜR DEUTSCHLAND, Re ANGLO-AUSTRIAN BANK, [1921] 1 Ch. 284 ; 90 L. There were no German creditors, but there were some foreign creditors. Upon the trustee's application for directions :—Held : the ct. would direct the funds to be distributed according to Bkpcy. From time to time after the outbreak of the war with Germany, resolutions were passed by the directors & by the co. in general meeting declaring interim & final dividends respectively, subject in each case to a condition that as regards members of the co. resident in Germany, Austria & Turkey, the dividend should be payable only out of assets in Germany, & as regards members resident elsewhere out of assets in England. By an order made on Aug. 24, 1916, under sect. 4 (1) of the above Act, it was ordered that the right to transfer the shares held by alien enemies & to receive any dividends "now due & to accrue due thereon" vested in the custodian, & the shares were transferred into his name in due course :—Held : the resolutions, so far as they provided for payment only out of assets in Germany, were void as against the custodian, & the co. was liable out of any assets in its hands to pay him the amounts of the dividends, whether declared before or after the vesting order.—ARAMAYO FRANCKE MINES, LTD. v. PUBLIC TRUSTEE, [1922] 2 A. (2) By his will a testator, who died in 1904, bequeathed his estate upon trusts whereby the residue & the proceeds of sale thereof were to go in equal shares to his children; & he directed his trustees to retain the share of each of his daughters upon trust during the life of the daughter to pay the annual income to her for her separate use without power of anticipation & until she should do or suffer any act or thing whereby the same, if payable to her absolutely or any part thereof, might have become payable or forfeited to or vested in any other person. In the event of a forfeiture under this provision the income was given upon a discretionary trust during the remainder of the life of the daughter, & subject thereto the daughter's share was to be held in trust for her children & issue as therein mentioned. One of the testator's daughters had intermarried with a German in 1908, & had since resided in Germany. Since the coming into force of the above Act, the trustees had accumulated the income of her share, which amounted on Jan. 10, 1920, the date of the ratification of the Treaty of Peace with Germany, to about £4,000:—Held: the daughter's life interest was not determined on the coming into force of the above Act, but ceased on Jan. 10, 1920, by reason of the Treaty of Peace charge, & the accumulations of income up to that date were subject to the charge.—Re HALLENSTEIN, HALSTED v. BLANK, [1922] 1 Ch. 355; 91 L. —— Liability of custodian for super tax.]—Property belonging to an enemy which is paid to or vested in the custodian under the above Act is, pending its disposition by Order in Council after the termination of the war, removed from the control & beneficial ownership of the enemy. During the interval the beneficial ownership is in statutory suspense or abeyance, the custodian having meanwhile limited powers of dealing with the property.

When war broke out in 1914, M., an enemy within the Act, owned real estate in England & shares & securities in British cos. By orders under sect. 4 of the Act the real estate, shares & securities were vested in the custodian. The Special Comrs. for Income Tax assessed the custodian to super tax as agent or receiver for M. The custodian disputed the legality of the assessment:—Held: (1) M.'s beneficial ownership of the property having ceased on the making of the vesting orders, the profits & gains received by the custodian were received by him in respect of M., but did not in his hands belong to M.; he did not receive or hold them as agent or receiver or trustee for M. within 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 41, &, therefore, he was not liable to be assessed to super tax; (2) as M. could not, after the war, ask to receive back the property except on the footing that a sum equal to the amount of super tax which, but for the war, he would have been liable to pay was paid, the custodian must, under the discretion given to the ct. by sect. 5 (1) of the Act of 1914, pay that sum to the Comrs. as analogous to payment of a debt under sect. 5 (2).—Re MÜNSTER, [1920] 1 Ch. 268; 89 L. 389a. —— What amounts to " assignment "—Abandonment by enemy insured to neutral insurer.]—In 1916 a firm in Germany despatched to a firm in Lima, both consignors & consignees being at that date enemies within the meaning of the Trading with the Enemy Acts, a parcel of diamonds by a Dutch steamship sailing from Amsterdam, the diamonds being insured against war and other risks with a Swiss insurance co. The British authorities, acting under the Reprisals Order of Mar. 11, 1915, required the Dutch vessel to put in to Kirkwall, where her cargo was examined, & the diamonds being found they were in due course placed in the custody of the Marshal of the Prize Ct., which, in Feb. 1918, ordered their detention & sale. After that order was made, but before the sale was carried out, the assured gave notice of abandonment of the diamonds & ceded all their rights therein to the insurance co., which accepted the notice & paid the assured as for a total loss. In 1919 the diamonds were sold, & the proceeds were ordered by the Prize Ct. to be handed to the predecessor in title of the Administrator of German property to be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles & the Treaty of Peace Order, 1919. The Swiss insurance co. claiming that as a result of the abandonment to them by the assured the diamonds became their property, now sued the Administrator of German Property to recover the proceeds of the sale :—Held : the action was not maintainable, inasmuch as (1) the notice of abandonment & its acceptance constituted an " assignment " within " Act B.," s. 6 (1) ; (2) the proceeds of sale of the diamonds constituted a " chose in action " within the same sub-sect. ; & (3) the Administrator of German Property, as representing the Crown, was entitled to rely on the provisions of that sub-sect. as precluding the insurance co. from recovering.—ALLGEMEINE VERSICHERUNGS-GESELLSCHAFT HELVETIA v. GERMAN PROPERTY ADMINISTRATOR, [1931] 1 K. The diamonds were returned to England by the postal authorities & were seized in the Postal Censor's office in Nov. 1917. The letter contained an enclosure signed by the Austrian firm addressed to B. amounting to a notice of assignment of the debt. Defts were a firm of merchants, British subjects, carrying on business in Bombay. On June 24, 1914, A., a German subject, drew a bill of exchange upon defts. in favour of pltfs. The bill purported to be drawn upon defts. against fifty bales of goods per a German steamer. The bill was accepted by defts. on July 20, 1914, payable at the office of pltfs. in Bombay. The steamer reached Bombay just before the outbreak of war, & in order to evade capture left Bombay & took shelter in a neutral port. The bill was presented for payment on the due date with the shipping documents attached but was dishonoured by non-payment. Pltfs. filed a suit on Sept. 30, 1915, to recover the amount due on the bill :—Held : pltfs. were entitled to succeed, as by the above Proclamation the consignees were permitted to take delivery of goods from enemy ships in neutral ports.—MOTISHAW & CO. v. MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA (1916), I. 402a. ——.]—Pltf. was a British subject carrying on business as an exporter of Manchester goods to Turkey. At the outbreak of war between Great Britain & Turkey deft. bank, a Turkish subject, was the holder of sight bills for the invoice amount in sterling of goods consigned by pltf. to Beyrout, which had arrived there shortly before the outbreak of war, & were subsequently delivered to the customers by deft. bank against payment in piastres. At the conclusion of the war deft. bank claimed the right to pay to pltf. an amount in sterling representing the then value of the piastres which they had received in payment for the goods. Pltf. claimed to be paid the sterling amount of the bills, or, in the alternative, damages for their conversion :—Held : (1) as the bank in Beyrout accepted the payment in lawful money from the Syrian merchant & handed over the goods, it constituted itself, as in a question with the drawer, debtor for the sterling amount on the face of the bill ; (2) it was not every contract that was abrogated by the war ; it was only a contract which was still executory & which for its execution required intercourse between the British subject & the enemy, & as the contract had been partially carried out, the bills had been indorsed, & the bank had been handed them together with the indorsed bills of lading, from that a subsidiary contract arose, namely, that on payment of the bills the shipping documents should be handed over, to execute which no intercourse between a British subject & the enemy was necessary ; & the bank was entitled to do what it did, & there could be no question of conversion, & having constituted themselves debtors in sterling, in sterling they must pay. —OTTOMAN BANK v. JEBARA, [1928] A. 405a. —— —— ——.]—For many years there existed in Germany works for the manufacture of dyestuffs (Farbenfabriken), belonging to a German concern which carried on business in England through agents. In 1878 the agents were a partnership firm consisting of A. & two other persons. In 1895 A. was the sole partner. In that year a limited co. was formed & registered in England, & in 1898 its name was changed to B. Co. Its original capital was £5,000, divided into 500 shares of £10 each of which A. held five shares & the German concern 470. In 1905 the capital was increased to £25,000 by the issue of 2,000 new shares fully

402 iv. —— —— Repayment of instalments.]—In Apr., 1914, the A. co. contracted to construct machinery for the B. co. by Dec. 31, 1914. Progress payments were made by the B. co., but none of the machinery was ever delivered. After the commencement of the war, an order was, on Nov. 13, 1914, made under Trading with the Enemy Act, 1914, s. 8, appointing C. controller of the B. co., & on June 13, 1918, under Trading with the Enemy Act, 1914-1916, s. 9B, requiring the B. co. to be wound up, & appointing C. controller. None of the goods had at that time been delivered. Thereafter the goods were completed & sold in Great Britain at an enhanced price. Third parties having obtained a decree against the purchasers of the goods arrested money in the hands of the sellers of the goods :—Held : (1) the contract was dissolved by the outbreak of war ; (2) the sum paid to account of the price of the goods belonged to the buyers & was validly arrested in the hands of the sellers.—DAVIS & PRIMROSE, LTD. v. CLYDE SHIPBUILDING & ENGINEERING CO., LTD. paid, & in 1909 it was increased to £100,000, by the issue of 7,500 like shares. At the times material the German concern held 9,912 shares & A. twenty shares. By an agreement dated in 1910 between the German concern & B. Co., the district of the German concern was defined as the whole world outside the United Kingdom with the Channel Islands & the Isle of Man, & the district of B. Co. as the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands & the Isle of Man. The German concern bound itself not to import goods into B. Co.'s district except for the purposes of B. Co., & B. Co. bound itself not to import into the German concern's district except for the purposes of the German concern. By an agreement, dated in 1912, between the same parties & operative for seven years, the German concern bound itself to sell to B. Co. & to no one else in the United Kingdom for sale in the United Kingdom anilines & chemicals manufactured by the German concern, & B. Co. bound itself to buy from the German concern & from no other manufacturer such dyestuffs. By unwritten agreement B. Co. was bound from its inception to import only from the German concern. From the time of the registration of B. Co. A.'s firm ceased to act as agents for the German concern. B. Co. sold not in the name of the German concern, but in its own name, & as a principal; but it announced to the world on its office windows, & to its customers on notepaper & other documents & by books, catalogues & samples, that it was the sole importer in England of the manufactures of the German concern. It was thus brought home to the customers that they were buying the produce of the German concern as before. The new régime was in effect a continuation of the agency though legally the agency had ceased. The business of B. Co. was conducted by A. & another director, both resident in England. The German concern supplied them with lists of prices to be charged by the German concern to B. Co., B. Co. making a profit by selling to customers at a price higher than the list. If an English customer offered to buy at a price lower than the list, the German concern would reduce its price to B. Co. accordingly. The overwhelming shareholding of the German concern in B. Co. caused it to be vitally interested, as seller & buyer, in the contract between itself & B. Co. & as seller in the contract between B. Co. & its customer. Down to the outbreak of war between England & Germany on Aug. 4, 1914, the control of B. Co., its business, affairs & acts, were in the hands of the German concern. On Apr. 1, 1914, B. Co. entered into a contract with a British firm for a supply to the firm of dyestuffs, identified by letters & numbers as the manufacture of the German concern or of other German manufacturers, of which samples from Germany were in the possession of the British firm. It was provided that any duties imposed by the British Govt. on the goods should be paid by the British firm or the price should be advanced accordingly. It was further provided that deliveries or orders off the contract might be suspended by either party if any contingency should arise beyond the control of the parties, such as fire, accidents, war, strikes, or the like. The contract covered a period unexpired at the outbreak of war. At that date quantities of dyestuffs remained undelivered & were never afterwards delivered. An order was made by the Board of Trade, under Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1916 (c. 105), s. 1, for the winding up of the business of B. Co., & a controller appointed. In the winding up the British firm claimed damages for breach of contract in the non-fulfilment of deliveries. The controller resisted the claim on the grounds: (a) that the contract was dissolved at the outbreak of war, because B. Co. was an enemy or of enemy character, because the parties contracted on the footing that the goods should come from Germany, & because continued existence or performance of the contract would involve intercourse with, or tend to assist the enemy; (b) that owing to the suspension clause no right to damages had yet arisen; (c) that the object of the contract had been frustrated, because the period of suspension was indefinite & beyond the contemplation of the parties, because performance of the contract was prevented by Govt. action or embargo, & because the basis of the contract was that the importation of the goods to be supplied should continue to be possible & by reason of war it was rendered impossible. On application to the ct. by the controller for directions whether the claim should be admitted as a debt due from B. Co.:—Held: (1) at the date of the outbreak of war B. Co. assumed enemy character, &, accordingly, the contract became dissolved by the outbreak of war as being a current contract entered into with a co. which eo instanti assumed enemy character; (2) the abrogation of the contract by outbreak of war being founded on public policy, the presence of a suspension clause in the event of war did not assist the claimant, & if "war" in the clause included war between England & Germany the clause was void as against public policy, & the claim must be rejected; (3) assuming that B. Co. had not assumed enemy character at the outbreak of war, the claim must fail on the following grounds: that, the contract being for the supply of goods to be obtained from Germany, further performance on the outbreak of war involved intercourse with the enemy & became illegal accordingly; that, the contracts having been made on the basis that the existing commercial conditions would continue & that the basis having ceased to exist by outbreak of war between England & Germany, the commercial object of the contract had been frustrated, & the contract was dissolved at the outbreak of war; (4) the suspension clause was not intended by the parties to apply to war between England & Germany; (5) the doctrine of frustration applied to contracts for the sale of unascertained goods.—Re BADISCHE CO., LTD., Re BAYER CO., LTD., Re GRIESHEIM ELEKTRON, LTD., Re KALLE & CO., LTD., Re BERLIN ANILINE CO., LTD., Re MEISTER LUCIUS & BRUNING, LTD., [1921] 2 Ch. 331; 91 L. Appit.'s visit to India was extended to a period of four years, & he returned to Natal in Apr. 1915:—Held: applt.'s visit to India was for a special or temporary purpose; the home in Natal continued to be his place of permanent abode, & he was domiciled in Natal within s. 30 of the above Act.—KAJEE v. IMMIGRANTS' APPEAL BOARD (1916), 37 N. S. had entered the Transvaal in 1907 & had, thereafter, acquired a domicile of choice in the Tranvaal, but in 1919 had returned to India, & had since not been in the Union. Save that there was evidence that S. was undergoing medical treatment in India, there was no explanation of his long stay there. He had shares to the value of £4,000 in a business in the Transvaal but had apparently never taken any active part in the business. Applt., aged 12, arrived in the Union & claimed a right to enter the Union under Act 22 of 1913, s. 5 (g). On appeal from a judgment of a Provincial Div. in a case stated by the Immigrants Appeal

(2) A flat let on a seven years' lease would not constitute "premises" within the above Order of 1920, art. 6, but that art. does not apply to rooms in a leasehold house let unfurnished on weekly tenancies, there being a manager of the house employed by the lessee whose duties include cleaning the common stairs, ways & places, the maintenance of electric light, & so on.—RODDA v. GODFREY (1926), 95 L. Apart from the laundry business resp. continued to be known as Karel Kollross, & he was registered in that name as the proprietor of the Widmore Laundry under Registration of Business Names Act, 1916 (c. 58). An information having been preferred against resp. for using the name Widmore Laundry, being a name other than that by which he was ordinarily known on Aug. 4, 1914, contrary to sect. 7 of the Act of 1919, the justices dismissed the information:—Held: the justices were right, as resp. had committed no offence against sect. 7 (1), by taking over an old-established business with a pre-war name & continuing to carry it on under that name.—BRUNNING v. KOLLROSS, [1923] 1 K. In 1919 he was convicted under reg. 14h of the above regulations, for that, not being a natural-born British subject, he used a name other than that by which he was ordinarily known at the beginning of the war. He contended that reg. 14h was ultra vires, on the ground that it was not competent by Order in Council, issued under Defence of the Realm Act, 1914 (c. 8), to deprive him of any rights, powers, or privileges which were not at the same time taken away from all British subjects; & that the regulations purported to override an Act of Parliament, although there was no power under the Act of 1914 to do so :—Held : reg. 14h was not ultra vires because it discriminated between naturalised & natural-born British subjects.

n ii. ——— ———.]—A municipality passed a bye-law providing that all animals should be allowed to run at large in the municipality with certain exceptions & except between certain dates. Another bye-law prescribed what should constitute a lawful fence. Nothing was said as to what should be the effect of a lawful fence, & no bye-law was passed for the purposes of Municipal Act, Man., s. 602 (d) :— Held : the effect of the first-mentioned bye-law was to permit cattle, other than those excepted in it, to run at large between certain dates, & in this it ousted the common law liability of the owner of the cattle for damages caused by them when so running at large, & such damages were not recoverable even if the land where the damage was done was surrounded by a lawful fence.

(2) The bye-law also provided that nothing therein contained should prevent the owner of any lands trespassed upon or of any property destroyed from waiving rights created by that bye-law & bringing his action in any competent ct. in consequence of any trespass :—Held : that provision gave no right of action taken away by the other bye-law provision.—JUKES v. MISKELLY, [1923] 2 D. The horse had not previously been known to be restive, & was usually quiet, & the driver was unable to say what had frightened the horse. a dog inside it. There was no evidence that the dog had a vicious propensity. When pltf., who had parked his car near deft.'s car, was walking past deft.'s car the dog, which had been barking & jumping about the car, jumped up against the window in the rear of deft.'s car, smashing a panel, whereby a glass splinter flew out & entered pltf.'s eye, with the result that pltf. lost his eye. In an action for damages for personal injuries :—Held : the danger of a piece of glass being knocked by a dog out of a small window at the back of the car, & of a splinter of glass hitting a passer-by on the pavement, was such an unlooked-for event that no reasonable man could say that a person ought to be convicted of negligence for not taking any precautions against it. Per SCRUTTON & LAWRENCE, L.JJ.—The doctrine of scienter, applicable to the liability of the owner of a dog let run in the street, was applicable also to the liability of the owner of a dog confined in a motor car.

Per GREER, L.J.—The owner of a dog might be liable to a person bitten, apart from any scienter, if he placed it in such a position & under such circumstances as rendered it likely that the dog would get excited, would lose its temper, & would cause damage to persons lawfully passing along the highway. But here deft. had tied up the dog in the way proved, had warned the children of the neighbourhood, & this warning had been expressly conveyed to pltf. Had pltf. not been so expressly warned, his Lordship stated that he did not know what his view would have been.—SYCAMORE v. LEY (1932), 147 L. T. 342, C. A.

q i. —— ——.]—Applt. kept about seventy hives of bees on a small piece of land adjoining resp.'s farm. While resps. were reaping close to the apiary, bees in great numbers attacked resps. & their horses, causing serious injuries. In an action for damages, the magistrate found as a fact that applt. was guilty of negligence ; &, further, apart from negligence, the liability of a bee-keeper was coextensive with the liability of a person keeping on his land water, wild & dangerous animals, or poisonous fumes. From this judgment deft. appealed :—Held : (1) Apiaries Act, 1927, being restrictive & not permissive, does not exempt a registered apiarist from common-law liability for injuries inflicted by his bees ; (2) applt. was guilty of negligence in keeping so many hives of bees on the boundary, & this negligence was the effective cause of the injury & damage.—ROBINS v. KENNEDY & COLUMB, [1931] N. 246a. Bull attacking cow—Bull in auction yard.]—In an action for damages arising out of an attack on a cow in an auction yard by a bull which was in charge of deft.'s servants, but otherwise unsecured :—Held : there was no presumption in law that a bull would attack a cow in such circumstances, & for pltf. to succeed it was necessary for him to prove negligence in not having anticipated a probable danger; further, if such negligence were proved, it would be no answer for deft. to set up absence of scienter.—HINCKES v. HARRIS (1921), 65 Sol. Jo. 781.

258a. Mare attacking horse—Strange mare turned into field with horse.]—Trespass to person or goods by an animal in which there is at common law a valuable property, such as horses & cattle, does not generally render its owner liable.

Deft. put a mare into a field in which there was a horse belonging to pltf. without notifying pltf. The mare kicked the horse, which had to be destroyed. No scienter was proved in deft., but it was found by the deputy county ct. judge that the propensity of horses running loose to injure one another in sport or quarrel was common knowledge : —Held : (1) the mare was not within the class of dangerous animals which the owner must keep at his peril according to the rule in Fletcher v. Rylands (see No. 195); (2) deft. was entitled to assume that the mare, being mansuetæ naturæ, was an innocent animal, &, having no notice of any fact indicating the contrary, was not under any duty towards pltf. to give notice of his intention to place the mare in the field, or to have a person on the watch or in charge of her, & on the whole deft. was not liable either for breach of an absolute duty or for negligence.—MANTON v. BROCKLEBANK, [1923] 2 K. 245 ii. —— ——.]—In an action for damages for the death of a person killed by a bull known to be dangerous allowed to be at large on the farm where deceased lived, a defence of contributory negligence cannot be supported by the fact that deceased, though knowing of the possible danger, went about her ordinary business on the farm, in the course of which she was killed.—TARASOFF v. ZIELINSKY, [1921] 2 W. 245 iii. —— ——.] — Liability attaches to the owner if, knowing of the mischievous tendencies of his dog, he neglects reasonable precautions to prevent such tendencies causing damage.

Pltf. walking in the street was passing deft.'s house, when his dog rushed out, knocked her down, & injured her. At the trial of an action for damages for her injury, the jury found that deft. knew that the dog was of a vicious disposition & assessed damages to pltf. :—Held : there was evidence to sustain the jury's finding, deft.'s wife, who was in control of the dog, having knowledge of its propensity to rush out & jump at persons passing. — NORTON v. FITZGERALD, [1928] 3 D. 246 iii. ——.]—While deft.'s servants were unloading cattle at a railway station a bullock "got wild" on the platform, rushed upon adjoining ground, was driven back, escaped through a gate, ran through the streets of the city, & injured pltf. :—Held : the bullock on emerging from the railway wagon had displayed its wild condition to deft.'s servants in such a way as to deprive them of the benefit of the doctrine of the primâ facie harmlessness of domestic animals as frequenters of the highway, & the duty of controlling it as though it belonged to the class of animals feræ naturæ had fallen on deft. & his servants.—HOWARD v. BERGIN, O'CONNOR & Co., [1925] 2 I. b i. —— Construction.]—By a contract for agistment pltf. agreed to make available certain properties for the agistment of deft.'s sheep. The terms of payment were 1½*d.* per head per week, £500 to be paid when the sheep arrived, £500 in six months, & the balance when the sheep were removed : —Held : the payment contemplated by the contract was 1½*d.* per head per week, according to the number of sheep on the properties from time to time ; the contract was one for making available the area of land agreed on for the sheep, & included the taking care of the sheep agisted at the above remuneration while they were in pltf.'s custody.—SPRING v. YOUNG, [1923] S. A. S. R. 116.—AUS.

c i. —— Whether agister liable to supply water.]—Pltf. having bought horses from deft., the latter agreed at pltf.'s request to winter them. The terms of the agreement were set out in a letter from deft. to pltf. in which deft. said : "I will winter them as usual, that is, bring them in straw 3 times a week." The horses were given no water by deft. & pltf. sued for damages, the horses being in poorer condition when he took delivery of them than they would have been had they been watered :—Held : in view of the terms of said letter & all the facts of the case, deft. was under no obligation to supply water.—RUDGE v. STAUFFER, [1929] 1 W. 344 xii. —— Loss of animals.]—Pltf. was the owner of a mare which he delivered to deft. for agistment in his paddock of 6,000 acres, which paddock was heavily timbered & covered with blackboys. After the mare had remained in the paddock for some time, pltf. requested the delivery of the mare in two months' time. Deft. made endeavours to find the mare, but only saw it on one occasion, & thereafter made many attempts to locate the mare, but without success : —Held : deft. was not liable to pltf. for the value of the mare, there being no evidence of negligence.—ROBINSON v. WATERS (1920), 22 W. A. L. R. 66.—AUS.

344 xiii. —— —— Failure to detect loss within reasonable time.]—A large number of sheep were lost, & there was evidence rendering it probable that these had been driven off the run :—

346a. —— Animal stolen—Duty of agister.]—An agister of cattle does not discharge himself of his duty as a bailee for reward by proving that they were stolen without his default, if by using reasonable diligence he could have recovered them.

If, having failed to use such diligence, he is sued for loss of the cattle, he must prove, in order to discharge himself, that such diligence would have been unavailing; it is not for the bailor to prove that it would have retrieved the loss.

A farmer accepted certain cattle for agistment. Some of them were stolen without his default. After learning that they were missing he made no effort, whether by informing the owner or the police, or otherwise, to recover them. It was doubtful whether any reasonable attempt on his part would have led to their recovery :—Held : he was liable for their loss.—COLDMAN v. HILL, [1919] 1 K. B. 443 ; 88 L. J. K. 369 xv. —— —— —— ——.]—If a hired horse is in a sound condition when taken out, & it is brought back injured, the onus of proof in a claim for damages for negligence is on deft. The hirer is bound to treat the horse with the degree of care which a person of ordinary discretion would use towards his own, but if the horse is so treated & nevertheless receives an injury the hirer is not liable in damages for such injury.—REINSETH v. CAMPBELL (1920), 52 D. 369 xvii. —— —— ——.]—Deft. hired a horse from pltf. to drive from T. to L. & return. At a distance of between six & eight miles from S., the horse fell lame in the right hind leg. Deft. drove it to S., put it in a livery stable & gave instructions to have the hoof of the right hind leg re-shod. Deft. hired another horse & continued his journey to L., a distance of over eight miles. He returned next day, took the horse out, & finding that it was not then lame, started with it on the return journey. After travelling about three miles, the horse again fell lame & kept getting a little lamer all the way to T. The journey from S. to T., a distance of twenty-two miles, took seven & one-half hours. There was no evidence as to what caused the horse's lameness. There was no evidence that there was, between the place where the horse fell lame & T. any suitable place in which the horse could have been placed & cared for, or where deft. could have hired another horse to continue the return journey : —Held : as the lameness when it first developed on the return journey was not shown to have been of a more serious nature than often happens to a horse which may nevertheless walk, or even trot slowly, fifteen to twenty miles without serious distress, deft. could not be held guilty of negligence until he had travelled a sufficient distance to satisfy himself that the lameness was increasing so as to make it dangerous to the welfare of the horse to continue the journey.—GAGNON v. LANGIS (1920), 48 N. B. R. 76.—CAN.

374 ii. —— Bill of sale granted by bailee—Rights of grantee.]—A., the owner of twenty-seven cows depasturing on his farm, agreed to lease his farm & cows to G. for a term of years, & it was agreed that G. should have the right to purchase the farm & stock at any time during the term. G. was given possession of the stock & farm. G. gave to applt. a bill of sale over the cows. A. recovered possession of his farm & cows from G., & shortly thereafter applt. seized & sold the cows under his bill of sale. Thirty-four cows were seized & sold, only nine of which were of the original herd, the balance having been bought by G. during the time he had possession of the farm. A. claimed damages for the seizure :—Held : it had not been shown that the cattle substituted by G. for those originally bailed to him had become the property of A., who was entitled to damages only in respect of the cows originally bailed.—NORFOLK CO-OPERATIVE DAIRY CO., LTD. v. ALLEN, [1924] N. Z. L. R. 136.—N.Z.

374 iii. —— Loss by bailee—Negligence.]—In an action for the value of a horse which was lost after it had been hired to deft. under an agreement whereby the latter undertook to take "good care in every way" thereof, it appeared that the horse, which was unbroken, was received by deft. & put into a pasture belonging to a neighbour of deft., & deft. went to see it every other day The pasture was surrounded by fence of two strands of wire, & the horse got out twice during the winter but was put back. It disappeared about the end of the following April. The fence was down in one place, & the evidence showed a custom among the farmers in the neighbourhood to allow horses not in use to run at large during the winter. While deft. was given the right to work the horse, it was shown that it was not customary in that locality to break horses until the spring :—Held : deft. had taken sufficiently good care of the horse & was not liable for its loss.—ZIMMERMAN v. ARCHER (1922), 63 D. 390a. —— —— Resale of horse at loss—Form of action.]—A vendor gave a warranty of sound workable condition on the sale of a horse, The warranty was fulfilled, but the purchaser wrongfully refused delivery, & returned the horse. The vendor then put it up at auction as " in dispute," & without a warranty, when it was sold for about £40 less than the contract price. In an action for the difference between the price realised at the auction & the contract price :—Held : (1) this was not the proper form of action ; (2) the action must be for damages ; (3) the conditions of the auction sale were not a test of the value of the horse, the auction being of a horse " in dispute," & without warranty, & quite different from the original contract conditions ; (4) pltf. was not entitled to more than nominal damages, as he had failed to prove his damages to be the difference between the contract price & the price realised at the auction.—MACKLIN v. NEWBURY SANITARY LAUNDRY (1919), 63 Sol. The cow calved at her proper time, but, owing to disease which appeared in her teats, her milk supply was defective : — Held : (1) the warranty applied to the period of calving, & guaranteed, against the ordinary risks of that period, that the cow's teats would then be capable of performing their function of giving milk : (2) as the disease from which the cow suffered had not been proved to be due either to negligence on pursuer's part or to external accident, the guarantee applied.— KYLE v. SIM, [1925] S. 486 ix. —— ——.]—A written contract entered into in Mar. 1928, for the sale of a stallion provided that the only "guarantee" by which the seller bound himself was that the horse was serviceably sound as a serving stallion, and it also provided that if the horse "after a fair trial on sure breeding mares" should prove not to be so sound the buyer would return it to the seller & receive another horse of equal value in exchange, but that the seller should not be bound by "the conditions of this guarantee" unless the buyer submitted a monthly report in writing showing the condition of the horse, etc., & that the contract should expire & the seller be released from any further obligation to the buyer after Apr. 1, 1929, except in the event of the death of the horse within three years. In an action, begun after Apr. 1, 1929, for the balance of the purchase-price the buyer claimed a set-off for damages for loss of service fees which he would have earned with the horse had it been as guaranteed & counter claimed for the excess of said damages over the amount of pltf.'s claim :—Held : deft.'s only remedy for the difference between the purchase-price & the actual value of the horse was that expressly agreed to in the contract, viz. the return of the horse and the taking of another in its place, said provision, however, did not affect his right to sue for other damages, such as loss of service fees, which he had suffered up to Apr. 1, 1929, through the breach of the guarantee, but that his failure to submit the monthly report provided for in the contract would preclude him from recovering said other damages, & the trial judge's conclusion that there had been a reasonable compliance with that requirement could not be sustained.—HEAD v. LINTON, [1930] 2 W. It was subsequently established that they died of arsenic poison. An action against deft. railway co. for negligence was dismissed, as there was no evidence connecting the cause of injury with any alleged negligence. A race horse, exceeding £50 in value, was delivered to the co. for transit by the sender's groom, who informed the booking clerk that he had got "a very valuable 'chaser, worth about £1,000," a figure arrived at by the groom himself from casual gossip. The clerk gave the groom the co.'s form of "consignment note & waybill" for live stock, & the groom filled it in for carriage at the ordinary rate, & signed it, with full knowledge of its contents. The horse having been injured in transit :—Held : (1) the above conditions were not unreasonable ; (2) the contract of carriage, which was signed by the groom under a direction by his employer that the horse was to be carried at the ordinary rate, exempted the co. from liability for any greater amount than £50 ; (3) in order to make the co. liable for the full value of the horse, the declaration of value

The magistrate found that the charge was proved & dismissed it under the Probation of Offenders Act, 1907 (c. 17), ordering applt. to pay the costs. The birds were lawfully caught in Ireland on or immediately before Dec. 3, 1918, &, after being kept there for upwards of a month to enable them to recover their condition, & travel safely, were sent to applt. in London by post. They were found in applt.'s possession in a wild & terrified state on Jan. 15, 1919:—Held: the magistrate was justified in taking into consideration all the circumstances of the case, including the condition of the birds when exposed for sale & the fact that they had to be kept in Ireland for some time in order to endure the journey & arrive alive, & also the length of the journey, in order to arrive at the conclusion that the birds were recently taken.—HARRIS v. LUCAS, [1919] 2 K. si. —— Train run in contravention of Lord's Day Act.]—Pltf. shipped goods, including horses, by defts.' line, & signed a special contract providing that defts. should not be liable for any loss or damages in respect of the live stock by reason of injury except such as might arise from a collision, & should in no case be responsible for any amount exceeding certain small sums named. Pltf. accompanied his goods, & the train was lawfully proceeding on a Sunday, notwithstanding the Lord's Day Act, when a collision occurred with one of defts.' trains, which was being run unlawfully because in contravention of that Act, & some of the horses & other goods of pltf. were destroyed or damaged. Pltf. sued in tort for the amount of his loss, claiming much more than the limited amounts stated in the special contract. Defts. set up the special contract:—Held: the provision of the contract limiting the liability of defts. in the case of a collision to a stated sum did not sustain the defence, because that provision must be taken not to have contemplated a collision occurring by reason of the breach of a statute distinctly prohibiting & making unlawful the act which caused the collision.—RISE v. CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. from two greyhounds, held in leash by G., & that the greyhounds having been taken thirty or forty yards away, the rabbit had been thrown on the ground, where it had remained, only hopping a couple of yards when flicked by a hat. The magistrate held that there was no cruel ill-treatment within the sect.; that what had been done by resps. was ordinary coursing & so protected by sect. 1 (3) (b), & that there was no evidence of the rabbit having been liberated in an injured, mutilated, or exhausted condition. 694a. Compensation—On commercial basis of valuation—Failure to object—Valuation binding.]—By Diseases of Animals Act, 1894 (c. 57), s. 15 (2), "The Board shall for animals slaughtered under this section pay compensation as follows: (i) Where the animal slaughtered was affected with foot-&-mouth disease the compensation shall be the value of the animal immediately before it became so affected. (ii) In every other case the compensation shall be the value of the animal immediately before it was slaughtered."

Pltf. was the owner of a herd of pedigree Friesian cattle which became infected with foot-&-mouth disease, & the Minister of Agriculture & Fisheries provisionally decided that it was not a case for slaughter, but was a case for isolation which would have caused expense to pltf. together with possible risk of losing his stock. Subsequently, however, after certain conversations between the Govt. inspector & pltf. the Minister decided to have the cattle valued & slaughtered. The cattle were valued on behalf of the Minister on a commercial & not a pedigree basis at £993, & notice of this valuation was given to pltf. & he signed the valuation form. The cattle were accordingly slaughtered on the following day & pltf. was paid the sum of £993. Pltf. did not give within 14 days, as required by clause 39 of Animals (Transit & General) Order, 1912, a counter-notice that he disputed the valuation. Afterwards pltf. claimed from the Minister the difference between the £993 & the pedigree value. The latter was agreed at the trial to be £2,162. The claim was based (inter alia) on the provision in s. 15 (2) that "the value" of the slaughtered animals should be paid as compensation:—Held: as pltf. & the Minister had agreed that the valuation should be on a commercial basis, the agreement was binding & the claim of pltf. failed.—BLIGH v. MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE & FISHERIES (1931), 47 T. 705a. Burden of proof—Diseases of Animals Act, 1894 (c. 57), ss. 4 (1), 57 (1).]—A farmer who was summoned under Diseases of Animals Act, 1894 (c. 57), s. 4, for not giving notice with all practicable speed to a constable of the fact that two of his cows were suffering from foot & mouth disease, contended before the justices that as there was no evidence that he knew before the day on which he gave notice that the animals were affected, he had discharged the onus which lay upon him under sect. 4 by giving notice on that date. The justices accepted this contention, & dismissed the summons:—Held: this contention was in direct conflict with sect. 57 of the Act, which cast on the accused the onus of proving absence of knowledge, & that the justices ought to have convicted.—WILSON v. YATES (1927), 91 J. 26a. —— Verbal agreement to grant royalties—Amount to be settled by arbitration—Refusal of grantee to arbitrate.]—In 1913 a patent was granted for "Improvements in winches for operating the rope of a duplex derrick." Between the times of the filing of the provisional & complete specifications, the patentee, under a verbal agreement, entered the service of a co. engaged in making windlasses as technical adviser & engineer draughtsman; & the co., while the patentee was in their employment, made & sold the patented windlasses. In 1919 the patentee commenced an action against the co., alleging that it was a term of the verbal agreement that, during pltf.'s service, the co. should have pltf.'s licence to make & sell windlasses under the patent, at a reasonable royalty, &, failing agreement between the parties, at such royalty as might be settled by arbn. He contended that he would have received at least 5 per cent. on the selling price of the windlasses. Defts. denied that they had agreed to accept a licence from pltf. :—Held : pltf. had proved that the agreement for a licence had been made; he was entitled to a reasonable royalty; &, as the agreement was verbal, & defts. refused to refer the matter to arbn., the matter could not go to arbn. It was directed that the matter should be referred to an official referee for inquiry & report under sect. 13 of the above Act.—FLEMING v. DOIG (J. S.) (GRIMSBY), LTD. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 57.

By clause 14, "any dispute or question arising between the committee & the practitioner . . . relating to the construction of this agreement or the rights & liabilities of the committee or the practitioner . . . hereunder shall be referred to the Comrs." By reg. 51 of the regulations, "Where under the provision of these regulations or of any agreement made between the committee & a practitioner . . . is referred, or any appeal from a decision of the committee is made to the Comrs. the Comrs. shall determine such questions or appeal in such manner as they think fit, & if in the opinion of the Comrs. a hearing is required they may authorise any two or more of the Comrs. to hear & determine such question or appeal, & any decision of the Comrs. or any of them made under this article shall be final & conclusive." A dispute having arisen under the agreement, the practitioner brought an action against the committee in respect thereof, & the committee applied under the Act of 1889, s. 4, to stay the action : —Held : the action must be stayed (PICKFORD, L.J. & SARGANT, J.) upon the ground that there was a "submission" to arbn. within the Act of 1889, s. 27 (BANKES, L.J.), upon the ground that under reg. 51 a special tribunal was constituted with special powers for determining disputes between practitioners & the committee.—CLEMENTS v. COUNTY OF DEVON INSURANCE COMMITTEE, [1918] 1 K. The policy recited the proposal & declaration " which proposal & declaration warranted to be true it is agreed shall be the basis of this contract . . . & be considered as incorporated herein, & any suppression, misrepresentation, or misstatement of fact in such written proposal & declaration shall ipso facto render this policy null & void " ; & it provided that it was a condition precedent to the recovery of any sum under the policy that the conditions indorsed thereon should be strictly observed. Condition 8 provided that the policy might be renewed from year to year but only upon condition that nothing had happened to increase the risk, & if the risk was increased by (inter alia) the assured engaging in some other occupation, then " unless notice in writing of such increased risk is given to the co. . . . & any extra premium that may be required paid . . . the policy is void & no claim can be made." By condition 11, " If any question shall arise touching this policy or the liability of the co. thereunder or the extent or nature of such liability or otherwise howsoever in connection herewith then the assured & all persons claiming through the assured may refer & shall be bound, if the co. shall so require, to refer the same to arbn. by one arbitrator to be agreed on or in default of agreement by two arbitrators & their umpire under the Act of 1889 . . . & no person shall be entitled to bring or to maintain any action or proceeding on this policy except for the sum awarded under such arbn." During the currency of the policy the assured was killed by an accident. The co. denied liability on the policy on the ground that the assured either had misstated his occupation in the proposal, or, if not, had changed his occupation for one involving increased risk of which notice as required by condition 8 had not been given to the co., & contended that the policy was therefore void, & they 164a. ——.]—By two contracts made in 1919, applt. bought from resps. a large quantity of "American Fresh Eggs." The contracts provided that in case of any dispute as to the quality or condition of the goods, the question should be referred to arbn., provided that, "such reference shall be claimed in writing within three days after the goods have been landed." It was also provided that the award in writing of any two arbitrators should be conclusive & binding on all parties, subject to the right of appeal. The goods arrived in England, & were not examined at the port of landing, but were sold by applt. to sub-purchasers. More than three days after the goods had been landed applt. wrote to resps. complaining that the goods were of inferior quality, & some time later he wrote a letter claiming a reference to arbn. Resps. did not then take the objection that the claim was out of time, but signed a submission to arbn. in respect of each contract. At the reference resps took the points that applt.'s claim was out of time, & that the goods should have been examined at the port of landing. The arbitrators awarded "that the buyer was out of time in examining & making claim on the goods, & also in claiming arbn., & that therefore his case fails." 165a. Arbitrator to be appointed within limited time.]—A ship was chartered for a voyage from R. to H. with a full cargo of linseed. The charterparty provided for the reference of all disputes to the final arbitrament of two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each of the parties, with power to appoint an umpire, & the clause continued : "Any claim must be made in writing & claimants' arbitrator appointed within three months of final discharge, & where this provision is not complied with the claim shall be deemed to be waived & absolutely barred." After the arrival of the ship at H. the charterers brought an action against the shipowners in respect of damage alleged to have been occasioned to a part of the linseed during the voyage by reason of the unseaworthiness of the ship at the commencement of the voyage. The shipowners pleaded that the charterers failed to appoint their arbitrator within three months of the discharge of the ship & that by reason thereof the action was not maintainable, &, by order of the ct., the question whether the claim in the action was barred by the arbn. clause was tried as a preliminary question of law :—Held : (1) the arbn. clause was not open to objection on the ground that it ousted the jurisdiction of the ct. ; (2) inasmuch as the claim in the action was founded upon a breach of the implied condition of seaworthiness, there being in the charterparty no express provision relating to unseaworthiness, the shipowners were not entitled to the benefit of the term in the clause restricting the time within which the action could be brought, & consequently the claim was not barred by the arbn. clause.—ATLANTIC SHIPPING & TRADING CO. v. DREYFUS (L.) & CO., [1922] 2 A. award was made in their favour, the shipowners not appearing:—Held: although the loss was caused by unseaworthiness, &, consequently, the above clause could not have been set up by the shipowners, the cargo owners were entitled in virtue of the clause to go to arbn., but only in accordance with its terms, & as they had not complied with those terms the arbitrator had no jurisdiction to make the award.—FORD (H.) & Co. v. COMPAGNIE FURNESS (FRANCE), [1922] 2 K. 165c. ——.]—Pltfs. bought from defts. a quantity of East African copra cake to be of fair average quality, sound delivered. The contract provided that "the goods are not warranted free from defect rendering same unmerchantable, which would not be apparent on reasonable examination"; that any disputes arising out of the contract should be settled by arbn.; & that notice of arbn. should be given & the arbitrator nominated in writing not later than fourteen days after the final discharge of the vessel. Pltfs. resold the copra cake to B. & Co., who resold it to dealers, & they in turn resold it to farmers, who used it for feeding cattle. The cattle fed on the cake became ill, & it was then found on analysis that the cake contained an admixture of castor beans in so large a proportion as to make it poisonous. Claims were then made by the various buyers against their sellers & by pltfs. against defts. as soon as the mischief was discovered, but this was after the expiration of fourteen days from the final discharge of the vessel. Pltfs. claimed arbn., but the arbitrator before whom the matter came held that he had no jurisdiction, as notice of arbn. was not given nor the arbitrator nominated in time. In an action by pltfs. claiming damages, it was found that it was within the contemplation of the parties that the copra cake would be used for cattle food & nothing else:—Held: the presence of the arbn. clause was not in itself a bar to the action, nor was the award, which dealt merely with the arbitrator's jurisdiction & not with the claim.—PINNOCK BROTHERS v. LEWIS & PEAT, LTD., [1923] 1 K. Before completion of discharge defts. made various payments to pltfs. on account of freight, & on final discharge pltfs. claimed that £568 was still owing for freight. Defts. admitted that £416 was still owing for freight, but they set up a counterclaim for £581 for short delivery & refused to pay the £416 until their counterclaim was met. Neither party referred the matter to arbn., & more than three months after final discharge pltfs. brought an action for £568 balance of freight & defts. counterclaimed £581 for short delivery:—Held: though pltfs. could not recover the £568, as the claim for it ought to have been taken to arbn., yet they could recover the £416 about which there had never been any dispute, but the counterclaim, as it was always in dispute, was barred by the arbn. clause.—BEDE STEAM SHIPPING CO., LTD. v. BUNGE Y BORN LIMITADA S.A. Defts moved to set aside or vary an award made:—Held: (1) under the words "all loss" there was jurisdiction to award to pltf. not only sums actually expended at the date of the award, but also a sum estimated as being necessary to make good the defects; (2) the award being within the jurisdiction conferred by the submission, & there being no error apparent on its face, it could not be questioned either on the facts or on the law.—A.-G. The contract provided for the payment by monthly instalments on the certificate of defts.' engineer at the rate of 90 per cent. of the value of the work actually executed, the remaining 10 per cent. to be treated as a retention fund, & further provided that any question arising between the parties in connection with the contract, or as to the construction or meaning of the contract, should be referred to the decision of an engineer to be agreed upon, or, failing agreement, to be nominated by the President for the time being of the Institute of Civil Engineers, & such submission should be deemed a submission to arbn. within the Act of 1889. An originating summons having been taken out by pltfs. for the determination of the question whether upon the true construction of the contract, for the purpose of the monthly payments to be made to pltfs. thereunder, the value of the work executed was to be ascertained by adding to the prices contained in the schedules a proportionate amount of the sum therein provided for "general contingencies," defts. moved for a stay of proceedings under the summons:—Held: there was a clear & definite contract between the parties that the matter in dispute should be referred to an arbitrator as being a person who possessed the necessary technical knowledge for dealing with the subject-matter of the contract; if the ct. allowed the action to proceed evidence would be necessary in order to put the ct. in a position to determine the technical meaning of the expression "general contingencies" & a number of other expressions used in the contract; the meaning of those expressions in an engineering contract would be perfectly familiar & would present no difficulty to the engineer to whom the parties had agreed to refer the decision of their disputes; the case was not one which involved a simple question of law, & pltfs. had not discharged the onus of showing that the dispute was one which ought not to be referred to arbn., & the arbn. ought to proceed.—METROPOLITAN TUNNEL & PUBLIC WORKS v. LONDON ELECTRIC RY. 629a. Discretion of court to refuse to appoint except upon terms.]—On an application under the Act of 1889, s. 5, to appoint an arbitrator the ct. has a discretion & may in a proper case refuse to make an appointment except upon terms.

A contract between British shipbuilders & foreign shipowners for the building & purchase of certain ships contained a clause referring disputes & differences to the decision of a single arbitrator in accordance with the Arbn. Act. Disputes having arisen the foreign firm duly gave notice to the British shipbuilders to appoint an arbitrator, &, on their refusal to do so, applied to the ct. under sect. 5 of the Act to appoint an arbitrator:—Held: in the case of an application for arbn. by a foreigner residing out of the jurisdiction the ct. had an absolute discretion in assenting to or refusing the application, & in the former case the ct. could attach any reasonable condition, such as making an order for security for the costs of the proceedings, to the granting of the application.—Re BJORNSTAD & OUSE SHIPPING CO., [1924] 2 K. 630a. —— —— ——.]—A contract for the sale of goods was entered into between B., the seller, & R., who, so far as appeared from the contract, were the buyers. The contract contained an arbn. clause. The goods delivered in pursuance of the contract were despatched to a foreign firm, who complained of their quality. Thereupon the foreign firm & R., who said they had merely acted as agents for that firm, claimed to have the dispute as to the quality of the goods submitted to arbn. B., while willing to go to arbn. as between himself & R., refused to assent to an arbn. to which the foreign firm were parties, maintaining that he had sold to R. as principals. R. & the foreign firm then took out a summons for the appointment of an arbitrator pursuant to the Act of 1889, s. 5:—Held: it being in dispute whether there was a submission between B. on the one hand & R. & the foreign firm on the other, there was no "matter" pending in the High Ct. as between those parties; therefore an appeal from an order for the appointment of an arbitrator was not in a matter of practice & procedure within R. 949a. ——.]—An arbitrator appointed under Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (c. 28), for the purpose of determining claims & compensation payable in respect of (inter alia) certain fixtures, hay & straw left by the tenant on his farms, & hay & straw removed by him after the determination of the tenancy, held two sittings & then gave notice that he had been waiting to be supplied with information as to the hay & straw sold off & warned the parties that if it was not supplied promptly he would have to hold another sitting. After an interval of less than a fortnight he gave further notice that he would go to the farms on a specified date "to value the hay & straw & to receive an account of the hay & straw removed." The tenant not having such an account ready & thinking that the only question to be dealt with was a valuation of the stacks of hay & straw remaining on the farm did not attend by himself or his representative, but his foreman was present to point out & give information about the stacks on the farms. While there the arbitrator, besides valuing the stacks, questioned the foreman as to the hay & straw removed. Immediately afterwards he closed the hearing & made an award in which he dealt with the claim for hay & straw removed on the basis of the foreman's evidence, which had not been tendered by either party, & was taken in the presence only of the landlord's representative. He did not deal with the question of the fixtures, but purported to reserve power to deal with them, if required : —Held : the award must be set aside as the arbitrator had been guilty of legal misconduct in taking evidence in the absence of, & without previous notice to, the tenant.—Re O'CONOR & WHITLAW'S ARBITRATION (1919), 88 L. 949c. —— Evidence immaterial.]—It is misconduct which may justify the setting aside of an award if the arbitrators hear evidence in the absence of the parties, even though the evidence so received is immaterial. It makes no difference that the arbitrators could not properly have made any other award than that which they did make, & it is quite immaterial whether the evidence wrongly admitted helped the arbitrators to a right conclusion or a wrong conclusion, & the ct. cannot inquire to what extent their minds were affected by such evidence.—ROYAL COMMISSION ON SUGAR SUPPLY v. KWIK-HOO-TONG TRADING SOCIETY (1922), 38 T. 1036a. —— —— ——.] -A contract for the sale of sugar provided that the contract was subject to the rules of the Refined Sugar Assocn. The rules required that all members of the assocn. making contracts subject to those rules should refer any disputes arising out of such contracts, including any questions of law, to the arbn. of the council of the assocn. ; & by r. 19 : " Neither buyer, seller, trustee in bkpcy., nor any other person as aforesaid shall require, nor shall they apply to the ct. to require, any arbitrators to state in the form of a special case for the opinion of the ct. any question of law arising in the reference, but such question of law shall be determined in the arbn. in manner herein directed." A dispute between the buyers & sellers was referred to the arbn. of the council. The buyers requested the arbitrators either to state their award in the form of a special case under the Act of 1889, s. 7, or alternatively to state a case for the opinion of the ct. under sect. 19 upon certain points of law arising in the reference, or to give them an opportunity of applying to the ct. for an order directing them to state a case. The arbitrators, thinking themselves precluded by r. 19, refused to comply with that request, & made their award without giving the buyers an opportunity of applying to the ct. for an order. The buyers move to set aside the award on the ground of misconduct of the arbitrators in so refusing :—Held : r. 19 & the agreement embodying it were contrary to public policy & invalid, as involving an ouster of the statutory jurisdiction of the cts. under the Arbn. Act, & the award must be set aside.—Czarnikow v. Roth, Schmidt & Co., [1922] 2 K. B. 478 ; 92 L. J. K. B. 81 ; 127 L. T. 824 ; 38 T. L. R. 797 ; 28 Com. Cas. 29, C. A.

1051a. —— Application to stay proceedings—Until security for costs given.]—The Govt. of an independent State made with a co. a contract containing an arbn. clause. An arbn. took place & was divided into two parts, the first being as to whether the Govt. had committed a breach of contract. The result of this part of the arbn. was that an award was given in favour of the co. & the Govt. was ordered to pay costs. The second part of the arbn. as to the amount of damage then began, & when the evidence had been closed the Govt. asked the arbitrator to state an advisory case for the opinion of the ct., but the arbitrator refused to do so. The Govt then issued a summons asking that the arbitrator might be ordered to state a case, & thereupon the co., applied that all further proceedings might be stayed until the Govt. (1) had paid the costs which it had been ordered to pay, & (2) had given security to answer the costs of the matter & of the arbn. :—Held : so far as concerned the summons for a case to be stated the Govt. was in the position of a pltf., & it could not rely on its foreign sovereignty, & being out of the jurisdiction must give security for the costs of the summons, but the rest of the co.'s application must stand over to be dealt with on the hearing of the summons.—DUFF DEVELOPMENT CO., LTD. v. KELANTAN GOVERNMENT (1925), 41 T. 1058a. ·.]—A special case stated by an arbitrator for the opinion of the ct. is stated under the Act of 1889, s. 19, or s. 7, according as the arbitrator does or does not retain jurisdiction in the reference. If he retains jurisdiction the case is stated under sect. 19, & no appeal lies to the Ct. of Appeal from the decision of the High Ct. upon the special case ; but if he makes his award finally, & retains no further jurisdiction in the reference, the case is stated under sect. 7 & an appeal lies from the decision of the ct.

By a submission contained in a charterparty disputes were referred to two arbitrators &, if they could not agree, to an umpire. The umpire stated for the opinion of the High Ct. a special case in which he set out the facts, decided that there had been a breach of the charterparty, & assessed damages for the breach. The award concluded with these words : " The question for the opinion of the ct. is whether upon the true construction of the charterparty & the facts stated by me the decisions at which I have arrived are correct in law. If they be correct my award is to stand, but if incorrect in any particulars I desire that the award may be referred back to me for reassessment of the damages due in accordance with the decision of the ct." :—Held : this was not a final award ; the case was, therefore, stated under sect. 19 & no appeal lay to the Ct. of Appeal. —COGSTAD (C. To save their vessels from destruction by enemy submarine, the owners cut away the trawls, which were not insured, & claimed a general average contribution against the co., of which the owners were members. The rules provided that all disputes should be settled in the first instance by a general meeting of the co., or, on appeal, by two arbitrators & an umpire, none of whom should be lawyers. The general meeting having refused the claim, the owners proceeded to arbn. under a submission which provided that "all matters in difference in reference to the said claim for a general average contribution are referred," etc. The umpire by his award ignored the claim for general average. of annual net profit & charges as therein set forth, the same percentage on the amount by which the turnover in each month should in consequence of the fire be less than the turnover for the corresponding month of the year preceding the fire as the sum or sums thereby insured should bear to the total of the turnover for the last financial year. A condition on the back of the policy provided for reference to arbn. of all differences arising out of the policy. The premises of claimants were destroyed by fire on July 22, 1913, a date within the period covered by the policy. 1822a. Question to be raised immaterial.]—(1) It is not misconduct on the part of an arbitrator or umpire, within the Act of 1889, s. 11, to refuse to state a case, under sect. 7 (b) or 19 of the Act, for the opinion of the ct. on a point of law, if his finding on a question of fact makes the question which would be raised by the case immaterial.

(2) An award is not vitiated by an error in law on the face of it, if the error is not material to the decision.—BUERGER & Co. v. BARNETT (1919), 89 L. J. K. B 161 ; 120 L. T. 570 ; 35 T. L. R. 260 ; 63 Sol. Jo. 391, D. C.

1822b. ——.]—When questions of law arise in an arbn. it is of the greatest importance that the right of the parties to obtain the assistance of the ct. at any period of the proceedings should be fully enforced, though the arbn. tribunal has not passed through all the stages of its own procedure providing for an appeal from the award. If the umpire by refusing to make his award in the form of a special case deprives the parties of the right to have questions of law, which are neither frivolous nor vexatious but are substantial, decided by the ct., he is guilty of misconduct & his award will be set aside.—Re FISCHEL & Co. & MANN & COOK, [1919] 2 K. 1825a. Disregarding statute passed after hearing but before issue of award.] — (1) Resps. to an arbn. had hired of claimant, for a certain period, a number of horses which, on the outbreak of war & before the expiry of the period, were commandeered by the War Office. He then refused to pay the hire for the full period on the ground of frustration of the adventure. At the hearing of the arbn. on June 19, 1917, claimant did not press for hire after the seizure of the horses, & on July 31, 1917, the arbitrator issued his award, giving claimant the amount due up to the date of the seizure, but not afterwards. On July 10, 1917, Courts Emergency Powers Act, 1917 (c. 25), had come into operation, but there was nothing to show whether the arbitrator was or was not aware of the Act. On a motion to set aside the award on the ground of the technical misconduct of the arbitrator in not taking the statute into consideration :—Held : whether or not the arbitrator was aware of the Act, he had applied its principles, &, consequently, there was no misconduct ; the parties were not taken by surprise, & the award was good.

(2) It has been contended that the fact that the arbitrator did not know or take cognisance of the Act, which was passed after the hearing of the arbn. & before the issue of the award, constituted misconduct. I doubt very much whether that would amount to misconduct, although possibly it might amount to surprise (A. T. LAWRENCE, J.).—OSMOND v. WOOLLEY (1917), 87 L. J. K. B. 822 ; 118 L. T. 29 ; 34 T. L. 1850a. Objection to authority of arbitrator to determine dispute.]—The owner of a timber estate sold the whole of the timber thereon to a timber co. in consideration of fully paid up shares in the co. Subsequently by policies effected in his own name with several insurance cos. he insured this timber against fire. The greater part of the timber having been destroyed by fire, he sued the insurance cos. to recover the loss, but the actions were stayed & the matter was referred to arbn. in pursuance of the conditions contained in the policies. C. was sole shareholder in the co. & was director of the co. to a large extent. The arbitrator held that claimant had no insurable interest in the goods insured & disallowed the claim :—Held : claimant having allowed the point of want of insurable interest to be raised before the arbitrator without objection, it was not open to him to call in question the authority of the arbitrator to entertain it.—MACAURA v. NORTHERN ASSURANCE Co., [1925] A. While in the present case, an arbn. as to the loss suffered by the seller of goods because of their non-acceptance by the buyer, the arbitrator was held to have erred in allowing the seller to "split" his case, yet, as he had exercised a discretion in the matter & no substantial injustice was occasioned thereby, the course adopted did not invalidate the award.—Re WOOD & MALKIN Co., LTD. An arbn. under the contract was held in Norway & an award was issued in favour of pltfs. 2580b. Power to set aside his own order.]—In an action tried by an official referee judgment was given against defts. by default. Defts. applied to the judge in chambers to set aside the judgment of the official referee & to order a new trial. The application was not made within six days after the trial before the official referee, but no objection in regard to time was taken by pltfs. before the judge in chambers. The judge referred to the official referee the application to set aside his own judgment. At the hearing of the application the official referee himself took the point that the application to set aside his judgment had not been made within six days after the trial; & he further held that, having regard to the concluding words of R. S. C., Ord. 59a, r. 3 (b), he had no jurisdiction to set aside his own judgment:—Held: (1) the objection in regard to time, not having been taken at the earliest opportunity, could not be relied upon by pltfs. on the appeal; (2) as under R. S. C., Ord. 36, r. 50, the official referee had "the same authority in the conduct of any reference or trial as a judge of the High Ct.," he had jurisdiction to set aside his own judgment, & the words "save as herein provided, no application for a new trial before a referee shall be made" at the conclusion of Ord. 59a, r. 3 (b), referred only to the procedure to be followed in appeals from referees to the Divisional Ct.—LONDON STEAMSHIP & TRADING CORPN., LTD. v. RUSSIAN VOLUNTEER FLEET (1926), 135 L. 2611a. —— Costs.]—In an action upon a contract in the High Ct. judgment was given for pltf. for an amount to be ascertained on taking an account between the parties, with costs of the action. This judgment was dated & entered on Apr. 8. The referee took the account & ascertained the amount to be £83 10*s.* & on Nov. 29 indorsed the order accordingly. On the next day & before final entry of the completed order, the judge, upon pltf.'s application, ordered the costs to be taxed on the High Ct. scale:—Held: in the circumstances the judge had jurisdiction under County Cts. Act, 1919 (c. 73), s. 11, to award costs on the High Ct. scale, for until the result of the account was ascertained the question of costs could not be finally determined.—LIGHT v. WEST (WILLIAM) & SONS, LTD., [1926] 2 K. Blake carried on in partnership the business of auctioneers & estate agents at P. & G., & in May, 1920, deft. entered their employment as an outside canvassing & negotiating clerk under a written agreement of service which provided (inter alia) that either party could terminate the employment on giving seven days' notice in writing & (clause 5) " after the termination from any cause of the employment aforesaid the clerk shall not for the term of one year carry on or be interested in carrying on the business of auctioneers & estate agents after such termination directly or indirectly assist as clerk manager or in any other capacity in the carrying on of such business within the borough of P. or in the town of G." In Sept. 1920, pltfs. duly terminated deft.'s employment, & on leaving their service he at once commenced business on his own account as an estate agent within the prohibited area, describing himself as " C. 63a. —— —— ——.]—A freehold house was knocked down to deft. as the highest bidder, but he afterwards refused to sign the contract because one of the conditions of sale required the purchaser to pay certain road-making charges. On the same day the auctioneer, as soon as he was informed of deft.'s refusal, signed the contract as deft.'s agent. In an action by the vendor for specific performance, the judge held in the circumstances the auctioneer's signature could fairly be said to be part of the transaction of sale, & there was a memorandum in writing sufficient to satisfy Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 40 :—Held : an auctioneer had authority to sign a memorandum sufficient to satisfy the Act, provided he signed it at such a time & in such circumstances that the signature could fairly be said to be part of the transaction of sale, & as the question whether this condition was satisfied was a question of fact, the judge's decision that there was a valid memorandum must be affirmed.—CHANEY v. MACLOW, [1929] 1 Ch. 461 ; 98 L. 76a. —— Entry of purchaser's name—Auctioneer's name printed on catalogue.]—Pltf. bought for £60 at an auction one of the lots, which was the property of deft., who was the auctioneer. The lot was included in the printed catalogue, the whole of which was pasted into the auctioneer's book, & after the lot in question was knocked down to pltf. deft. wrote against its description in the book the price & pltf.'s trade name. Deft.'s name was nowhere written by him in the book, but his printed name appeared on the front page of the catalogue pasted in the book. Deft. refused to hand over the goods on the ground that the lot in question had been the subject of a "knock-out" to which pltf. had been a party. In an action for breach of contract deft. pleaded that there was no memorandum signed by him within Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (c. 71), s. 4 (1) :—Held : (1) the existence of a "knock-out" did not afford any defence to the action ; (2) deft.'s printed name, having been authenticated by his writing down the price & the purchaser's name, was a sufficient signature, & there was a sufficient note or memorandum of the contract, & pltf. was entitled to recover.—COHEN v. ROCHE, [1927] 1 K. Taking into consideration the signature by deft. of the memorandum of agreement, the contradiction between his answer & his examination, & his having given an order for the deposit in his own name, & on his own agent, it is impossible to contend that he purchased as the agent of pltf. Part V.—Deposit.

171a. Failure to require deposit—Whether breach of contract with vendor.]—Pltfs. entrusted to defts., who were auctioneers, a suit of armour for sale by auction. One of the conditions of sale was that the buyer should pay down 10*s.* in the £ or more if required in part payment of the purchase-money, in default of which the lot might be put up again & resold. By another condition, on the failure of a buyer to comply with any of the conditions, the money deposited in part payment was to be forfeited. One B., who had previously bought for an American millionaire, bid at the auction & the armour was knocked down to him. The auctioneers did not ask B. for a deposit, as they assumed that he was acting for the millionaire for whom he had acted before. The millionaire afterwards repudiated B.'s authority, & B., when asked to take the armour, could not pay for it. Consequently the sale was not carried out. In an action by the sellers against the auctioneers for breach of contract to procure the buyer to pay the deposit:—Held: there was no ngeligence or breach of duty on the part of the auctioneers in exercising their judgment, in the circumstances, by not enforcing the conditions of sale as to a deposit, &, since on the evidence the armour would not have been sold if it had been put up again, there were no damages, & the action failed.—CYRIL ANRADE, LTD. v. SOTHEBY & CO. (1931), 47 T. L. R. 244; 75 Sol. Jo. 120.

191a. —— —— Order for repayment under Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 49.]—Leasehold shops described in the particulars of sale as "Valuable business premises" were put up for sale by auction, subject to special conditions of sale & also to the National Conditions of Sale, by one of which, namely, the sixth, it was stipulated that the leases or copies thereof might be examined at the office of the vendors' solicitors before the sale & that the purchaser, whether or not he inspected the same, should be deemed to have bought with notice of the contents thereof. Deft. only became aware of the sale on the day when it was held &, having on that day been supplied by the auctioneers with the particulars & special conditions, but not with the National Conditions, & relying upon the truth of the description in the particulars, he bid at the sale and was declared to be the highest bidder thereat. He then signed the usual form of memorandum to the effect above stated & paid a deposit to the auctioneers. In the course of investigating the title it came to deft.'s knowledge for the first time that the leases under which the properties were held were subject to covenants which prohibited any other trade or business than that of a ladies' outfitter, fancy draper & manufacturer of ladies' clothing from being carried on upon the properties. In consequence of the existence of those restrictive covenants & the failure of pltfs. to procure their removal or the licence of the lessors to use the properties for the purposes of any business, deft. refused to complete the purchase. In an action by the vendors for specific performance in which deft. counterclaimed rescission of the contract & to recover his deposit:—Held: (1) a shop which could be used for one purpose only was not fairly described as "valuable business premises"; & (2) such a misleading representation by pltfs. in their particulars of sale disentitled them, notwithstanding the sixth condition, to the assistance of the ct. to compel deft., who purchased in reliance upon the truth of such representation, to specifically perform his part of a contract for a consideration different from that which he was led to expect. The action was dismissed; & deft. was declared to be entitled to give a valid receipt to the auctioneers for the deposit.—CHARLES HUNT, LTD. v. PALMER, [1931] 2 Ch. 287; 100 L. J. Ch. 356; 145 L. —Lot not resold.]—Pltf. instructed defts. to sell his household furniture by public auction for cash without reserve. At the auction a suite of furniture was put up for sale, & after some bidding was knocked down to B. for £9 5*s.* B. went away, ostensibly to get the money, but did not return, & she could not be traced subsequently. The furniture was not removed & defts. asked pltf. what they should do with it, but he refused to give any directions as to its disposal. Pltf. then sued defts. for £9 5*s.*, the price of goods sold & delivered or, alternatively, as damages for negligence:—Held: the first claim could not be sustained in law & there had been no negligence on the part of defts.—ASHENDEN & CO. v. DORNEY, [1930] W. 280a. —— Option to resell on purchaser's default.]—Goods were put up for sale by auction, the conditions of sale printed on the auctioneers' catalogue providing : " The lot to be taken away & paid for the day after sale," & " upon failure of complying with the above conditions all lots uncleared within the time aforesaid shall be resold." A purchaser, through his own negligence, bid for a lot for which he had not intended to bid, & the lot was knocked down to him. He afterwards endeavoured to persuade the auctioneers to put up the lot for sale again, but they declined. Upon his refusing to pay, an action for the purchase price was brought by the auctioneers, & the purchaser contended that under the conditions of sale it was obligatory upon the auctioneers to resell the lot in question, & that he could be charged only with any deficiency upon resale :—Held : the words " all lots uncleared shall be resold " did not impose any obligation upon the auctioneers, but merely conferred upon them an option of reselling at their discretion, & the auctioneers were entitled to recover the full price at which the lot was knocked down to the purchaser.—ROBINSON, FISHER & HARDING v. BEBAR, [1927] 1 K. 301a. Non-delivery—Goods included in a lot by mistake.]—In the catalogue of a sale by auction a lot marked 103 to 109* was included, being various bundles of paper. Item 109* was a bundle which the auctioneer did not intend to be in the catalogue, & he purposed to sell it separately. It was, however, knocked down to pltf., & he paid for it, but the auctioneer refused to deliver it to him. The catalogue announced the sale as being " By order of J. S. & others." The buyer brought an action for damages against the auctioneer : —Held : the various owners of the lots not being disclosed as the principals, & there being no disclaimer by the auctioneer of personal liability, the auctioneer was personally liable for non-delivery ; & the fact that the buyer accidentally learned of the ownership of lot 109* was not material.—PAGE v. SULLY (1918), 63 Sol. sk. Person obtaining possession & control of goods without owner's consent.]—To constitute a bailment it is sufficient if the bailee, having obtained possession & control of the bailor's goods without the latter's knowledge or consent, afterwards acknowledges to the bailor that he holds them for him, & thereafter retains possession & control for him with his consent.—MAKOWER, MCBEATH & CO., PROPRIETARY, LTD. v. DALGETY & CO., LTD., [1921] V. 13 i. —— Licence to occupy floor space.]—Deft. was owner of a private garage, & rented to pltf. the right to store his motor car therein. The garage had no dividing partitions or stalls, & no particular space was assigned to pltf. Pltf. was given a key of this garage & was able to enter at any time he saw fit to do so & remove & return his car as he chose :—Held : deft. was not bailee of pltf.'s car.—LESSER v. JONES, [1920] 47 N. B. R. 318.—CAN.

14 i. —— Goods left at cloak-room—Ball organised by committee.]—The committee hired a hall, & tickets were sold. A room was provided for a cloak-room, & a caretaker of this room hired at a remuneration paid by the committee. When resp. presented his numbered ticket corresponding to the number placed on his coat it was found that another coat had been substituted for his :—Held : as regards the caretaker, there was no implied contract between him & resp. As regards the members of the committee, any contract they might make was a contract on behalf of the whole body, including resp.—CORBETT v. JAMIESON, [1923] N. Z. L. R. 374.—N.Z.

30 i. —— Cab driver & cab proprietor.]—A taxi-cab co. hired cabs to drivers under a contract which purported to create the relation of bailor & bailee as between the letter & the hirer. The letting was for a period of twenty-four hours. At the termination of the hiring the driver was to return the cab immediately to the co.'s garage in good order & condition. If he so desired the driver could use the co.'s garage telephone, uniform & greasing & inspection services. He supplied his own petrol, but had to buy it from the co. He was to keep the cab in his own personal custody & was not to allow any other person to drive it. The cab was to be used exclusively for the carriage of passengers for hire. A right to inspect the cab was reserved to the co.'s servants. The driver agreed to pay as rent for the cab a certain sum at the conclusion of the hiring, such sum being a fixed percentage of the amount earned by him as fares during the hiring, the balance belonged to the driver. He had no specific right to a renewal of the agreement; but each day he took out a cab a contract embodying the above provisions was executed by him :—Held : the contract was one of bailment & not partnership.—CHECKER TAXICAB CO. v. STONE, [1930] N. 31. —— Delivery of mineral-water bottles—Charge for detention of empties.]—Pltfs. sold mineral-water in bottles branded with their name. The course of dealing with customers was to invoice the bottles at a deposit rate of two shillings per dozen & when bottles were returned the customers were credited in full. Where bottles were not returned the customers were debited with a charge for them. pltfs. usually accepting half the deposit rate for missing bottles where a deficiency was found to exist :—Held : the transaction was in law a bailment in which bare possession of the bottles vested in the borrower, the true ownership remaining in the lender.—CANTRELL & COCHRANE v. NEESON, [1926] N. The jewellery was stolen from the safe by the night porter employed by defts., who before engaging him had obtained references from two persons by whom he had been employed, but apparently had made no inquiry as to his previous career. The first condition on the back was, "The co. will use every endeavour in taking care of all goods consigned to its charge, but will not be held responsible for loss or damage to goods stored through maintaining too high or too low a temperature in the stores, failure of machinery, buildings or plant fire, or any other cause whatsoever other than theft" :—Held : the contract meant that defenders promised to do their utmost to take care of the hops, but that, if their efforts were unsuccessful for any cause other than theft, they were not to be liable in damages.—BALLINGALL & SON v. DUNDEE ICE & COLD STORAGE CO., [1924] S. specified value deposited in the cloak-room except on certain terms, & assented to by the person taking the ticket, is not prevented from being part of the contract & from protecting the co. merely because it is unreasonable, provided that it be not so extravagant as to imply, & there is no other evidence to show, that that person's assent to it has been obtained by fraud, or so irrelevant as to be foreign to the contract.

Pltf. took his bicycle to the cloak-room at a station of deft. co. for the purpose of depositing it there, paid to the official the charge demanded, & received a ticket purporting to be a cloak-room ticket upon the face of which was legibly printed the following condition: "The co. will not be in any way responsible in respect of any article deposited the value whereof exceeds £5, unless at the time of deposit the true value & nature of the article shall have been declared, & 1*d.* per £1 sterling of the declared value be paid for each day or part of a day in addition to the ordinary cloak-room charges." The value of the bicycle exceeded £5, but pltf. made no declaration of value or additional payment. The bicycle was standing at the open door of the cloak-room, but the official told pltf. to leave it there as he would put it away. When pltf. returned to claim the bicycle it could not be found. In an action by pltf. against defts. for the value of the bicycle defts. relied upon the above condition. It was found in effect that pltf. knew that there was printing on the ticket, that he believed it contained a condition, & that defts. had done sufficient to give pltf. notice of the condition; & it was not found & there was no evidence to show that pltf.'s assent to the condition had been obtained by fraud. It was further found that owing to the negligence of the official in leaving the bicycle at the door of the cloak-room it had been stolen:—Held: (1) assuming that the condition was unreasonable which, semble, it was not, defts. were not, merely on that ground, prevented from relying upon it, inasmuch as it was not so extravagant as to imply that pltf.'s assent to it had been obtained by fraud, or so irrevelant as to be foreign to the contract; (2) defts. were protected by the condition, although the bicycle had not been deposited within the cloak-room; (3) on the above facts & findings judgment should be entered for defts.—GIBAUD v. GREAT EASTERN RY. 218a. Agreement to insure chattel—Against "all risks."]—Defts. hired a crane-barge from pltfs., one of the terms of the contract being that pltfs. would insure the crane against all risks, defts. paying the premium. Pltfs. took out a policy covering, as they thought, all risks. The crane, when proceeding to lift a load, broke away from its bedplate & fell over & was damaged. It was then found that the accident was not covered by the policy, & defts. refused to pay for the damage. In an action for breach of contract:—Held: though defts. had failed to discharge the onus which was upon them, of proving that what happened was not the result of negligence by their servants, yet, as the agreement in regard to insurance was intended to be an arrangement for the benefit of both parties, & as the accident came within the description "all risks" & defts. had stipulated that they were not to bear those risks, the action failed.—BRICE & SONS v. CHRISTIANI & NIELSEN (1928), 44 T. In case of failure to pay any of the instalments on due date, previous payments will be considered null & void, & the lorries are not considered as sold until the final payment has been received. In the order resp. agreed to pay a deposit & the balance of the purchase money by instalments & to execute applt.'s usual form of hire-purchase agreement. On the order form it was stated that all new cars were sold subject to a guarantee which was set out, which did not include a guarantee that the car was new; & that no guarantee was given with second-hand cars. Resp. also signed applt.'s usual form of hire-purchase agreement, by which the co. agreed to let & the hirer to take the car described therein, the description being similar to that in the order form, & repeated the provisions as to guarantee above referred to; & this agreement excluded any implied " warranty undertaking or agreement other than is herein set forth." The car delivered by applt. to resp. was not new :—Held : the contract between the parties was constituted by the order & the hire-purchase agreement; & that, when read together, they constituted an agreement for the sale, & not merely for the hire, of the car.—MARCUS CLARK (AUSTRALIA), LTD. v. BROWN (1928), 40 C. The hirer could become the owner of the truck on payment in full of the instalments & a rupee extra. 241 ix. ——.]—When it is clear from the agreement that the party taking the chattel, called the hirer or lessee, has to pay the full amount of consideration mentioned in the agreement, even though the payment is by instalments, & that amount is sufficient to cover the purchase price of the chattel, or when it is clear from the agreement that the hirer or lessee cannot at any time during the period mentioned in the agreement return the chattel to the other party called the owner, or lessor, & absolve himself from the obligation to make further payment, the agreement is really an agreement for sale & not for hire.

If the hirer is not bound to pay the full amount of the purchase price, or if he can terminate the hiring at any time by delivering the chattel to the other party, the agreement is in form & in substance an agreement for hire, & all that the hirer has obtained is an option to purchase.—BHIMJI v. BOMBAY TRUST CORPN., LTD. Such a contract is one of bailment of a chattel, & the warranty of fitness is of the nature implied in that form of contract. Notwithstanding that the option to return a chattel cannot be exercised until after payment of the penultimate instalment of hire, a contract of hire-purchase so expressed is not an agreement to sell.—KLOSE v. DUNCAN & FRASER, LTD., [1928] S. At a date when the hirer had paid all the instalments then due, but before he had paid the total price, he sold the piano to deft., who bonâ fide believed that the hirer was the absolute owner. The hirer having subsequently got the piano back into his own possession & having again disposed of it, but having, in the meantime, kept up the payment of the instalments, pltfs., on ascertaining the facts, claimed damages from deft. for conversion :—Held : the sale by the hirer to deft. was not ipso facto a repudiation of the hire-purchase agreement, as pltfs. had never accepted the repudiation, but it transferred whatever interest the hirer had at the time of the sale, & as pltfs. were not entitled to the possession of the piano until they elected to put an end to the agreement there was no conversion by deft.—NELSON MURDOCH & Co. v. WOOD (1921), 126 L. Pltf. did not call for his car as soon as it was repaired & deft. put it in storage, but failed to remove the water from the radiator with the consequence that it froze & damaged the car:—Held : the above special clause in the work order exonerated deft. from liability whether pltf. had read it or not.—WALDEN v. HANEY GARAGE, LTD., [1928] 1 D. A. died intestate, & an application was made by one of his next of kin for a declaration that the nomination was void, on the ground that there was a limit as to nominations by depositors under the special Act of the corpn. whose bank it was, & that, even though by later regulations the corpn. had purported to abandon this limitation, such a nomination was ultra vires the special Act & void :—Held : regulations as to nominations could be made by the corpn. under their special Act similar to those indicated in Savings Banks Act, 1887 (c. 40), with such modifications, including abolition of the maximum, as might be considered necessary ; the limit laid down could be abolished under these regulations & such abolition need not abrogate the whole matter, & the nomination by deceased was good.—Re KIMBER, VALE v. ROCKMAN, [1928] Ch. 749 ; 97 L. For the purpose of such an investment, pltf. handed to R. two cheques, one payable to cash on bearer, & the other payable to self or bearer & indorsed by pltf. R. used the money for his own purposes. Pltf. sought to recover the amount from the bank. This ct. found on the evidence : that pltf. believed, & R. intended him to believe, that R., in making the proposal, was acting as agent of the bank; that pltf. believed he was placing his money at the disposal of the bank, & R. was fully aware of this; that unrestricted discretion was committed by pltf. to R. as to the nature of the investment :—Held : the bank was not liable. C., without getting the cheque, gave up the keys to the landlord of the premises, who handed them to W. :—Held : (1) C. had failed to carry out the terms of his instructions; (2) the keys were sent to C. in his capacity as manager, & the transaction was within the scope of his authority as such; (3) the onus of proving damage was on pltf., & he had not satisfied it.—GARBER v. UNION BANK OF CANADA (1919), 46 O. The obligation of the bank is local, although after local demand & refusal to pay the bank is liable to be sued wherever it can be served. When local demand must be met by payment in a foreign currency the remedy available in an English ct. for refusal to pay is a cause of action in damages for breach of contract & not for debt.—RICHARDSON v. RICHARDSON, [1927] P. 228; 96 L. 275 va. —— —— ——.]—A deposit of money in a bank to meet a draft is not payment of the draft. The money so deposited must be appropriated by the depositor thereof to the draft. Where the bank is authorised so to appropriate the money it acts in doing so as agent of the depositor, &, if it fails to carry out its duties as such agent, the loss falls on its principal. It is possible for a bank while acting as agent of the drawer of a draft for the purpose of collecting it to act also as agent of the drawee in appropriating the money.—BRANTFORD CORDAGE CO. v. MILNE, [1925] 1 D. 275 viii. —— —— Cheque delivered to bank to be cashed.]—The fact that the holder of a cheque delivers it to a bank to be cashed does not constitute a deposit nor render the bank his debtor, & the bank has no right to set off against the proceeds of the cheque a debt owing to it by the holder.—ROYKEL v. ROYAL BANK OF CANADA, [1918] 2 W. other forged cheques. Defts. alleged that the cheque for £150,000 was obtained by a blackmailing conspiracy from one A., who was discovered by one N. with pltf.'s wife in compromising circumstances, & that the proceeds were shared between the conspirators, whom defts. alleged to include, among others, pltf., pltf.'s wife, & H. & N. Pltf. & his wife denied that they took part in any conspiracy, & pltf. said that, when he heard of the relations between his wife & A., he instructed H., who represented himself to be a solr., to take divorce proceedings, & that, when the sum of £25,000 was handed to him by H., he, pltf., passed the amount on to his wife & said that he would have nothing more to do with her, & that he learned later that A. had paid £150,000. It was to recover the difference between these two amounts that the action was brought. The jury found that there was a conspiracy to get money from A. by catching him with pltf.'s wife, but that pltf. & his wife were not parties to the conspiracy, that A. was induced to part with the money through fear, & that his parting with it was not free & voluntary:—Held: pltf. never got the property in the cheque for £150,000 & could not sue in conversion, & he had no right to sue in contract because the dealings with deft. bank were not on his behalf, & therefore he had no title to the cheque, & the action failed.—ROBINSON v. MIDLAND BANK, LTD. Applts. sued resps. to recover the aggregate amount, with interest, of specified drafts, or parts of drafts which had been thus applied; the agent was not joined as a party. Resps. alleged but did not prove that the agent had paid for grain by cheques on his private account. 387a. —— —— ——.]—For some years before 1919 one U., a merchant, had a banking account at defts.' bank. In that year he converted himself into a limited co., all the shares being allotted to himself except one, which was held by his wife. A debenture in the form of a floating charge over the assets of the co. was issued to a creditor of U. as a security for his debt. The arts. of assocn. of the co. incorporated Table A. by par. 71 of which the business of the co. is to be managed by the directors. By the arts. U. was appointed sole director. After the formation of the co. U. kept on his private banking account with defts. as before, they having notice that his business had been transferred to the co. The co. had a separate account, which was kept at another bank, but defts. had no knowledge of that fact. U., as sole director, became possessed of a number of cheques, some crossed & others uncrossed, drawn in favour of the co. He indorsed them "A.L.U., Ltd.—A.L.U. sole director," & paid them into his own account with defts. instead of paying them in to the co.'s account with the other bank. Defts., without inquiring whether the co. had a separate banking account, collected the cheques & credited U. with the proceeds, which he misappropriated. When doing so they treated him as being identical with the co., as he owned all the shares, & overlooked the materiality of the cheques being drawn in the co.'s favour & not in his. In an action brought by the co. on behalf of the debenture-holder for conversion of the cheques :—Held : (1) defts. were precluded from setting up that U., when paying the cheques in to his own account, was acting within the scope of his apparent authority as agent of the co., upon two grounds: first, that the act of an agent paying his principal's cheques into his own account was so unusual as to put them on inquiry, that they ought to have inquired whether the co. had a separate banking account, &, if it had, why the cheques were not paid in to that account, & that their failure to make that inquiry amounted to negligence; &, secondly, that U. when paying in the cheques did not purport to act as the co.'s agent, but as being himself the co., & that defts. so treated him; (2) with respect to the cheques which were crossed the omission to inquire about the co.'s banking account disentitled defts. as collecting bankers to the protection afforded by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82.

sf. Right of bank to refuse to pay.]—In order to hold a banker justified in refusing to pay a demand of his customer the customer being an exor., & drawing a cheque as exor., there must in the first place be some misapplication, some breach of trust intended by the exor., & there must in the second place be proof that the bankers are privy to the intent to make their misapplication of the trust funds. If it be shown that any personal benefit to the bankers themselves is designed or stipulated for, that circumstance above all others will most readily establish the fact that the bankers are in privity with the breach of trust that is about to be committed. —Standard Bank v. Estate van Rhyn, [1925] App. D. 266.—S. some cheques to which he had no title. Immediately on his so paying them in the bank credited him with the amounts of the cheques in their ledger, but there was no agreement between the bank & the customer that he should be allowed to draw against the cheques before they were cleared, nor did he in fact draw against them until after the bank had received the proceeds:—Held: (3) apart from any question whether the bank had notice of any defect in the customer's title, they were not holders in due course, there being no evidence that they took the cheques for value. The mere fact that bankers credit a customer with the amounts of cheques before they are cleared does not make them holders for value; in order to entitle them to that character there must have been an agreement, express or implied, that the customer should be allowed to draw against the cheques before clearance, & that agreement must have been acted upon. —UNDERWOOD (A. 391a. —— —— Cheques drawn by wife on bank manager's advice—Title of wife to balance.] —A husband, in 1908 transferred the money standing to a current account at his bank in his own name into the joint names of himself & his wife. He did not inform his wife of the joint account, & always drew cheques on the account himself. He died in Nov. 1919. The wife never drew any cheque on the account until shortly before his death, when he was in failing health & unable to attend to business. The bank manager then informed her of the joint account, & advised her to draw a cheque, which she did. The husband had also from time to time made deposits in the joint names of himself & his wife, & in Aug. 1919, consolidated them into one deposit in the joint names. The wife never knew of this deposit until after her husband's death. There was then found among his papers an envelope indorsed with the wife's initials & containing the deposit receipt & a document in which he said: "I would like this paying away at once if possible as under," with a list of names with amounts against them:—Held: the money standing to the credit of both the current account & the deposit account belonged to the wife as survivor, & the document did not raise any presumption that the husband regarded the deposit as his own property.—Re HARRISON, DAY v. HARRISON (1920), 90 L. Loss of right to repayment—Laches.]—In May, 1866, one F. deposited £6,000 with a Birmingham branch of deft. bank, upon the terms that he could withdraw the money at any time on giving fourteen days' notice, & that interest should be paid on it at the rate of 6 per cent. for the first three months, & thereafter at the current bank rate for the time being. In Aug. 1866, the bank repaid £2,500 of the £6,000 with interest due to that date, & a note of the payment was indorsed on the deposit receipt. In Nov. 1866, a further indorsement was made showing that all interest then due had been paid, but after that date there was no record of any further payment by the bank of either principal or interest & no record of any demand by F. for payment. F. died in 1893. In 1927 a relative of F. discovered the deposit receipt amongst some old papers, & sent it to the surviving exor. & trustee of F.'s will. He gave deft. bank formal notice to pay the £3,500, balance of the principal £6,000, together with interest, in fourteen days. The bank refused to pay, on the ground that it must be presumed that the deposit must have been repaid long ago. The exor. then brought this action to enforce payment, & the bank pleaded presumption of payment; & although they refused to plead Stat. Limitations, they claimed relief on the ground that F. & his representatives had been guilty of laches:—Held: although defts. could not produce evidence of repayment, the proper inference from all the circumstances was that that money must have been repaid, & the action therefore failed. Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1879 (c. 11), s. 3, makes an entry in bankers' books primâ facie evidence of an account.

409a. Assignment by order in writing to bank to pay third party sum on deposit—Unindorsed deposit receipt—Letter to assignee.]—About a year before his death, which happened in 1917, testator handed to his landlady, G., an envelope addressed to her describing it as a present to her. She was about to open it, when he took it from her hand & said he would keep it for her & locked it up in his despatch box. After testator's death there was found in his despatch box an envelope containing: (1) A deposit receipt for £500 deposited with his bank in 1914; (2) an order in writing signed by testator directing the bank to pay to G. the sum of £500 then on deposit; & (3) a letter addressed to G.: "You have been very kind to me & I desire to make some return by giving you the amount £500 now on deposit at the . . . bank as per receipt enclosed." The deposit receipt was not indorsed by testator & no notice was given to the bank of any assignment till after his death, the interest on the sum on deposit having been carried by the bank to his current account:—Held: there was a valid & complete gift to G. of the sum on deposit by way of assignment under Jud. 456a. Contract to print notes—Notes printed without authority—Liability to bank.]—Pltfs., a Portuguese bank, made with defts., who were printers, a contract which provided that defts. should print the authorised notes for the bank, the plates being left in defts.' possession & being intended to be available only for the purposes of the bank. By means of an elaborate fraud defts. were induced by an unauthorised person to print from the plates a large quantity of notes & to deliver the notes to him, & the result was that these notes were put into circulation. In consequence of the fraud pltfs. honoured a large number of the spurious notes, & on learning the facts they found it necessary to withdraw all the genuine notes of the same issue from circulation as they had, at that time, no means of distinguishing the genuine from the spurious notes. In an action for breach of contract, negligence, or conversion:—Held: it was an implied term of the contract that there was to be no use of the plates for any purpose not authorised by pltfs., & there was an absolute duty on defts. not to print or deliver notes of pltf. bank without the authority of the bank, &, even if defts. were bound only to take reasonable care to avoid such acts, defts. had, on the facts, fallen short of the standard of care required by the special nature of the business, & pltfs. were entitled to recover.—BANCO DE PORTUGAL v. WATERLOW & SONS, LTD. 456b. —— —— Measure of damages.]—A firm of printers employed by the Bank of Portugal to print a series of bank notes known as Vasco da Gama 500 escudo notes delivered to the Bank 600,000 notes which were put into circulation in Portugal. Subsequently, in breach of their contract of employment, the printers delivered to one M., the head of a band of criminals, 580,000 notes of the same type, printed from the original plates or from plates made from the same die, in the belief that he had the authority of the bank. M. & his associates introduced these false notes into Portugal & put a large number of them into circulation. The bank on discovering that unauthorised notes were in circulation issued notices withdrawing the whole of this issue of Vasco da Gama notes & undertaking, within a limited time, to exchange all notes of this type presented to the bank for other notes. The bank had an exclusive license to issue bank notes as legal tender in Portugal, but the amount of the notes to be issued was controlled by law. At all material times the currency was inconvertible. In an action by the bank against the printers for breach of contract defts. maintained (a) that the loss suffered by the bank was due to their own voluntary action in paying the unauthorised notes; (b) that the loss to the bank was limited to the cost of printing & paper in regard to the new issue:—Held: (1) the loss arose naturally from the breach of contract; (2) the proper measure of damages was the exchange value expressed in sterling of the genuine currency given in exchange for the spurious notes together with the cost of printing the genuine notes withdrawn.—BANCO DE PORTUGAL v. WATERLOW & SONS, LTD., WATERLOW & SONS, LTD. v. BANCO DE PORTUGAL, [1932] A. A. had current & deposit accounts at the bank, but her money on current account was not sufficient to meet the cheque without resort to the money on deposit. It had been the practice of the bank to allow A. to overdraw her current account so long as the overdraft was covered by her money on deposit. The bank refused payment of the cheque, not because of the state of A.'s current account, but because they doubted A.'s signature on the cheque. A. died before anything further was done:—Held: in the circumstances there had not been any appropriation or dedication of the money in the bank, or any constructive payment of the cheque; & there had been an incomplete gift inter vivos of the amount of the cheque, which gift would not be perfected by the assistance of equity.—Re SWINBURNE, SUTTON v. FEATHERLEY, [1926] Ch. 38; 95 L. Resps. collected the cheques from applts.' bank in the usual course of business. 546b. Issue of bank drafts to customer's agent—Agent without proper authority—Negligence.]—A co. instructed its bankers in writing that any two of four named persons, of whom three were directors & the fourth was an accountant in the co.'s employment, had authority to draw cheques & sign orders for payments on its behalf. The co. from time to time required drafts payable in New York to remit to creditors there. The course of business was that the accountant attended at the bank with a cheque, duly signed by two of the named persons, payable to the bankers' order for the sum for which the draft was required, but without any further document or written instructions; having filled up a requisition note giving particulars of the draft required, including the name of the payee, he was handed a draft in accordance with those particulars. In Jan. 1922, it was first discovered that on 41 out of 106 occasions upon which drafts had been so purchased since Nov. 1918, the accountant, having entered his own name in the requisition note, had obtained drafts payable to himself, & had misappropriated the proceeds, covering his fraud by false entries in the company's books. The resps. having paid the co. under a policy guaranteeing the fidelity of the accountant, sued the bankers (applts.) in respect of the loss after the date of the policy:—Held: the bankers had acted negligently in issuing the drafts without authority in accordance with the company's instructions, & were liable in damages in respect thereof; the frequent repetition of the same irregular procedure afforded no defence either by way of estoppel, ratification or otherwise.—BANK OF MONTREAL v. DOMINION GRESHAM GUARANTEE & CASUALTY CO., LTD., [1930] A. 600a. Presentment over counter—Duty of bank to pay.]—Pltfs., a partnership firm at Liverpool, sold goods to the P. Co. & drew upon the co. a bill for a large amount payable in three months in payment for the goods. The P. Co. accepted the bill payable at deft. bank at Liverpool, where they kept their account. Shortly before the bill became payable the co., who were then overdrawn at deft. bank, asked that bank to order payment of the bill & charge to the account of the co. Defts. were willing to act upon this advice, because they had an arrangement for a running overdraft with the co., & the bill was within the limits of that overdraft. When the bill became due it was brought by W., a servant of pltfs., to a partner of pltf. firm, who, at W.'s request, indorsed the bill in blank. W., instead of taking the bill to pltfs.' bank for the purpose of collection through the clearing house, presented the bill for payment over the counter to deft. bank & received the money, which he then fraudulently converted & stole. Pltfs. sued defts. to recover the amount of the bill on the grounds of negligence, money had & received, & conversion of the bill. Evidence was given at the trial that there is an almost universal custom at Liverpool that trade bills should be presented through the clearing house for payment to the bank at which they were accepted payable, but evidence was also given that presentation of such bills over the counter, though most unusual, was not irregular :—Held : deft. bank were not liable to pltfs. (1) on the ground of negligence, because no privity of contract existed between defts. & pltfs., & defts. owed no duty to pltfs. ; (2) on the ground of money had & received, because the drawing of the bill did not amount to an assignment in favour of the payee of funds of the drawee, as the acceptors had no funds to meet the bill, which was paid out of a loan by defts., & the advice to pay the bill sent by the acceptors to defts. gave no rights to pltfs. as against defts. ; (3) defts. were not liable to pltfs. for the conversion of the bill, because the bill was a negotiable instrument, & they paid it in good faith without notice of any defect in title & in accordance with the law merchant. A bank was not bound to make inquiries merely because a bill indorsed in blank or an open cheque was presented for payment over the counter. According to the law merchant such presentation, although unusual, was always recognised as due presentation, sufficient to require the bankers to pay, in the absence of very special circumstances of suspicion.—AUCHTERONI & Co. v. MIDLAND BANK, LTD., [1928] 2 K. 583 i. Dishonour by country bank—Failure to return cheque by return of post—Clearing-house rules.]—When a cheque is passed through the clearing-house in Melbourne & not returned dishonoured within the time allowed by the rules of the clearing-house for the return of dishonoured cheques, its payment to the collecting bank must on the expiration of that time be regarded as complete. Pltf. paid into his account at a country branch of deft. bank a cheque drawn upon a Melbourne branch of another bank. The cheque was passed through the Melbourne clearing-house, where, on the settlement of balances, its amount was credited to deft. bank by the bank upon which it was drawn. After the expiration of the time allowed by the rules of the clearing-house for the return of dishonoured cheques had expired, the cheque was returned dishonoured to deft. bank. Notwithstanding that the rules provided that any stale return might be rejected, deft. bank credited the bank upon which the cheque was drawn with its amount :—Held : deft. bank had, as agent for pltf., received payment of the cheque, & was therefore liable to pltf. for its amount as money had & received to his use.—RIEDELL v. COMMERCIAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA, LTD., [1931] V. 629a. —— —— Space left between name of payee & words "or order."]—Pltfs., exors. of a will, kept an exors.' account with defts., & retained a firm of solrs., Messrs. C. & P., who used to assist them in matters connected with their testator's estate. The acting member of the firm was one J. C. Pltfs. in conference with J. C. decided to invest through Messrs. J. P. & Co., stockbrokers, a sum of £5,000, part of the estate lodged on deposit with defts. J. C. accordingly drew out a form of cheque for signature by pltfs. It was in the form " Pay J. P. & Co. or order " & was drawn on pltfs.' deposit account with defts. The cheque was signed by pltfs. & left with J. C. to be posted to J. P. & Co. with instructions to invest the money. J. C., instead of posting the cheque to J. P. & Co., fraudulently inserted the words " per C. & P." in the blank space between the payees' name & the words " or order " ; he then indorsed the document with the names C. & P. & paid it so altered & indorsed into the W. Bank to the credit of a co. in which he was interested & which had an account at that bank. The document was accepted without question by the W. Bank & passed through the clearing-house, & the account of pltfs. with defts. was debited, & that of the co. with the W. Bank was credited, with the amount on the face of the document. In an action by pltfs. against defts. for conversion, negligence & breach of duty :—Held : (1) the cheque had been " materially altered " within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 64, & was avoided as between pltfs. & defts. by that sect., & therefore defts. could not rely upon sect. 60 of the Act as excusing them for paying the cheque ; (2) for the same reason defts. could not rely on sect. 80 of the Act ; (3) assuming the description of the payees, " J. P. & Co. per C. & P." to be a recognised although unusual description, the indorsement of " C. & P." without any reference to " J. P. & Co." was irregular & invalid & defts. were negligent in honouring the cheque, & for this reason also were not protected by sect. 80, or semble by sect. 60 of the Act ; (4) in leaving a blank space between the names of the payees & the words " or order " pltfs. were not guilty of any breach of duty towards defts.—SLINGSBY v. DISTRICT BANK, LTD., [1932] 1 K. 634a. —— —— Customer silent—Estoppel.]—Pltf. had an account with deft. bank, & his wife forged his signature on cheques & thereby drew out all the money left in the account, & she lent it to her sister. Pltf., on discovering the facts, did not at once inform the bank, but about nine months later, when his wife told him that she wanted more money for her sister, he stated his intention of going to the bank, & that night his wife committed suicide. Pltf. then went to the bank & told the manager about the forged cheques. In an action by pltf., claiming to be credited by deft. bank with the amount of the forged cheques, the bank pleaded (a) adoption & ratification, & (b) that pltf. was estopped by his silence from alleging that the signatures were forgeries. The tribunal of first instance found that the forged cheques were honoured through the carelessness of the bank officials. There was no evidence that pltf. had ever adopted the forged cheques as his own :—Held : ratification had no applicability to a forged signature, but pltf. was estopped from alleging the forgeries because his silence until after his wife's death had caused the bank to lose their right of action against the forger, & therefore the action failed.—GREENWOOD v. MARTINS BANK, LTD. They wished to invest a sum of £5,000 through a firm of stockbrokers, & C. accordingly prepared a cheque for that amount payable to the stockbrokers; pltfs. then signed the cheque & handed it back to C. to deal with as directed. C., however, fraudulently added to the cheque the words "per C. & P.," & then indorsed the cheque with the words "C. & P." & handed it to a branch of deft. bank to be credited to the account which a co. in which he was interested kept at that branch. The cheque was credited to that co. & was passed through the clearing house, & in due course pltfs. were debited by their own bank with the sum of £5,000. On discovering the fraud pltfs. brought this action to recover the £5,000 from defts. :—Held : the words added by C. to the cheque constituted a material alteration & rendered the cheque void under Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 64 (1). As therefore the cheque when it came into the hands of defts. was merely a piece of worthless paper no action could be brought on it, & pltfs.' claim failed. 668a. —— —— —— ——.]—M., who was secretary & managing director of pltf. co., represented that he had bought goods for them from W., & the co. drew cheques to the aggregate amount of £762 in payment on a South African bank, making them payable to W., & handing them to M. as manager that he might hand them to W. M., instead of doing so, paid the cheques with forged indorsements into his own account with deft. bank which credited him with the amounts & obtained payment from the South African bank. The cheques were signed by two directors, including M., of pltf. co. M. applied the money received from the cheques with the exception of about £272 for W., paying out of the proceeds of five cheques "to order" for £62 10*s.* each four sums of £60 from his private account to W. One cheque, dated May 27, 1918, for £97 10*s.*, which was payable to "self or order" & signed by M. & a co-director, was refused by the bank, & came back to them after such refusal with M.'s name written in after the word "self," but the alteration was not initialed by both directors, & the addition was in M.'s writing. Pltf. co. repudiated the transactions & sued the bank for damages for conversion of the cheques, or alternatively for money had & received. 687a —— —— ——.]—L., who was the chief accountant at the Bombay branch of pltf. bank, & was authorised to sign cheques on their behalf, had by a system of fraud procured the signature by another official of the branch of cheques payable to deft. bank. Those cheques were then sent to deft. bank for collection, with instructions written by L. on the bank's letter paper requesting deft. bank to place the proceeds of the cheques to the credit of a joint account which L. had opened at deft. bank in the name of himself & his wife. Those instructions having been carried out, the proceeds of the cheques were then collected by L. promptly after they had been paid in. It appeared from the account itself that it was generally in small credit until the arrival of each fraudulent cheque, & there was a failure on the part of deft. bank to make inquiries of pltf. bank as to the regularity of the transactions :—Held : (1) each cheque taken by itself was "issued," being signed & dealt with by persons having ostensible authority to sign & issue it, but the accompanying instructions, signed by L. alone, gave notice of irregularity which destroyed the "holding in due course"; (2) deft. bank were not entitled to rely on Indian Negotiable Instruments Act, s. 131, as their title as holders was defective through notice, so that they were not "true owners" within the sect.; (3) deft. bank had failed to discharge the burden of showing that they had collected without negligence. Examination of L.'s account should have put them on inquiry as to the source from which these payments were made, & pltfs. were entitled to succeed in their claim for conversion; (4) defts. could not set off the amount of the cheques repaid to pltfs. against the amount of the converted cheques.—LLOYDS BANK v. CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA & CHINA, [1929] 1 K. 687b. —— —— ——.]—One T., a solr., had from a client a power of attorney entitling T. to draw cheques on the client's banking account & to apply the moneys for the purposes of his client. T. for his own purposes fraudulently drew 15 cheques on his client's account with the B. bank, signing the cheques by using a rubber stamp which had on the upper line the name of the client & on the lower line "his attorney" & by placing his own signature between the lines. T. then paid the cheques into his own account with the M. bank, defts., with whom he had an overdraft. On discovering the facts the client brought an action against defts. for damages for conversion of the cheques, & defts. relied on Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, alleging that the cheques were crossed cheques & that they had received payment of them in good faith & without negligence. During the proceedings T.'s client died, & the proceedings were continued by the client's exors. as pltfs. It was admitted that defts. had acted in good faith :—Held : except in the case of two of the cheques defts. in presenting & receiving payment for the cheques, had converted them, & as defts. had from the form of the cheques notice as to the money not being T.'s money, they were negligent in making no inquiry as to T.'s authority to make these payments into his own account, & therefore the action succeeded.—MIDLAND BANK, LTD. v. RECKITT (1932), 48 T. 691a. —— —— Cheque payable to & indorsed by public official.]—A banker to whom a private customer hands, for collection on his account, a cheque payable to & indorsed by a public official is put upon inquiry whether the customer is entitled to the cheque, & acts negligently if he credits the customer with the proceeds of the cheque without having made any such inquiry.

The Overseas Military Forces of Canada engaged in the European war had an estates office in England authorised by the Secretary of State for the Colonies to perform in accordance with statutory conditions the duties of collecting & distributing the estates of members of these forces dying in Europe. A sergeant employed at the office misappropriated during a period of ten months thirty-two cheques of the aggregate value of about £3,900, representing money belonging to the estates of deceased soldiers. Each of the cheques was drawn payable to "The Officer in Charge, Estates Office, Canadian Overseas Military Forces," & was indorsed generally by that officer under the same description with a view to its being sent to the Paymaster-General of these forces for payment of the amount to the beneficiaries, or in some cases directly to the beneficiary, & each cheque was crossed generally. The sergeant paid the first two cheques into a branch of defts.' bank at which he had a small private account of his own & the rest of them into another branch of the bank which passed them on to the former branch. No inquiry was made at either branch whether he was entitled to the cheques, & at the former branch they were credited to his account & payment of them was received for him. In an action by the Paymaster-General against defts. for damages for conversion of the cheques :—Held : the fact that the cheques were drawn payable to & indorsed by a public official should have put the cashiers of defts. upon inquiry whether their private customer was entitled to the cheques; in crediting the cheques to him without any inquiry the cashiers of both the branches had been guilty of negligence; & therefore defts. were not protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, from liability to pltf.—ROSS v. LONDON COUNTY, WESTMINSTER & PARR'S BANK, [1919] 1 K. 691c. —— —— ——.]—In 1922 pltfs. were building ships for a firm, L. M. & P., & in connection with that business L. M. & P. sent pltfs. a crossed cheque for £8,000. That cheque was duly received at pltfs.' office & B., a director, signed a receipt form on the back of the cheque as follows: "L. & M. Shipbuilding Co. T. B. director." Another director of pltfs., J., then indorsed the cheque to the order of another co. of which B. was a director, B. & Co. Ltd. The cheque was then indorsed by B. "for & on behalf of B. & Co. T. B. director," & was paid into the account of B. & Co. at a branch of defts.; & subsequently by arrangement between defts. & himself B. drew £2,000 out of the £8,000 thus credited to B. & Co. Ltd. for his own private purposes. J. had no right to indorse the cheque to the order of B. & Co., & B. & Co. had no right to the proceeds of the cheque. In 1923 pltfs. went into liquidation, & the liquidator on examining the accounts found that the cheque for £8,000 had been misapplied, & also that other sums were owing by B. to pltfs. The liquidator thereupon proceeded by a misfeasance summons against J. & B., & upon that summons an order was made for £450 against J. & £10,450 against B. The money was not paid, & pltfs. brought an action against defts. for conversion of the £8,000 cheque :—Held : there was clear evidence of negligence on the part of defts., & Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, gave no defence to the claim.—LONDON & MONTROSE SHIPBUILDING & LTD. v. KENDALL (1920), 28 C. 691 i. What is negligence—Defective title of customer—Collection for stranger.]—A man unknown to a banker was permitted to open an account with the bank by paying in a deposit of £5 in notes & four crossed cheques for such cheques being made payable to a number or bearer & marked "bank," or "not negotiable," or "bank not negotiable." Without making any inquiry as to the man's title to the cheques the bank collected them. On the following day the man, by an open cheque, drew out almost the whole of the amount to the credit of his account, & paid in for collection four other crossed cheques, including one drawn by pltf. payable to a number or bearer to which the man who paid it in had no title. These four cheques were collected by the bank almost without inquiry :—Held : the circumstances in which the account was opened was such as to put the bank upon inquiry; the duty of inquiry extended to the transactions of the next day & in the absence of reasonable inquiry the bank was guilty of negligence.—LONDON BANK OF AUSTRALIA, LTD. v. KENDALL (1920), 28 C. S. drew & signed a cheque on pltf.'s account for £250 odd in favour of "A. or bearer"; the amount, date & payee's name was also in the handwriting of S. The cheque was crossed generally "Not negotiable." The cheque was on one of pltf.'s cheque forms. This cheque was paid by S. into his account with deft. bank a few hours after it appeared to have been signed. The teller on S. handing in the cheque, asked S. which his title was & received an assurance from S. that "it was all right." S. was well known & of good repute in the district, & had had an account with deft. bank for some time, & during the previous six months several cheques in his favour signed by him, drawn on pltf.'s account, had been paid in & not been queried. Over a year later S. drew & signed a further cheque on one of pltf.'s forms on pltf.'s account for £358 odd in favour of "V. or bearer." The cheque & transaction were similar to the other cheque except that the date, name of payee & payee & amount were not in S.'s handwriting. A similar query was made by the teller, & answered in much the same way. In the interval five directors' cheques signed by S. had been paid in payable to himself or bearer. Other than the inquiry made by the teller of S. no inquiries were made by the deft. The cheques were in fact drawn by S. without authority & the proceeds were misappropriated by him. She signed the warrant & sent it to the exor.'s solr. in pursuance of an arrangement that any warrants received by her should be sent to him for attention. The solr. paid the warrant into his own account with deft. bank, representing to the bank that it was a repayment of a loan which he said he had made to the first pltf. In an action against the bank to recover the amount:—Held: (1) although the drawer of the warrant was an official of the Bank of England on which it was drawn, yet, as he was acting as an agent of the Government, the warrant constituted a "cheque"; (2) the word "dividends" in Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 95, included interest on Government stock, & (3) as defts. had not been guilty of any negligence they were. on both grounds, protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, & the action failed.—SLINGSBY v. WESTMINSTER BANK, LTD., [1931] 1 K. 692d. —— Failure to require particulars of cheques paid in.]—Pltfs., who were members of the London Stock Exchange, had in their employment two clerks, P. & S., who, over a considerable period, stole a number of cheques which were to be paid by pltfs. to certain jobbers, & which, as is usual in transactions between members of the Stock Exchange, were made payable to the jobbers or bearer & were crossed. P. had an account at a country branch of defts., whose officials knew that he was a stockbroker's clerk, but did not know, nor did they ask, the name of his employers. S.'s wife had an account at another country branch of defts., but the officials there did not know, nor did they inquire, who or what her husband was. P. & S. paid the stolen cheques into one of defts.' City offices, where nothing was known about either or about the drawers or payees of the cheques, to be credited in the one case to P. at the country branch where he had his account, & in the other case to the account of S.'s wife. In each case when paying in the cheques at the City offices, P. & S. filled up a paying-in slip in the name of the payee, stating merely the name of the customer whose account was to be credited & the amount of the cheque. This paying-in slip the City office forwarded to the customer's branch, the cheque itself being sent direct to the Clearing House by the City office, so that the officials at the customer's branch had no opportunity of judging whether the cheque called for inquiry or not. On the frauds being discovered, pltfs. sued defts. for conversion of the cheques. At the trial evidence was given by defts. that the system by which cheques could be paid into one of their offices to be credited to a customer's account at another office had been in operation for nearly forty years by them & by other banks without untoward consequences, & they pleaded that they were protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, as having acted in good faith (this was admitted) & without negligence:—Held: (1) the system under which the cheques could be paid into one of defts.' offices to be credited to a customer's account at another branch, without furnishing the officials at the latter branch with particulars of the cheques & the names of the drawers & payees so as to enable those officials to make inquiry how the cheques came to be paid into the customer's account, was inherently defective; it could not be said that defts. had acted without negligence within sect. 82; &, consequently, they were liable to pltfs. as the true owners of the cheques; (2) defts. were negligent in that their branch managers, in opening the accounts in the name of P. & Mrs. S. respectively, had failed to make inquiry as to the name of P.'s employers & the occupation of S.; (3) Semble: neither P. nor Mrs. S. was a "customer" within the true meaning of sect. 82, inasmuch as neither had an account at the City offices into which the cheques were paid.—SAVORY (E. 756a. Credit conditional on tender of approved insurance policy—What is approved insurance policy.]—Bankers issued a letter of credit to English sellers of 100 tons of steel plates to Dutch buyers. By the terms of the letter of credit the bankers agreed to honour the sellers' draft for the amount of the purchase-money, which included freight & insurance to R., provided the draft were accompanied by an approved insurance policy covering the shipment of the goods. The sellers presented their draft accompanied by a certificate of insurance which did not contain & did not offer any means of ascertaining the full terms of the insurance. In an action by the sellers against the bankers for not honouring the draft :—Held : the certificate was not an "approved insurance policy" within the meaning of the letter of credit, & the bankers were justified in refusing to honour the draft. 756b. Irrevocable letter of credit—Payment for goods—Refusal of bank to pay invoices—Liability of bank to seller.]—Pltfs. entered into a contract with buyers in C. to manufacture & ship machinery by instalments over several months at agreed prices, but subject to a stipulation that should the cost of labour or wages increase, there should be a corresponding increase in the purchase price. The buyers were also to open a "confirmed irrevocable credit" in favour of pltfs. with a bank in this country, & to pay for each shipment as it took place. In pursuance of this arrangement defts., who were the buyers' bankers in L., wrote to pltfs. stating that they would pay bills drawn on the buyers to the extent of £70,000, the bills to be accompanied by documents & to be received before Apr. 14, 1921, "this to be considered a confirmed irrevocable credit." Pltfs. shipped two instalments under the contract & received payment under the letter of credit. The buyers then found that the invoices included an increase in the purchase price on account of wages & material, & instructed defts. only to pay so much of the next invoices as represented the original prices. Defts. accordingly refused to pay the bill presented on the next shipment & pltfs. then cancelled the contract, claiming damages from defts. as on a repudiation by the buyers :—Held : the credit being irrevocable, the refusal of defts. to take & pay for the particular bills on presentation of the proper documents constituted a repudiation of the contract as a whole, & pltfs. were entitled to damages so reckoned. The basis of this form of banking facility is that the buyer is taken, as between himself & the banker, to accept the seller's invoices as correct. sheets from pltfs., a firm in L., instructed defts. to open a credit in favour of pltfs. Defts. accordingly wrote a letter dated June 14, 1920, to pltfs. informing them of their instructions & adding that their letter "is merely an advice of the opening of the above-mentioned credit, & is not a confirmation of the same." On July 20, 1920, pltfs. shipped part of the goods to the buyers & were paid the agreed price by defts. on presentation of the stipulated documents which included bills of lading & a draft on defts. On Aug. 4, 1920, defts. were instructed by cable that the credit was withdrawn. On Sept. 30, 1920, pltfs., not having had notice of the withdrawal of the credit, shipped the balance of the goods to the buyers, but defts. refused payment of a draft for the price. Pltfs. brought an action against defts. for recovery of the balance of the credit, alleging (inter alia) that it was the duty of defts. to give to pltfs. reasonable notice that the credit had been withdrawn. There was evidence that it was the practice of defts. at once to inform persons to whom revocable credit was given of the withdrawal of the credit, but that in this instance, owing to pressure of business, they had forgotten to do so. Among the documents tendered to defts. on the application for payment on the second occasion was a bill of lading which defts. alleged was out of order, but which, according to pltfs., was in exactly the same terms as the former bill of lading accepted by defts. without objection:—Held: (1) a letter in the form of that written by defts. on June 14, 1920, intimated to the person in whose favour the credit was opened that he might find that the credit was revoked at any time; (2) there was no legal obligation on defts. to give notice of the revocation of the credit; (3) the giving of notice was an act of courtesy which it was very desirable should be performed, but it was not founded upon any legal obligation.—CAPE ASBESTOS CO., LTD. v. LLOYDS BANK, LTD., [1921] W. 803a. —— ——.]—Three shareholders in a shipbuilding co., which was heavily indebted to a bank, agreed to purchase certain shares in a steel co. which belonged to the shipbuilding co. & were held by the bank as security. The price of the shares was £69,750, & the bank agreed to advance £39,750, "on joint loan" to the three purchasers, the balance being provided by them in equal portions. The shares were thereafter to be held by the bank in security of the sum advanced. The purchasers paid for the shares by granting their individual cheques to the sellers for £10,000 each, & by drawing joint cheques, signed by them all, on the bank for the £39,750 advanced. The bank paid this amount to the sellers, & opened a joint overdraft account in name of the three purchasers. The purchasers were not customers of the bank. The value of the shares having fallen, the bank intimated to one of the three purchasers that it held him liable for the whole amount of the loan. He thereupon brought an action concluding for declarator that he was liable only for one-third of the amount of the loan, & that, on payment thereof, he was entitled to receive a transfer of one-third of the shares held in security by the bank:—Held: (1) the pursuer was liable for one-third only, in respect (a) that the purchasers were not jointly & severally liable, as drawers of the joint cheques, to the bank as a holder in due course, seeing that the cheques had been paid by the bank as drawee & were thus no longer subsisting documents of debt; & (b) that the loan was constituted by the agreement to advance it which imposed only a joint liability, & not by the cheques which were merely part of the machinery for carrying out the transaction; but (2) the pursuer was not entitled to receive a transfer of one-third of the shares, in respect that the bank, under the arrangement for the pledge of the shares, was entitled to treat the whole of the shares deposited as being security for the whole of the amount advanced.—COATS v. UNION BANK OF SCOTLAND, LTD., [1929] S. 921a. —— —— ——.]—Defts. acted as bankers for a firm up to Feb. 3, 1914, when the firm being insolvent by deed assigned all their property to pltf. as trustee for their creditors. The deed provided that payments to the creditors should be made upon the basis of a bkpcy. distribution of the property & that secured creditors should have the same rights as under a bkpcy. At the date of the deed the firm had £2,934 to the credit of their current account in deft. bank, & the bank held certain shares as security for an advance to the firm. These shares were subsequently sold by the bank & realised £812 in excess of the amount of the advance to the firm. Before Feb. 3, 1914, the firm had discounted with the bank a number of bills of exchange, which matured after that date, & in respect thereof the firm became the debtors of the bank to the amount of £19,941. In an action by pltf. as trustee under the deed to recover from the bank the two sums of £2,934 & £812, the bank claimed a lien on those sums & also to set off a sufficient portion of £19,941 against those sums :—Held : the bank's claim was right on both points.—BAKER v. LLOYDS BANK, [1920] 2 K. In 1913, the bank, without notice to the guarantors but with the assent of the debtor, increased the rate of interest upon the advances to 8 per cent., though, by Bank Act (R. S. sf. Procedure of High Court—Under Bar Councils Act, 1926.]—As from June 1, 1928, the procedure by which an advocate can be called upon to answer for misconduct is governed by Bar Councils Act, 1926, ss. 10 et seq. To proceed under sect. 10, the High Ct. is required, by sub-sect. (2) of that sect., if it does not summarily reject the complaint, either to refer the case for inquiry to the Bar Council, or, after consultation with the Bar Council, to refer it to the ct. of a District judge. Similar powers of reference are given where the ct., instead of acting on a complaint, acts on its own motion.

162a. —— Right of junior counsel settling pleadings to lead another junior counsel.]—A member of the Outer Bar settled pleadings & led at trial. Another member of the Outer Bar was briefed to attend trial as his junior. On party & party taxation the taxing master disallowed the fees paid to the second counsel on the ground that the junior who settled the pleadings could not lead, but could be led by a senior either of the Outer or Inner Bar :—Held : junior counsel who settled pleadings could lead another junior counsel, & fees of both counsel should be allowed.—DOUGLAS v. ASSOCIATED NEWSPAPERS, LTD. 173a. —— Position of.]—A barrister practising in Bristol & a barrister practising in London, or, rather one having chambers in both places, is not practising separate professions ; he is still a practising barrister. The profession of a practising barrister is that of a barrister practising in the courts of Great Britain, & wherever he is called upon to go, there he acts as a practising barrister. I think it is quite impossible to regard a change of chambers from one town to another as a relevant fact. Now, as to the fact of the barrister becoming a King's Counsel, I do not think the matter can be dealt with by construing the King's patent, or by considering it in a technical manner, but by regarding what, de facto, is the state of affairs which arises when a barrister becomes a King's Counsel. No doubt at one time he was considered to hold an office ; he was paid a salary & could not appear against the Crown without a licence. What happens now is that the Sovereign confers a titular rank which is recognised in the cts. by giving the holder precedence, a seat within the Bar, & by entitling him to wear a silk gown. On the other hand, by the practice of the profession, he abstains from doing certain classes of work which he did before appointment. But he is still acting in the same way as before, practising the art of advocacy. All he does is to limit the part he takes therein, but he carries on the work of advocacy still, though in a higher degree. I do not think that there can be any distinction between the different cases where junior barristers become King's Counsel ; the position involved is quite simple & all must come under the same head. Both the junior barrister & the King's Counsel carry on the same profession, but the latter occupy a higher rank or degree within it (ROWLATT, J.).—SELDON (F. E.) v. CROOM-JOHNSON ; SELDON (F. se. ———.]—The Chinese custom of legitimation of a natural son by subsequent recognition is not part of the law of the Straits Settlements in relation to Chinese people there domiciled ; nor does recognition as a son raise a presumption that the son's mother was a " t 'sip," or secondary wife. The modifications of the law of England which obtain in the Colony in its application to the various alien races established there arise from the necessity of preventing the injustice or oppression which otherwise would ensue. It is from that necessity that the status of " t 'sips," & consequently the legitimacy of their offspring, have been recognised ; but there are no grounds which would justify treating an illegitimate natural son as legitimated by the mere fact of subsequent recognition.—KHOO HOOI LEONG v. KHOO CHONG YEOK, [1930] A. sf. Child of Mahomedan & his servant —Acknowledgment of child by father as his son.]—The son of a Mahomedan by a female servant in his house claimed a declaration of his legitimacy. The parents had continuously cohabited for many years, & the father on several occasions had acknowledged pltf. as his son. There was some evidence of a nikah marriage :—Held : evidence that other members of the father's class had illegitimate children by servants was inadmissible to rebut the presumption of legitimacy arising from the acknowledgments, & though the fact that the mother unlike the father's other wives was not parda-niskin was one to be considered, it was insufficient to interfere with the presumption of law or the balance of proof of the fact of legitimacy.—MOHABBAT ALI KHAN v. MAHOMED IBRAHIM KHAN (1929), 56 L. 43a. —— —— —— ——.]—When adultery is to be inferred solely from the length of gestation of a child in utero, & evidence adverse to the wife, its mother, as regards her conduct, is absent, the same considerations apply as in a case of legitimacy & the presumption thereof. In such a case the evidence to negative lawful access as the cause of pregnancy must be strong, distinct, satisfactory, & conclusive, & must not consist of a mere balance of probability. If on medical evidence there is no distinct & inherent impossibility of access by the husband which could account for the birth of a child, the wife cannot be found guilty of adultery.—GASKILL v. GASKILL, [1921] P. 425; 90 L. 56 xiii. —— ——.]—The presumption of legitimacy which arises when a child is born in wedlock can be met only by some kind of definite proof that sexual intercourse between husband & wife did not or could not take place at the time the woman conceived. against a husband in 1929 on the ground of desertion, including a non-cohabitation clause, the husband in Nov. 1931, took out a summons for discharge or variation of the order on the ground that since the order made in 1929, the wife had committed adultery. The proof of adultery submitted to the Bench was the husband's evidence of the birth to his wife on Oct. 27, 1931, of a child of which he could not be the father by reason of his non-access. The magistrates refused to admit the evidence, on the ground that they were debarred from so doing by the decision in Russell v. Russell, No. 70a, & declined to vary the order. The husband appealed:—Held: the magistrates' view that the husband must be presumed to be the father of the child born in Oct. 1931, was wrong. The separation order had the force of a judicial separation, & therefore there was no presumption of law that appct. was the father of the child. The magistrates had been in error in excluding the evidence of non-access. The appeal succeeded, & the order would be set aside so far as the allowance to the wife was concerned.—STEWART v. STEWART (1932), 146 L. T. 407; 96 J. P. 94; 76 Sol. Jo. 96; 30 L. G. He married the mother of his child in Nov. 1929, after the decree of nullity had been made absolute. On a petition for a declaration of legitimacy on behalf of the child it was held that, as the retrospective effect of the decree of nullity was to declare that there had been no marriage in 1909 at all, the man was in fact free to marry when the child was born in Apr. 1929, & the child was entitled under the Legitimacy Act, 1926, to the declaration sought.—NEWBOULD v. A.-G., [1931] P. 75; 100 L. 152a. On exercise of power of appointment.]—For the purpose of the exercise of a power of appointment a child which is legitimate by the lex domicilii will be treated as legitimate by the English Cts.

Under an English marriage settlement of 1893, funds were settled on trust for J., the husband, who was the settlor, his wife F., & the issue of the marriage, but in the event of a future marriage the husband had power to appoint part of the funds to the children of that marriage. There were issue of the first marriage, two children. About 1909 J. separated from F., who lived in Switzerland with her two children until her death in 1918. J. had acquired a German domicil before 1911, & his first marriage was dissolved in June, 1911, by a ct. in Germany having jurisdiction, the decree nisi being made absolute on July 27, 1911. On Apr. 20, 1912, J. married his second wife A., with whom he had cohabited since 1909. M., their acknowledged daughter, had been born on Jan. 30, 1911, at Zurich, & by German law the marriage gave her the status of legitimacy. By deed poll, dated June 13, 1913, J. purported to revoke the trusts relating to a portion of the trust funds under the marriage settlement of 1893, & appointed the income of that portion after his death to A., & after her death he appointed the capital to M. J. died in 1929:—Held: (1) the lex domicilii, that is German law, was applicable; (2) the lex domicilii, in its widest sense being recognised by the English Cts., M. was a legitimate child of J.; & (3) J. had validly exercised the power of appointment in favour of M.—Re ASKEW, MARJORIBANKS v. ASKEW, [1930] 2 Ch. 259; 99 L. On the morning of the birth when resp. was in labour, applt., who had no other female servant, lit a fire for her & took her some tea & brandy. He also sent for the doctor. After the birth he allowed her & the child to remain for five weeks & two days, until June 17, in his house. There was no evidence whether she was sufficiently recovered to have left at an earlier date. Applt. admitted that during those five weeks & two days he never asked resp. who was the father of her child. Resp. in her evidence said that during that time, though she did not fix the date except that it was before June 16, she asked applt. what he was going to do about the child, & he said that there was nothing for him to do but to pay. After resp. had left his house she wrote him a letter charging him with being the father of the child, & asking him if he meant to pay for its maintenance. 366a. Variation of order—Adjudication of paternity —"Fresh evidence."]—On the application of resp., justices made an order adjudging that applt. was the father of her illegitimate child, & ordered him to make her a periodical payment. On a subsequent application by applt. under Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914 (c. 58), s. 30 (3), to revoke the whole order, he tendered fresh evidence, which went only to show that he was not the father of the child. The justices refused to hear it, holding that they had no power to deal with that part of the order which adjudged the paternity:—Held : (1) the justices were right; (2) (AVORY & SHEARMAN, JJ.) there being nothing to show that the evidence tendered was of facts which had occurred since the original hearing, or had come to the knowledge of applt. since the hearing, that evidence was not "fresh evidence" within sect. 30 (3).—COLCHESTER v. PECK, [1926] 2 K. st. Imprisonment—Failure to pay aliment—Offer by father to maintain child in his home.]—In an application under Civil Imprisonment (Scotland) Act, 1882, s. 4, by the mother of two illegitimate daughters for warrant to imprison the father, in respect of his failure to obtemper a charge proceeding upon a decree for payment of aliment until the children respectively attained fourteen years of age, the Sheriff, notwithstanding an offer by the father, a married man, to maintain the children, who were then over ten years of age, in his own home, granted warrant of imprisonment. The father, having sought to suspend the charge & warrant, the mother contended that his offer of maintenance should not be entertained, in respect that, under the decree for aliment which was still current, his obligation could only be discharged by money payments:—Held : (1) a father's option at common law to maintain his illegitimate child in his home, if a boy after the age of seven, & if a girl after the age of ten, was not excluded by the fact that at the date of such an offer of maintenance a decree against him for aliment was still current; (2) in view of the bona fide offer of maintenance here made, the complainer was not a person wilfully refusing to pay aliment within Civil Imprisonment (Scotland) Act, 1882, s. 4, & charge & warrant suspended.—MACDONALD v. DENOON, [1929] S. sw. —— Effect.]—A filiation order under Child Welfare Act, C. A., 1924, c. 30, provided that, in the event of the accused failing to give the bond or making the cash payment required of him by the order, he should be committed to gaol for 12 months. On appealing from the order the accused, not wishing to go to gaol pending the hearing of the appeal, gave the bond provided for by sect. 68 (b) of said Act. His appeal was dismissed; &, none of the directions of the filiation order having been complied with, his bondsmen delivered him into custody, & he was committed to gaol & served the prescribed term. An action was then brought by the mother on the bond given in respect to the appeal:—Held : the serving of the term of imprisonment did not satisfy his obligations on the filiation order & pltf. was held entitled to judgment; but she could not recover more than the amount presently in default under said order.—BOYAK v. KOBYLANSKI, [1929] 1 D. 403a. —— —— New evidence.]—Complainant in an affiliation summons was a married woman who was not living apart from her husband at the material date, & an order on the evidence & on his own admission was made against one M. After the time for appealing against this order had expired, the rule in the present case was obtained on an affidavit by complainant's husband that he had cohabited with complainant at the material date & could have been the father of the child:—Held: the question of access or non-access was a question of fact for the justices, from which they were entitled to find that M. was the child's father; the ct. would not, in support of a rule for a certiorari, rehear a case upon further evidence on a disputed question of fact, & perform the functions of quarter sessions, to which, owing to lapse of time, an appeal could not be made.—R. v. MARKHAM, Ex p. MARSH (1923), 67 Sol. Jo. 518.

403b. —— —— Sufficiency of corroboration.]—On a bastardy summons justices, having heard the evidence of the mother & such other evidence as was produced by her & other evidence tendered by the person alleged to be the father, made an order in these terms: "On hearing the complaint & the evidence of complainant & other evidence satisfactorily corroborating in a material particular her evidence & also the evidence tendered by deft., & being satisfied of the truth of the complaint, it is adjudged that deft. is the putative father of the child":—Held: the question whether the evidence of the mother was corroborated in some material particular by other evidence to the satisfaction of the justices, was a matter to be decided by the justices &, even if the other evidence did not corroborate the evidence of the mother, the justices had acted within their jurisdiction, & a writ of certiorari should not issue to quash their order.—R. v. LINCOLNSHIRE JJ., Ex p. BRETT, [1926] 2 K. y i. —— ——.]—Notice of an appeal from an order of filiation made under Child Welfare Act, C. A., 1924, c. 30, was given within 10 days of the making & date of the formal order. The judge had three days previously, & after the hearing, endorsed on the information an entry which included the words, "Remanded until Friday," "Filiation order granted." At the adjourned sitting he made another such entry which repeated & supplemented the previous entry, & he then signed & dated the formal order. On the appeal, the county ct. judge held that said first entry constituted the order provided for in sect. 750 (b) of the Criminal Code, made applicable by sect. 70 of the Child Welfare Act, & sustained the preliminary objection that the notice of appeal had not been filed within 10 days "after the conviction or order." An application for mandamus was dismissed. On appeal therefrom:—Held: the appeal should be allowed & a mandamus issued as prayed for.—DANIELSON v. THORDARSON, [1930] 3 W. W. The latter ct., however, is entitled to have regard to the nature of such evidence, once admitted, when considering whether the evidence submitted as corroborative may be regarded as such, its proper function on an appeal on a point of law being to determine whether there was evidence which was corroborative; & if there was such evidence, it is not for the Appellate Ct. but for the magistrate to determine whether or not the evidence satisfied him. Qu.: whether the Appellate Ct. on appeal on a point of law is entitled to treat as corroborative evidence not relied on by the magistrate as corroborative.—ANSON v. PARKER, [1928] N. 274a. What is—Professional artiste producing scenæ.]—The debtor, a married woman professional singer, had up to May, 1925, been engaged in musical comedy, but had subsequently produced scenæ & vocal acts at various music halls. In the production of these scenæ she had required certain accessories in the way of dresses, etc., in respect of which she had incurred liabilities. On the hearing of a petition against her for a receiving order a number of contracts with music-hall proprietors were put in evidence, from which it appeared that in consideration of a fixed sum per week she undertook to sing & to engage & pay one or more singers to assist her in the production of her scenæ, & also to provide & pay an accompanist. The registrar dismissed the petition on the grounds that Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), s. 125, did not include profession or occupation under the term " business " ; that " trade " & " business " were ejusdem generis & intended to bring within the scope of the Act women who were actually trading or carrying on a business in the nature of a trade, & that the fact that the debtor was assisted by another singer & a pianist did not make her any the less a professional artist than when she acted on the stage. On appeal :—Held : the debtor was carrying on a continuous occupation for the purpose of making profits by entering into contracts under which she bound herself to produce scenæ on the stage & to provide the necessary accessories in the way of assistant singers & accompanist, & that in those circumstances she could properly be described as carrying on a business within sect. 125.—Re A DEBTOR (No. 3 of 1926), [1927] 1 Ch. 97; 135 L. Having incurred debts, & being unable to meet her creditors, on Feb. 9, 1929, she filed a petition for arrangement & was granted the protection of the ct. on Mar. 1. She was unable to carry out her proposal to pay twenty shillings in the pound, & eventually on July 26, her petition was dismissed, & thereby an act of bankruptcy was committed. On Oct. 30 she was adjudicated a bkpt. on the petition of two of her creditors, wherein she was described as a married woman carrying on a trade separately from her husband, in respect of debts undischarged at the date of the petition. She applied to have this adjudication set aside on the ground that she was not such a trader on the date of adjudication. She stated that during the progress of the arrangement matter she found that she was unable to get any further credit & closed down & went out of trade on Mar. 23, & had not since carried on any trade :—Held : there was ample evidence that the debts in respect of which adjudication was sought were trade debts for goods supplied incurred by her while she was carrying on a trade separately from her husband, & the fact of her having trade debts undischarged at the date of the petition was evidence from which it could be inferred that she was still carrying on her trade.—Re SOMERS, [1930] I. 596a. —— In private company formed by debtor & his solicitor.]—The transfer by a debtor of substantially the whole of his property, whether by way of charge or by way of sale, constitutes an act of bkpcy., if the necessary consequence of the transfer will be to defeat or delay his creditors. The bkpt. was carrying on an increasing business as a builder, but was in need of further capital. He had creditors for some £28,000, & in addition he owed B.'s bank about £6,500. In pursuance of an arrangement with L.'s bank, but without notice to any of the creditors, L.'s bank took over the bkpt.'s account from B.'s bank, paying off to B.'s bank the overdraft of £6,500 ; & a few days later, on Jan. 9, 1929, a private limited co. was formed of which the bkpt. & his solr. were the only directors. There was a contemporaneous agreement for sale to the co. of substantially the whole of the bkpt.'s assets for £17,000 to be satisfied by the issue to the bkpt. of 17,000 £1 shares, the co. undertaking to pay the bkpt.'s liabilities. On Jan. 14 the necessary assignments to the co. were executed, & a debenture for £12,500 was sealed in favour of L.'s bank. On Jan. 17 the bkpt.'s overdraft on L.'s bank was paid off by a transfer from a new account opened by L.'s bank in favour of the co. Upon the formation of the co. & the issue of the debenture becoming known, the bkpt.'s creditors began to press, & some of them were paid off in full. On Feb. 27, 1929, the bkpt. committed an act of bkpcy. by failing to comply with a bkpcy. notice. On Mar. 8 a petition was presented, & on May 9 a receiving order was made, & adjudication followed on May 23. 797a. Creditor who has assented to deed of arrangement—Deed void for want of registration.]—On June 11, 1921, applt. co. recovered judgment against debtor for a certain sum & costs. On Apr. 18, 1922, debtor executed a document in the form of a memorandum of agreement by which he assigned his property to trustees for the benefit of his creditors. The agreement provided (inter alia) that it should not be registered either as a composition or deed of arrangement or otherwise & contained a schedule of creditors & their debts. At the date of the agreement there were five bkpcy. petitions pending against debtor by creditors other than applt. co. As a result of negotiations between debtor & the five creditors & in consideration of his entering into the agreement of Apr. 18, 1922, the five creditors agreed to the dismissal of their petitions & signed letters dated Apr. 17, 1922, which were all in the same form, & contained a statement that it was understood that it was not intended to register the agreement as a deed of arrangement, by which they respectively agreed that so long as debtor complied with the terms of the agreement of Apr. 18, 1922, they would not bring any action against him in respect of their scheduled debts or attempt to set aside the agreement. On July 18, 1922, applt. co. signed a letter of assent in the same terms, which was also dated Apr. 17, 1922, & agreed to hand it over to debtor on receiving from him a promissory note or bill of exchange of a third party for £300. This condition debtor performed. The letter was not, however, handed over to debtor owing to the refusal by him to pay to applt. co. an agreed sum for costs, a term which the ct. held formed no part of the original bargain. Applt. co. subsequently issued a bkpcy. notice against debtor founded on its judgment debt. The registrar set the bkpcy. notice aside on the ground that applt. co. was bound by the agreement contained in the letter signed by it. On appeal:—Held: (1) the agreement of Apr. 18, 1922, being a deed of arrangement, was void for want of registration under 1914 (Deeds) Act, & the letter of assent, being an assent to a void instrument, was also itself void; (2) as debtor & all the

The writ of sale followed the language of the præcipe, & a return of nulla bona was later made against both defts. 1077a. Tender before bankrupty notice—Whether creditor bound to accept.]—On Jan. 3, 1928, a creditor obtained judgment for £47, in respect of two overdue instalments of a debt, leaving the remaining £23 instalment, which only became due between the date of the writ & the judgment, untouched by the judgment. On Jan. 9, in response to the creditor's invitation, debtor tendered the £23 in cash, but the tender was refused. On Jan. 27 the creditor filed a bkpcy. notice in respect of the £47 judgment debt, & on Feb. 16 he filed a petition based on the two debts, & on non-compliance with the bkpcy. notice :—Held : though the two debts were still owing & amounted to over £50, so that the creditor was formally entitled to present a petition under 1914 Act, s. 4 (1), nevertheless the refusal before the bkpcy. notice of the £23 offered at his invitation, & refused only in order to keep the total debt over £50, was " sufficient cause " within sect. 5 (3) for making no order on the petition.—Re DEBTOR, Ex p. LAWRENCE (NO. 21 OF 1928), [1928] Ch. 665 ; *sub nom. The agent neither assented nor dissented, but stated that he must consult his principal, & expressly reserved his right to take bkpcy. proceedings. On Nov. 30, he wrote to the trustee under the deed saying he was not satisfied with the debtor's affairs, & that he still reserved his right to take steps in bkpcy. The trustee in reply asked him if he intended to proceed in bkpcy. to do so at once in order to save trouble & expense. Subsequently S., Ltd., on being requested to assent to the deed, notified the trustee on Sept. 2 that they declined to assent; & on Oct. 18 they presented a petition against B., alleging as the act of bkpcy. the deed of July 22 :—Held : (1) there had been no assent, express or implied, on the part of the petitioning creditors, such as to disentitle them to set up the deed as an available act of bkpcy., upon which a petition could be founded; (2) in view of the decision in *Re Day, Ex p. The cheque was dishonoured & judgment obtained against debtor for £500 & £14 6s. costs. In Dec. 1926, the judgment creditors petitioned for a receiving order against debtor in respect of the judgment debt. From time to time arrangements were made for adjourning the petition, but in Mar. 1927, the petitioning creditors intimated that the conditions on which they would agree to the petition being dismissed were that debtor should pay £100 & provide a guarantee for payment of the balance of the debt & also agree to pay to them the costs of their proceedings against the underwriters as between solr. & client, & the costs of their proceedings against debtor, also as between solr. & client. Payment of the costs of proceedings against the underwriters was refused, but payment by debtor of solr. & client costs was agreed to, & sums of £50 & £144 were paid & the petition dismissed. In July petitioners again commenced proceedings for a receiving order in respect of a sum ascertained by deducting from the original debt & interest & costs as between solr. & client the payments of £50 & £144. A receiving order having been made:—Held: the acts of petitioners in seeking to obtain payment of their costs in the proceedings against the underwriters & in obtaining payment by debtor of their solr. & client costs amounted to extortion & an abuse of the process of the ct., & the case fell within 1914 Act, s. 5 (3), as being one where the ct. was satisfied that for sufficient cause no receiving order ought to be made, & the receiving order must be discharged.—Re DEBTOR (No. 883 OF 1927), [1928] Ch. 199; 97 L. 1548a. Power to make charging order on balance of funds in court.]—A debtor, against whom a receiving order had been made, paid money into ct. to satisfy his debts in full. The receiving order was then rescinded by an order which directed the official receiver, after paying the debts & deducting his costs, charges & expenses, to pay the balance in his hands to debtor. A subsequent unsatisfied judgment creditor applied to the registrar in bkpcy. for a charging order upon the balance of the funds in the hands of the official receiver:—Held: (1) the registrar had jurisdiction to make the order; (2) the registrar's jurisdiction was derived through the jurisdiction of the judge of the High Ct. to whom for the time being bkpcy. matters were assigned exercising his bkpcy. jurisdiction.—Re PRIOR, Ex p. PRIOR, [1921] 3 K. 1552a. Receiving order discharged subject to condition—Condition not fulfilled—Rescission of discharging order.] — Debtor, a barrister, was entitled on the death of his mother to a vested remainder in tail of considerable value. His mother was seventy-five. The petition was filed on July 19, 1923. His present indebtedness amounted to about £6,000 & negotiations for a loan for that amount with an insurance co. had been going on since July 16, 1923. Owing to a delay in raising this loan, the registrar had made a receiving order on Nov. 21, 1923, from which debtor appealed; & upon debtor undertaking during the interval necessary to raise the loan, to insure his life immediately, i.e. from Dec. 1, 1923, to Jan. 1, 1924, in order that, in the event of his death during that period, the unsecured creditors might be safeguarded, the Ct. of Appeal allowed the appeal, discharged the receiving order & dismissed the petition without prejudice to another petition being presented if the loan was not carried through & petitioning creditors' debt not paid on or before Jan. 1, 1924. Up to Dec. 20, debtor had not insured his life pursuant to his undertaking & petitioning creditors then moved to commit debtor for contempt. The Ct. of Appeal allowed debtor three hours within which to insure his life, & a certificate being produced showing that this had been done, the ct. made no order except that debtor should pay the creditors' costs. Subsequently debtor having again broken his undertaking by not completing the insurance on his life, the Ct. of Appeal rescinded their order, with the result that the receiving order stood as originally made by the registrar.—Re A DEBTOR, Ex p. THE DEBTOR (No. 1088 OF 1923), [1924] B. & C. 1893a. —— Duty not to take advantage of mistake of fact.]—A receiving order was made against a debtor, who thereupon applied for & obtained a stay of the advertisement of the receiving order & all proceedings thereunder pending an appeal therefrom. The appeal was subsequently dismissed & an order was made adjudicating him bkpt. At the date of the receiving order bkpt. had an account at a bank. The trustee in bkpcy. claimed a declaration that the sums paid into the bank after the date of the receiving order vested in him as trustee:—Held: (1) the sums paid into the bank by bkpt. after the date of the receiving order became by virtue of 1914 Act, ss. 18 (1), 37 (1), 38 (a), the property of his trustee in bkpcy.; (2) the bank were not entitled to credit themselves with the payments out to bkpt., as those transactions took place after the date of the receiving order & were therefore not protected by sects. 45 & 46; (3) there was nothing dishonest in the trustee enforcing the rights given to him by the Act, & the action of the ct. in staying the advertisement & proceedings could not operate in any way in derogation of the rights of the trustee.—Re WIGZELL, Ex p. HART, [1921] 2 K. The action was transferred to the judge in bkpcy. under Bkpcy. Rules, 1915, r. 123. Deft. took the point that such an action ought not to be brought by an officer of the ct., as the claim, however legal, was practically dishonest, & that all cts. must apply the rule in Re Condon, Ex p. James, No. 60, ante:—Held: the claim the trustee in bkpcy. was seeking to enforce was in respect of a debt which under Gaming Act, 1835 (c. 41), s. 2, & the decision of the House of Lords in Sutters v. Briggs (see GAMING & WAGERING, Vol. XXV., p. 418, No. 213), was a statutory debt, & there was nothing in Re Condon, Ex p. James, or in any of the cases in which the rule in that case had been followed, which entitled the ct. to say that if & when a right of action in respect of such a debt vested in a trustee in bkpcy., it was a dishonest or dishonourable thing for him as an officer of the ct. to enforce it, & judgment for the trustee in bkpcy. must be entered in the action for the amount claimed.—SCRANTON'S TRUSTEE v. PEARSE, [1922] 2 Ch. 87; 91 L. 1894b. —— Duty to act equitably—Recovery of money paid to bankrupt with approval of official receiver.]—On June 26, 1924, a receiving order was made against W. on a petition presented on May 25, 1924, in respect of an act of bkpcy. on May 1, 1924. W. was a promoter of boxing contests & had in view at the date of the presentation of the petition boxing competitions, one of which was held at the Stadium, Wembley, on Aug. 9, 1924. He appealed against the receiving order, & pending that appeal the receiving order was not gazetted. His appeal having failed it was then gazetted on July 29, 1924. At an interview between W., his solr., the solr. for the Wembley authorities & A., the assistant official receiver, who under Bkpcy. Rules, 1915, r. 316, represented the official receiver, A. was told of the proposed boxing contest & the judge held on the evidence that at the interview W. told A. he desired notwithstanding the receiving order to be allowed to stage the contest as the only hope of providing assets to meet the claims of his creditors, & that it was arranged he could do so without any interference by the official receiver, on W. undertaking not to use the proceeds of the sale of tickets for his private purposes but only for discharging the expenses of the staging of the contest & to hand over any balance to the official receiver. On that arrangement being made W. proceeded with the negotiations for the contest & an agreement was executed by which he gave the Wembley authorities the right to collect all moneys paid for tickets at the turnstiles, & they were to have those moneys as a security for the payment by W. for the use of the Stadium. Various ticket agents paid W. for blocks of tickets to be sold by them to the public. The contest, which was held at the Stadium on Aug. 9, 1924, only realised after payment of all expenses £730 which W. paid to the official receiver. On Sept. 6, 1924, W. was adjudicated bkpt., & on Sept. 9, S. was appointed trustee in the bkpcy. On a motion by S. to recover from the various ticket agents all sums paid by them since the date of the receiving order to W. for tickets they had bought from him & to recover the money collected by the Wembley authorities at the turnstiles:—Held: A. had power to give his sanction to W.'s receipt of the proceeds of the sale of tickets to be applied by him in discharging expenses & the trustee in bkpcy. was bound by the sanction so given, but even if he were not so bound & even if A. exceeded his powers the trustee could not take the benefit of W.'s activities without accepting their burden, & the payment to W. of the moneys which the trustee claimed, being the direct result of the leave obtained by W. from A. to stage the boxing contests, it would be inequitable & unjust to make resps. pay these moneys over again for the benefit of W.'s creditors & to hold that the charge given to the Wembley authorities was nugatory.—Re WILSON, Ex p. SALAMAN, [1926] Ch. 21; 95 L. 2514a. —— Payments received from other sureties.] —In Aug. 1921, two borrowers with three sureties borrowed £20,000 from an insurance co. The loan was secured by the joint & several covenant of the borrowers & the sureties & by a mtge. & further charge on the borrowers' life policies. The loan was repayable by instalments spread over five years, but, if a borrower or surety became bkpt., it was immediately repayable. On Jan. 10, 1924, a receiving order was made against one surety, H., on his own petition, & on Jan. 25 he was adjudicated bkpt. At the date of the receiving order the amount due to the insurance co. as creditors was £8,000 principal & £249 interest, & on Jan. 13, 1926, they put in a proof for that amount in H.'s bkpcy. Between the date of the receiving order & the proof, however, the creditors had received some £5,372 made up of £4,910 payments of principal & interest by the other sureties & £462 credited ex gratia as the surrender value of the policies which had really lapsed. The trustee in bkpcy. applied to reduce the proof by £5372 :—Held : as each surety was liable for the whole debt due at the date of the receiving order, the creditors were entitled to prove for the full amount in the surety H.'s bkpcy. without giving credit for any sums received from the other co-sureties since that date, provided that they did not in the whole recover more than 20*s.* in the pound.—Re HOULDER, [1929] 1 Ch. 205; *sub nom. 2902a. -.]—By marriage articles in 1914, made between husband & wife & three trustees, it was agreed that, after the intended marriage, an indenture of settlement should be executed & that the husband would bring into settlement all property to which he then was or thereafter might become entitled, to be held, subject to life interests in favour of husband & wife, upon trusts to be mutually agreed between the trustees of the settlement. It was further agreed that the first trustees of the settlement should be the three trustees of the articles therein named, & that if they or either of them should fail to accept the trusteeship of the settlement, then such other person or persons as the spouses should nominate ; & that in the meantime until the execution of the settlement the persons in whom such property should be vested should hold the same upon the trusts of the settlement. The marriage was solemnised on the day of the execution of the articles. On the death of his father on Feb. 22, 1918, the husband, under his will, became entitled in reversion, subject to the life interest of testator's widow, to a share in his residuary estate. On June 13, 1919, the trustees of the articles gave notice to the will trustees of the execution of the articles. On Oct. 21, 1920, the husband, in pursuance of his contract contained in the articles, executed a settlement by which he assigned to the trustees thereof, of whom there were three & of whom one was also a trustee under the articles, but the other two were not, his interest under his father's will upon trusts for the benefit of his wife & children. 2978a. Proof by plaintiff against bankrupt defendant—Stay of action after bankruptcy—Proof in bankruptcy for amount claimed in action.] —On Oct. 25, 1920, resp., a mtge. broker, hereinafter called pltf., issued a writ against debtor in the K. B. Div. to recover a sum of £650 for commission earned. On June 20, 1921, the action was set down for trial. On July 19, 1921, a receiving order was made against debtor. On Feb. 2, 1922, on the application of pltf. made in the action the action was stayed with liberty to pltf. to restore. On Mar. 6, 1922, pltf., instead of applying to restore the action, lodged his proof in the bkpcy. of debtor for £650. The official receiver rejected his proof, but on Jan. 17, 1923, the county ct. judge reversed the decision of the official receiver & admitted the proof. On Sept. 29, 1923, pltf. lodged a further proof for £46 17*s.* 9*d.* for his untaxed costs of the action, all of which were incurred before the date of the receiving order. On Oct. 31, 1923, the official receiver rejected that proof. Pltf. appealed, & on Feb. 11, 1924, the county ct. judge reversed his decision & ordered that the proof of the costs, amounting to £46 17*s.* 9*d.*, should be admitted subject to taxation. On the appeal of the official receiver:—Held: (1) as pltf. had obtained no judgment dealing either with his claim in the action or the costs thereof, but had elected to stay his action & to prove in bkpcy. for the amount claimed in the action, he was not entitled to prove for his untaxed costs of the action; (2) (ASTBURY, J.) the sum for which pltf. sought to prove in respect of his costs was not a debt or liability certain or contingent to which debtor was subject at the date of the receiving order or to which he might become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before that date, within 1914 Act, s. 30 (3), & therefore was not provable.—Re PITCHFORD, [1924] 2 Ch. 260; *sub nom. 3696a. Shares deposited as security for debit balance owing to bankrupt—Unauthorised sale by bankrupt.]—Deft. opened a speculative account with a firm of stockbrokers & deposited with them as security for any debit balance which might from time to time be owing by him on that account the indicia of title to various bonds & shares, including certain rubber shares. In 1920 the firm sold the rubber shares without the knowledge or authority of deft., who was kept in ignorance of the sale till after the bkpcy. of the firm. On Feb. 16, 1922, a receiving order was made against the firm & they were adjudicated bkpt. In Feb. 1923, the trustee in bkpcy. of the firm rendered deft. a final account, which, after giving credit to deft. for the proceeds of the sale of the shares, showed a balance due from deft. In an action to recover that balance the trustee claimed that the rights of the parties ought to be adjusted under the mutual credits clause of 1914 Act, as at the date of the receiving order. The judge, in ordering an account to be taken, directed that the value of the shares, to be ascertained when the account was certified, that being the date when the shares ought to have been returned to deft., should be set off against the claim of the trustee :—Held : the brokers could not have maintained an action for their debt if they were not in a position to hand over the shares against payment, & the trustee in bkpcy. had no higher right ; no question of set-off arose under the mutual credits clause of 1914 Act, the right of deft. being to a return of the shares in specie ; & in the special circumstances of the case the order of the judge was correct.—ELLIS & Co.'s TRUSTEE v. DIXON-JOHNSON, [1925] A. 3740a. ——.]—Applt., the managing director of a co. which was insolvent, recovered judgment against the co. for repayment of money lent by him to the co. Shortly afterwards, the provisional liquidator of the co., which was subsequently, in Apr. 1925, ordered to be wound up, paid to applt. the amount for which he had recovered judgment, & in Apr. 1926, an order was made in the winding up upon applt. to repay to the liquidator that amount, on the ground that the payment to him by the liquidator was void as a fraudulent preference. In consequence of applt.'s non-compliance with that order, a bkpcy. notice was served upon him, & a receiving order made against him, the registrar refusing to allow applt. to set off against the amount he had been so ordered to repay to the liquidator the sum for which he had recovered judgment against the co.:—Held: applt. had not, at the date of the receiving order, any valid or effectual right of set-off in respect of the sum he had been ordered to repay to the liquidator.—Re A DEBTOR (82 of 1926), [1927] 1 Ch. 410; 136 L. 3781a.—— Property conveyed to settlement trustees—Against unpaid sum covenanted to be brought into settlement.]—Upon the marriage of the bkpt. in 1802, the estate of the wife, consisting of freehold, copyhold & leasehold lands, were conveyed to the use of the bkpt. & his heirs, who covenanted with the trustees within six months after the marriage, to pay to them £4,000 upon the trustes of the settlement. The trustees never demanded payment. In 1806 the bkpt. sold part of the freehold premises, & he & his wife levied a fine of the whole, declaring the uses of that part which was sold to the purchaser, but without making any declaration as to the remainder. In 1812 the bkpt. conveyed all his estates to trustees for the benefit of his creditors. In 1813 the bkpt. covenanted that he & his wife would levy a fine to the uses declared in the deed of 1812, & a fine was levied accordingly. The wife never surrendered the copyhold premises pursuant to the settlement 1802. In 1814 the commission issued, & the husband was declared a bkpt., his execution of the trust deed 1812 being the act of bkpcy. The trustees of the settlement proved the £4,000 under the commission & signed the bkpt.'s certificate:—Held: the trustees on behalf of the wife & children of the bkpt., had a lien upon the estates thereby conveyed & remaining unsold by the bkpt. to the amount of the £4,000.—Re DICKEN, Ex p. DICKEN (1817), Buck. 115, L. 3781b.—— Dividend—Against sums paid by debtor on contract of guarantee.]—F., having guaranteed advances by certain banks to the T. Assocn., in which he was interested, subsequently executed two deeds of arrangement in favour of his creditors. The Assocn. having gone into liquidation, the liquidator lodged a proof against F.'s estate in respect of sums due by F. to the Assocn. The trustee of F.'s estate rejected the proof & claimed to set off the various sums which had been advanced by the banks to the Assocn. for which F. had given his personal guarantee. At that time, although one or more of the banks had proved against F.'s estate under the guarantees, nothing had been paid to any of them. The Assocn. was admitted to prove against F.'s estate for a very large sum, & the trustee declared an interim dividend of 1*s.* in the pound. The banks were paid the dividend in respect of their admitted proofs, which also amounted in the aggregate to a considerable sum. The sums constituting the amount of the banks' proofs represented the amount of the Assocn.'s debt which had been guaranteed by F. The question arose whether the trustee of F.'s estate was under the circumstances entitled to pay to the liquidator of the Assocn. the sum representing the interim dividend declared in respect of the admitted proof. The matter came before the ct. by way of motion on behalf of the trustee, the question being whether this declared dividend was properly payable to the liquidator of the Assocn. or the trustee was entitled to withhold payment of all or any part thereof. On behalf of the Assocn. it was urged that the previous proceedings reported in Re Fenton, Ex p. Fenton Textile Assocn., Ltd., No. 3656a, ante, had concluded the matter, that the question was now res judicata, & that, notwithstanding the payment to the banks of the amount of the dividend since that decision, the liquidator of the Assocn. was entitled to the full dividend in respect of the Assocn.'s admitted proof:—Held: (1) the question raised by the motion had not been determined by the Ct. of Appeal in the previous proceedings; & (2) the claim by the trustee to withhold the payment of any part of the dividends payable in respect of the Assocn.'s proof failed. The rule against double proof afforded an answer to the trustee's claim to retain the dividends on the admitted proof of the Assocn. so long as any part of the debt due to the banks remained unsatisfied.—Re FENTON (NO. 2), Ex p. FENTON TEXTILE ASSOCN., LTD., [1932] 1 Ch. 178; 146 L. 4353a. —— —— Debt left on deposit with debtors.]—A creditor for a sum of £100,000 of a firm of merchant bankers in May, 1918, agreed with the debtors to leave the debt on deposit with them until Jan. 1932, at interest, with commission to be paid to nominees of the creditor—namely, O. & his family; & it was further agreed that O. should be credited with a share of the firm's profits, which in fact he subsequently drew from the firm. In July, 1920, the debt was, by the direction of the creditor, transferred in the books of the debtors to F., who agreed with the debtors to leave the debt on deposit with them until Jan. 1932, upon the conditions expressed in the former agreement, as if F.'s name had been inserted therein instead of the name of the original creditor. On Feb. 24, 1926, F. transferred the debt in equity to O., & on Mar. 2, 1926, the debtors had notice of that assignment. On Mar. 15, 1926, a receiving order was made against the debtors on their own petition, & shortly afterwards they were adjudicated bkpts. 4637a. Admission at preliminary examination—On criminal charge of misappropriating funds.]—The accused, who was a trustee under a will, was charged with having in Mar. 1916, fraudulently converted to his own use certain shares deposited with him by a co-trustee. In an affidavit filed by the accused in defence to proceedings for an account commenced against him by the co-trustee in the Ch. Div. the accused swore that he had, with the approval of his co-trustee, invested the capital in his own business. Subsequently, in his preliminary examination in bkpcy., he made admissions to the Official Receiver in regard to the disposition of the capital by him. He was indicted for fraudulent conversion as a trustee under Larceny Act, 1916 (c. 50), s. 21, but the judge, on his notice being brought to the fact that that Act was not in force at the time when the offence was alleged to have been committed, allowed the indictment to be amended by the substitution of Larceny Act, 1861 (c. 96), s. 80, for the later statute. The two statutes define the offence in almost precisely the same words :—Held : the admissions in the preliminary examination in bkpcy. were not admissions made "in any compulsory examination or deposition before any court on the hearing of any matter in bkpcy.," & could, therefore, be given in evidence at the trial without infringing Larceny Act, 1916 (c. 50), s. 43 (3).—R. v. TUTTLE (1929), 140 L. 4665a. —— Necessary before other side entitled to refer to contents.]—On June 29, 1923, resps., having received from bkpt. an order for goods, on the same day delivered them to bkpt. together with an invoice bearing the same date, which subsequently at bkpt.'s request was post-dated to July 10. On July 20, bkpt., although fully realising his insolvency, sent to resps. & to 107 other creditors cheques which were all post-dated to July 31 in settlement of their several accounts. On July 31 bkpt. gave notice to his creditors that he was about to suspend payment. Not one of those post-dated cheques was paid on presentation ; but on July 30, the day preceding the act of bkpcy., bkpt. paid in cash to resps., who had no knowledge of bkpt.'s financial difficulties, the amount he owed them less discount. On Aug. 30, 1923, on a creditor's petition presented on Aug. 3, an order of adjudication was made against bkpt. Upon a motion by the trustee in bkpcy. for a declaration that the payment to resps. was a fraudulent preference under 1914 Act, s. 44 (1), resps. filed an affidavit in opposition, which contained statements which revealed a voluntary offer on July 30 on the part of bkpt. to resps. to pay the amount due to them in cash ; & the question was then raised whether the trustee had the right, which he claimed, to read those statements as admissions by resps. of the absence of pressure & of the entirely voluntary nature of the payment :—Held : (1) the practice in the Bkpcy. Ct., differing in this respect from the practice in the Ch. Div., was that where an affidavit had been filed by a resp. to an application, applt. was only entitled to refer to the contents thereof after resp. on opening his case had elected to read it ; (2) where a bkpt. in imminent expectation of bkpcy. voluntarily pays a particular creditor with the result of giving him a preference in fact, & the

In the course of his public examination debtor refused to answer a question on the ground that he might thereby incriminate himself. On the case coming on before the judge he interviewed debtor in his private room & on his return into ct. stated (1) that he was not satisfied that an answer to the question would result in further assets or secure rights for the creditors, & (2) that he was satisfied that there were serious personal reasons why it would be to debtor's detriment to answer the question in public :—Held : neither of the reasons given by the judge for declining to order debtor to answer the question was a sufficient reason.—Re PAGET, Ex p. OFFICIAL RECEIVER, [1927] 2 Ch. 85; 96 L. 5775a.——.]—On Sept. 20, 1917, debtor transferred his assets, including certain furniture, to a co. formed by him. On Sept. 27 he committed an act of bkpcy. upon which a petition was presented on Oct. 8, & a receiving order was made against him on Oct. 24, followed by an adjudication on Dec. 12. After the date of the receiving order part of the furniture was sold by the co. to a bonâ fide purchaser for value without notice, by whom it was resold to another purchaser in the same position. On Feb. 3, 1919, the transfer of Sept. 20, 1917, was held to be fraudulent & void & an act of bkpcy., & the co. was ordered to deliver to the trustee all the property comprised in that sale. The value of the property having been found by the registrar, a further order was made against the co. to pay the amount of that value to the trustee. No payment having been made under that order the trustee claimed to recover the furniture or its value from the ultimate purchaser :—Held : the title of the trustee related back to the act of bkpcy. of Sept. 20, 1917, & neither the original nor any subsequent transferee could establish any title as against the trustee.—Re GUNSBOURG, [1920] 2 K. By an order in 1895 after the dissolution of C.'s marriage, it was ordered that the trustees should set apart the whole of the income of the settled funds which was then payable to him, & apply it for the children of the marriage until majority. C. became bkpt. in 1904, & his youngest child attained twenty-one in 1910:—Held: the above order was an act or event antecedent to his bkpcy. by which C.'s interest in the whole income was determined for a substantial period, & a forfeiture took place at the time the order was made, & nothing passed to the trustee in bkpcy.—Re CAREW'S TRUSTS, GELLIBRAND v. CAREW (1910), 103 L. 5909a. "Shall do some act" whereby income would be assigned—Authority to pay income to trustee of composition scheme—No notification of authority to trustee.]—B. was entitled to the income of one-third share of the residuary estate of testatrix unless & until he should be or become bkpt. or should do or suffer some act or thing whereby such share of income should be wholly or partially assigned, charged or incumbered or until he should die, whichever event should first happen, & from & after his death or bkpcy. or the doing or suffering such act as aforesaid such share & the income thereof should be held upon trust for his issue. Shortly after the death of testatrix B. entered into a scheme for composition with his creditors, & he then signed an authority to the trustees of testatrix's will "until further notice" to pay to the trustee under the scheme "the income now due or to accrue due" to B. from her estate. It appeared that there had been no communication by B. to the trustee of the scheme for composition concerning the authority given to the trustees of the will until after these proceedings had been taken in the matter:—Held: in these circumstances the authority given to the trustees of the will did not operate as a good equitable assignment of B.'s interest in testatrix's estate & did not work a forfeiture thereof, inasmuch as in the absence of communication concerning the authority, the same remained simply a bare authority which was revocable.—Re HAMILTON, FITZGEORGE v. FITZGEORGE (1921), 124 L. 5935a. Bankruptcy at & after determination of prior life interest—Annulled after income payable.]—B. was bequeathed an interest during his life in the income of testator's residuary estate, & by his will testator directed that, if any beneficiary thereunder should become bkpt., such beneficiary should forfeit his share which should thereupon devolve as provided for in the event of his death. Testator died in 1910 & on Apr. 16, 1914, B. was adjudicated bkpt. On Dec. 14, 1925, B.'s life interest fell into possession, & on Apr. 7, 1926, he procured the annulment of his bkpcy. Between Dec. 14, 1925, & the date of the annulment the trustees received income in respect of the residuary estate, but dealt only with such part as did not include the income in respect of B.'s interest, no payment being made in respect of that by them:—Held: as after Dec. 14, 1925, the trustees received sums in respect of the income of testator's estate which they could have been asked to hand over to the trustee in the bkpcy. of B. before the annulment of his bkpcy., there existed something upon which the forfeiture could operate, the test being whether there was any actual income of the share which could be treated by the trustees as payable to, or retained for, or appropriated for, the residuary legatee, & the annulment was not in time to prevent the operation of the forfeiture clause.—Re FORDER, FORDER v. FORDER, [1927] 2 Ch. 291; 96 L. 5936a. "Unless he attempts to become bankrupt"—Whether applicable to bankruptcy in invitum or generally.]—Testator, by his will dated Dec. 21, 1911, devised & bequeathed his real & personal estate to his trustees upon trust to sell & convert with power to postpone, & proceeded: "Out of my estate I desire my trustees to pay to my son H. an annuity of £156 to be paid monthly, unless he attempts to assign it or to become bkpt. In these events it shall be entirely optional with my trustees to pay him the annuity, my wish & intention being that the money is to be for his personal use to keep him from want. If they think his conduct or circumstances deserves or requires it, I authorise them to increase the annuity to £260 per annum, payable as & on the condition stated." Testator then directed that the residue of the income of his estate should be paid to his wife during her life or widowhood, & that after her death or remarriage it should be applied for the maintenance of his daughter until she attained the age of twenty-five years, & that upon her attaining that age the whole of the residue of his property should be given to her. By a codicil to his will, dated Sept. 10, 1918, testator devised two freehold farms to his son H. for the term of his life or "until he shall do some act to effectuate a sale or mtge. thereof or which shall forfeit the same in the case of bkpcy.," in either of which events the farms were to fall back into & form part of his residuary estate. Testator died on Sept. 13, 1918, leaving his widow, his daughter, & his son H. surviving. On Nov. 3, 1911, a receiving order had been made against H. on a creditor's petition, the act of bkpcy. being the failure to comply with a bkpcy. notice, & on Nov. 24, 1911, he was adjudged bkpt. Testator made his will & codicil with knowledge of these facts. On Jan. 22, 1919, H. obtained his discharge, but his creditors had not been paid in full, & the bkpcy. had not been annulled. On a summons taken out by the trustees for the determination of the questions whether the legacy given to H. by the will had become forfeited by his bkpcy., & whether the freeholds devised to him by the codicil belonged to him or formed part of the residuary estate:—Held: (1) the words "unless he attempts to become bkpt." in the will must be read in their strict grammatical sense & as so read did not apply to a bkpcy. in invitum or bkpcy. generally, & therefore no forfeiture of the annuity had occurred on which the discretionary trust arose, & consequently the annuity was payable to the trustee in H.'s bkpcy.; (2) the words of devise in the codicil though phrased in words of futurity applied under the doctrine of Trappes v. Meredith, No. 5932, ante, to the past bkpcy. of H., & there was no principle upon which the ct. would be justified in holding that the doctrine was not applicable to legal estates, & consequently the devised freeholds had ever since the death of testator formed part of his residuary estate.—Re EVANS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. EVANS, [1920] 2 Ch. 304; 89 L. On Jan. 31, 1929, deft. assigned "all his real & personal estate" to trustees for the benefit of his creditors, such assignment being executed as creditor by the insurance co. with which he held a policy indemnifying him against third party risks:—Held: deft.'s right to indemnity by the insurance co. having arisen prior to the assignment, passed as a chose in action to the trustee under the deed, & pltf. had no legal or equitable right to the insurance moneys.—SMITH v. HORLOR, [1930] N. Shortly afterwards C. obtained judgment against H. for damages for the injuries sustained by him. In an action brought by the two trustees jointly for a declaration (inter alia) that deft. co. were liable to indemnify H. & or pltfs. against the damages awarded to C. & that the agreement by which H. purported to release the co. was null & void :—Held : (1) the benefit of the indemnity vested in the trustee under the first bkpcy., notwithstanding that C.'s claim, being one in respect of a tort for which judgment was not obtained till after the commencement of the first bkpcy., was not provable in such bkpcy. ; (2) the benefit of the indemnity having vested in the trustee in the first bkpcy., his right thereto could not be affected by any subsequent agreement between deft. co. & H. ; (3) the trustee in the first bkpcy. was not estopped by his refusal to take part in C.'s action against H. from asserting his claim against deft. co.—HOOD'S TRUSTEES v. SOUTHERN UNION GENERAL INSURANCE CO. In 1918 the wife died, & in 1929 the husband died without having married again. In 1891 the husband was adjudicated bkpt. & obtained his discharge as from Apr. 14, 1899 :—Held : upon the true construction of the policy & Married Women's Property Act, 1870 (c. 93), s. 10, the interest in the policy moneys vested in the husband & upon his adjudication in the trustee in his bankruptcy subject to the trust in favour of his wife which enured for her benefit only if she survived her husband ; with the result that as she died before her husband & before the fund fell into possession, the policy moneys belonged & were payable to the trustee in bkpcy.

He subsequently resided in Algiers & carried on business as a coal merchant there until his death. On a petition presented by him in his lifetime to the ct. in Algiers he was declared bkpt. by the French ct. after his death, & a "syndic" was appointed there to whom creditors' claims might be sent. The effect of the order on the evidence was to vest in the French "syndic" the whole of bkpt.'s estate, including assets accruing after the commencement of the bkpcy. In a subsequent creditor's administration action in England, K., an English creditor, was appointed administrator & after a grant of administration with the will annexed, proceeded to advertise for creditors. The French "syndic" now claimed that the assets in this country should be transferred to him, admitting that if his application was successful the costs of administration here would have to be deducted :—Held : a bkpcy. order having been made by a French ct. of competent jurisdiction the "syndic" was entitled to the whole of the assets wheresoever situate, & these must be handed to him after deducting the costs, charges & expenses of the administration proceedings here.—Re BURKE, KING v. TERRY (1919), 54 L. Deft. became tenant of a house in Ghent for a period of eight months from Apr. 1913, & employed clerks & other persons. The partnership incurred heavy liabilities, & by a decree of the Commercial Ct. at Ghent, dated Aug. 9, 1913, the partnership & its members were declared to be insolvent pursuant to an article of the Belgian Civil Code. The decree was pronounced by the ct. without notice to deft., but subsequently, in accordance with the recognised procedure, he was notified of the decree & appeared by solr. to show cause why it should be dissolved. It was, however, affirmed by the Ct. of Appeal. Pltf., trustee in the bkpcy., brought an action in England alleging that deft. was possessed of assets within the jurisdiction of the English cts. & claiming a declaration that all deft.'s assets had become vested in pltf. as trustee : —Held : (1) the decree of the Belgian ct. was valid inasmuch as deft. had submitted to the jurisdiction, (2) the proceedings were not contrary to natural justice, inasmuch as deft. had been afforded an opportunity of being heard ; (3) subject to the decision of other issues not before the ct., there should be a declaration that pltf. was entitled to all the movable assets of deft., wherever situate, & to the appointment of a receiver.—BERGEREM v. MARSH (1921), 91 L. 6318a. Refusal of application for payment by trustee—Whether creditor may appeal.]—(1) In a bkpcy. where an application has been made by the trustee under 1914 Act, s. 51 (2), for the payment to the trustee out of the personal earnings of the bkpt. of such weekly sums as the ct. might direct, & the application has been refused, a creditor is not entitled to appeal under 1914 Act, s. 108 (2), from the refusal as being a "person aggrieved."

(2) Under 1914 Act, s. 105, the ct. having jurisdiction in bkpcy. has the widest possible powers. If, therefore, creditors, in pursuance of a resolution passed at a creditors' meeting, request the trustee or official receiver by virtue of 1914 Act, s. 79 (2), to summon meetings, & the trustee or official receiver refuse to comply with their request, the ct. has ample jurisdiction to decline to order the trustee to carry out the creditors' request to convene the meeting if it considers that the holding thereof would serve no useful purpose & would only result in a useless waste of the assets in the bkpcy. The function of the ct. in such a case is not merely ministerial.—Re BURN (J.), Ex p. DAWSON (E. N. de V.), MCCLELLAN (H. T.) & TRUSTEE, [1932] 1 Ch. 247 ; 146 L. T. 386 ; [1931] B. & C. 6507a. —— In name of agent—Delivery orders in hands of buyers.]—Bkpt., who carried on business as a merchant, had for some years dealt with pltfs. in vacuum flasks, which came from Germany. The bills of lading in respect of the goods were made out "to order" & the charges were paid by S., a forwarding agent employed by bkpt. The goods on arrival were stored at a wharf in the name, & for the account, of S. When a sale had taken place S. signed a delivery order which bkpt. handed to the buyers against payment for the goods. Between Aug. 3 & Sept. 7, 1927, pltfs. purchased a number of cases of vacuum flasks & paid bkpt. for them prior to the commencement of the bkpcy., the receiving order being made on Sept. 24. Bkpt., upon payment being made for the goods, handed to pltfs. delivery orders for the goods signed by S. & addressed to the wharfingers. These delivery orders had not been presented at the wharf at the date of the bkpcy., & when they were presented shortly afterwards the wharfingers, acting on S.'s instructions, refused to deliver the goods. The trustee in bkpcy. claimed that the goods were in the possession, order or disposition of bkpt. at the date of the receiving order & formed part of bkpt.'s estate under 1914 Act, s. 38 (c):—Held: pltfs. had not by their conduct in any way induced a belief that the goods were in the possession, order or disposition of bkpt. in such circumstances that he was the reputed owner thereof, & the trustee was not entitled to the goods as forming part of bkpt.'s estate.—SIMEONS (C.) & CO. v. DURAND'S TRUSTEE, [1928] 2 K. Under these contracts he had to value his clients' properties for rating purposes & give expert evidence on their appeals, his remuneration being a percentage of the reduction of their assessments when obtained. He mortgaged these contracts & the sums to become due on completion thereof to a mtgee., who by special arrangement with the mtgor. gave no notice to the clients so as not to imperil the mtgor 's business position, the mtgor. being allowed to collect the fees when due in his own name & hand them over to the mtgee. At the date of the mtgor.'s bkpcy., some fees (a) were due on completed contracts, but some fees (b) were still unearned. 6802a. —— —— ——.]—In Jan. 1922, G. purchased from bkpts. certain chattels used by them in their business as clothiers, & subsequently in consideration of the option to purchase & the hire-rent agreed upon let them on hire to bkpts. at a monthly rental. The chattels consisted of cutting tables, work tables, machines, stools, etc. The agreement was determinable in the event (inter alia) of a receiving order in bkpcy. being made against the hirers, upon which all payments made by the hirers were forfeitable & the chattels were to be delivered to the owner. On Sept. 6, 1922, a receiving order was made against the hirers; on Sept. 21 they were adjudicated bkpt., & on Sept. 25 a trustee in the bkpcy. was appointed. On motion by the trustee for a declaration that the chattels formed part of the estate of bkpts. as being in their order & disposition with the consent of the true owner :—Held : there was no proof of a general custom of hiring out chattels such as were specified in the agreement, nor was such a custom recognised by the cts. The inference of ownership was inevitable that by reason of the possession & user of the goods in the trade or business of the trader they "must" be the property of bkpts.—Re KAUFMAN SEGAL & DOMB, Ex p. TRUSTEE, [1923] 2 Ch. 89; 92 L. 6858a. ——.]—A trader carried on the business of selling & hiring out of pianos largely by means of hire-purchase agreements, by each of which the trader agreed to let on hire a piano, & in consideration the hirer agreed to pay the trader a sum of £4 on the date of hiring & £1 monthly so long as the hirer continued the hiring. The trader agreed that if the hirer should punctually pay him a specified total sum in these instalments, the piano was to become the absolute property of the hirer, but that until then it was to continue the trader's sole property. Early in 1930 the trader entered into a number of trader's agreements by which he agreed to deposit the hire-purchase agreements with the G. Co., Ltd., & on demand to assign to that co. or its nominees the full benefit of those agreements, & in the meantime to hold them on trust for the G. Co. & its nominees. The G. Co. subsequently assigned the benefit of the trader's agreements to pltf. No notice of the assignment was given until after the trader was adjudicated bkpt. on July 23, 1930 :—Held : the monthly sums which, after the commencement of the bkpcy., had or would become payable in advance under the hire-purchase agreements, if the hirer continued the hiring, were "debts . . . growing due to the bkpt. in the course of his trade or business" within Bkpcy. Act, 1914, s. 38 (c), & were therefore properly divisible among the bkpt.'s creditors as being things in action "at the commencement of the bkpcy. in the possession, order or disposition of the bkpt., in his trade or business, by the consent & permission of the true owner" within that sect.—BLAKEY v. PENDLEBURY PROPERTY TRUSTEES, [1931] 2 Ch. 255; 100 L. 6858b. Judgment debt.]—S., a customer of bkpt., a stockbroker, became indebted to him in respect of Stock Exchange transactions in a sum for which bkpt., on Dec. 18, 1923, recovered judgment. Later, S. became similarly indebted to bkpt. in a further sum. On Jan. 15, 1924, bkpt. assigned both debts to W. to secure £500, & covenanted with him that, in the event of his refraining from giving notice of the assignment to S., he, bkpt., would, on payment of the debts or any part thereof, hand the cheque or other form of payment to W. On Feb. 27, 1924, bkpt. committed an act of bkpcy. In Mar. 1924, J., who acted as solr. for both bkpt. & W. in the matter of the assignment, on the instructions of both & without disclosing same, made an agreement with S. for the liquidation of the two debts, whereby S. undertook to pay the aggregate amount thereof by monthly instalments, the first instalments being allocated to the payment of the later of the two debts & the subsequent ones to the payment of the judgment debt; & S. further agreed to deliver promissory notes payable to bkpt. or order to cover the instalments allocated to the later debt. J. received the notes from S. &, as agent of W., collected the amounts as they fell due on the notes & paid part thereof to W. & retained the balance. After payment J. returned the notes to S. to be cancelled. At that time neither J. nor W. nor S. had notice of any available act of bkpcy. On Sept. 18, 1924, a receiving order was made, at which date S. had paid & W. had received from J. sums amounting to £90 in respect of the later debt. Upon receiving notice of the receiving order, J. gave notice to S. of the assignment. On

In Apr. 1925, W. died, & his exor. was made resp. to the motion by which a declaration was sought that the two debts were at the commencement of the bkpcy. in the order & disposition of bkpt. & property of bkpt. divisible amongst his creditors:—Held: (1) the earlier debt, which, admittedly, arose in the course of bkpt.'s business, was notwithstanding its conversion into a judgment debt, none the less at the commencement of the bkpcy. a debt due in the course of his business & in the order & disposition of bkpt. & divisible amongst his creditors (2) the agreement between bkpt. & S. & the deposit of the notes by bkpt. with W. having been effected after the commencement of the bkpcy., in the absence of knowledge on the part of either S. or W. of an available act of bkpcy., & the ct. inferring an agreement by W. with bkpt., in consideration of the deposit of the notes, not to enforce payment of the advance so long as S. paid the amounts as & when they fell due, constituted valid transactions for valuable consideration within 1914 Act, s. 45, &, apart from such inference, the forbearance of W. on the strength of the deposit of the notes to sue & his acceptance of the instalments constituted sufficient consideration for the deposit of the notes; (3) even if the trustee was entitled to recover the instalments paid after the date of the receiving order, the amount paid before that date was a payment protected by sect. 45 (b); & the judgment debt formed part of the property of bkpt. divisible amongst his creditors, while the claim in respect of the other debt should be dismissed.—Re WETHERED, Ex p. SALAMAN, [1926] Ch. 167; 70 Sol. On Mar. 16 the sheriff made a second levy, but on being paid £53 on account of the debt in addition to fees & possession money, he again withdrew reserving a right of re-entry for the £19 balance. After retaining the £53 for fourteen days he paid it to the execution creditors. On Apr. 26 the sheriff made a third levy, but the goods seized being found on interpleader to belong to a third party, he finally withdrew & made a return of nulla bona on May 2. On the following day the sheriff levied execution on the goods of the debtor under a writ of fi. fa. issued by resps. to enforce their judgment. On Sept. 24, 1928, it was agreed in writing between resps. & the debtor that in consideration of resps. withdrawing execution, the debtor should pay to resps. £15 on account of the debt & costs & the balance thereof by monthly instalments, the debtor undertaking, in case of default in payment of any of the agreed instalments, to authorise the sheriff to retake possession. In pursuance of the agreement the £15 & the costs of the execution were paid ; whereupon the sheriff withdrew. Up to Oct. 22, 1929, the amount paid in respect of the instalments was £63 & no more, & on Jan. 10, 1930, the sheriff entered a second time into possession to levy execution for the balance of the debt remaining unpaid. On Jan. 13, 1930, while the sheriff was in possession, a receiving order was made against the debtor on his own petition filed on the same day, & he was adjudicated bkpt. On Jan. 14 resps. received notice of the receiving order. On Jan. 16, 1930, the official receiver, as trustee in the bkpcy., claimed from resps. payment of the two sums so received by them, amounting together to £78, as forming part of bkpt.'s estate available for the general body of his creditors, & on Mar. 12, 1931, issued a notice of motion to enforce his claim. 6965a. "Any other petition"—Notice not given within fourteen days.]—A sheriff, on behalf of an execution creditor, levied an execution against debtor for more than £20, & received the money from debtor to avoid a sale. Within fourteen days of the payment the sheriff received notice of a bkpcy. petition on which an order would have been made had not debtor in the meanwhile filed his own petition on which a receiving order was made as a matter of course. Notice of this second petition was given to the sheriff more than fourteen days after the payment, but while the money was still in his hands pending the result of the first petition. The trustee in bkpcy. & the execution creditor both claimed the money :—Held : the words in 1914 Act, s. 41 (2), "or on any other petition of which the sheriff has notice," were not to be qualified by the addition of the words "within the said fourteen days" so as to permit the sheriff to pay the proceeds of the execution to the execution creditor because notice of the second petition on which the receiving order was made was not given within fourteen days of the receipt of such proceeds. The sheriff must hold, in the first instance, to see whether a receiving order would be made, & if he had notice of another petition, even after the lapse of fourteen days, then he must hold to see whether an order would be made on that other petition, or on any petition.—LATTER v. JUCKES & PAGE, [1927] 1 K. sk. Settlement on creditor.]—On Jan. 29, 1925, J., being in embarrassed circumstances & indebted, amongst others, to M. for £1,200, settled certain land on M., & another upon trust for herself & her only child during her life & after her death for her child absolutely. A private meeting of J.'s creditors was held on Apr. 22, 1925, & a committee appointed to investigate her affairs, & it was agreed to accept £200 from M. to be distributed among the creditors in full payment of their debts. Some of the creditors, including the R. Co., refused to carry out this arrangement, but on the faith that it would be carried out, J., on Apr. 28, paid M. £100 on account of his debt. On June 5 the debtor filed a petition for liquidation, but before the meeting on June 24 the R. Co. served a debtor's summons. The R. Co. had notice of the meeting for June 24, but did not attend. This meeting was attended by creditors whose indebtedness was about two-thirds of the total sum. They unanimously passed a resolution for liquidation by arrangement, & appointed a trustee. On the hearing of an application by the debtor & the trustee to dismiss the debtor's summons it was held that the application must be dismissed, but as the creditors who absented themselves from the liquidation meeting should have & could have attended it, they must pay the costs. The bkpcy. proceedings were continued, & a trustee appointed. The trustee then applied to have the settlement to M. delivered up to be cancelled & for repayment of the £100 paid to M. on Apr. 28, 1925:—Held: the settlement was not made in good faith & must be delivered up. The payment of £100 to M. was a fraudulent preference, & it must be repaid to the trustee.—Re JEFFREYS (1925), 21 Tas. L. R. 31.—AUS.

7113a. —— Gift by brother to sister.]—By a deed of gift dated Oct. 7, 1919, debtor, who was adjudged bkpt. on Nov. 23, 1920, "in consideration of his natural love & affection for the donee" purported to assign & convey to his sister, resp., "the business carried on by him at 58a, Old Compton Street, Soho, & the stock-in-trade, wine & produce in & about the premises." At the date of the deed petitioning creditors were proceeding to enforce judgment under R. S. C., Ord. 14, & on Mar. 18, 1920, obtained final judgment against debtor for £527 7*s.* 4*d.* for goods sold & costs. On Mar. 20, 1920, execution was levied. Upon such levy being made, resp. claimed under the deed of gift the whole of the furniture & stock seized by the sheriff. An interpleader summons was taken out by the sheriff, & upon the hearing thereof, on Mar. 26, 1920, the master ordered claimant to pay into ct. £600 or give security for such amount, & in default the sheriff was authorised to sell the property seized & pay the proceeds into ct. to abide the result of an issue directed to be tried between claimant & the execution creditors. Pursuant to the order the sheriff sold the goods on Apr. 28, 1920, & on May 20, 1920, paid the sum of £202 12*s.* 2*d.* into ct. On Nov. 3, 1920, the parties to the interpleader summons agreed to divide the money between them & to withdraw the record; these terms were embodied in an order of the master of that date. In the meantime, however, a receiving order was made on Nov. 1, 1920, & petitioning creditors, the execution creditors, informed the official receiver of the sum of money being in ct. & of the terms of settlement so agreed as aforesaid. Thereupon the official receiver intervened, & on Nov. 1, 1920, gave notice in writing to the Paymaster-General of the Supreme Ct. of the receiving order, & this notice had the effect of preventing the order being acted upon. The trustee moved for a declaration that the deed of gift was void as against him :—Held : (1) the deed of gift was a voluntary settlement &, being made within two years of the bkpcy., was void; (2) the execution having been completed & the proceeds held by the sheriff for fourteen days, the trustee's title was barred, because, although the execution was not completed before the sheriff had been in possession for twenty-one days, the act of bkpcy. thereby created had not occurred within three months of the presentation of the petition & was not therefore available to establish the trustee's title.—Re CHIANDETTI, Ex p. TRUSTEE (1921), 91 L. The husband was adjudged bkpt. on June 20, 1922, within two years of the assignment. On motion by the trustee in the bkpcy. for a declaration that the assignment was void against him as being a voluntary settlement under 1914 Act, s. 42 :—Held : there was ample consideration in the assignment, & the wife was a "purchaser" for valuable consideration within the sect.—Re CHARTERS, Ex p. TRUSTEE, [1923] B. & C. 7155a. Covenant to pay premiums on life policy.]—A. & B. were traders in partnership. In 1927 both partners were adjudicated bankrupt. In 1910, A. on his marriage had executed an ante-nuptial settlement, by which he (inter alia) covenanted with the trustees of the settlement to keep up a life policy on his life then existing & to pay the premiums, etc. On the bkpcy. of the two partners the trustees of the settlement lodged a proof in the bkpcy. of A. with regard to the covenant to keep up the policy, for a sum that was arrived at by commuting in a single payment the annual premiums payable to keep up the policy & to make it fully paid. The trustee in bkpcy. rejected the proof on the ground that under 1914 Act, s. 42 (2), their claim was postponed until all the other creditors for valuable consideration in money or money's worth had been satisfied, & he alleged that the assets available would not be sufficient :—Held : the covenant fell within 1914 Act, s. 42 (2), & the trustee was right in rejecting the proof, as being a claim for something which was only provable after the other creditors for valuable consideration in money or money's worth had been satisfied ; & also having regard to 1914 Act, ss. 33 (6), 42 (2), & 63 (1), the right of the trustees to put in a proof must depend on all the creditors of the partnership between A. & B., the joint creditors of the partnership, as well as the separate creditors of A., being first satisfied.—Re CUMMING & WEST, Ex p. NEILSON & CRAIG v. TRUSTEE, [1929] 1 Ch. 534 ; 141 L. 7166a. —— ——.]—To constitute a fraudulent preference three conditions must be fulfilled ; (1) that the payment is made by a person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money ; (2) that it in fact prefers one creditor over others ; (3) that the dominant motive with which the payment was made was a desire to prefer that creditor to whom the payment was made. If a voluntary payment in fact gives a creditor a preference & the reason for such payment is unexplained, then a presumption of preference arises. 7414a. Payment to agent of creditor—Agent paying over sum to principal in course of business.]—A payment by a debtor to an agent who receives the money in the ordinary course of his employment for the use of a creditor is not a payment in favour of a " person in trust for any creditor," within 1914 Act, s. 44. The effect of that sect. is not to render the personal liability of an agent to repay a debt, payment of which he has received on behalf of his principal, greater than his liability in a case where money has been paid to him for the use of his principal in circumstances which entitle the person paying it to recover it back, even though it should turn out that, in fact, the payment constituted a fraudulent preference within the sect.

The agents in the ordinary course of their employment received that sum for the use of their principals & paid over part thereof to G. & the balance to the co., such payment being made in good faith, in the belief that the payment was a good & valid payment, in ignorance of the impending bkpcy. of debtor & long before any claim by the trustees in the bkpcy. 7603a. —— Employee of company—Refusal of company to pay—Termination of employment alleged.]—Bkpt., after his adjudication, entered into an agreement of service in writing for one year at a salary of £1,000, the agreement being signed in the name of a joint stock co., underneath which was the name of the managing director followed by the words, "managing director." An order was subsequently made by a registrar, under 1914 Act, s. 51 (2), that £300 out of a sum of £416 13*s.* 4*d.* due under the agreement from the co. &/or its managing director to bkpt. be forthwith paid by them to the trustee of the estate of bkpt. When the registrar made that order the only parties before the ct. were the trustee & bkpt. Neither the co. nor its managing director paid the £300, but alleged that nothing was due to bkpt. upon the ground that he had broken the agreement by absenting himself from his employment. The trustee then served a notice of motion in the High Ct. upon the co. & its managing director asking for a declaration that he was entitled to the £300 from resps. as forming part of the property of bkpt., & for an order for payment of that amount. The judge found that no dismissal had taken place nor had bkpt., by his conduct, given notice of his intention not to perform the contract which could be treated by resps. as an anticipatory breach. No point was taken as to whether the managing director was properly made a resp. :—Held : in the circumstances there must be a declaration & order for payment in terms of the notice of motion.—Re LAVEY, Ex p. TRUSTEE, [1920] 1 K. The furniture was valued by a firm of valuers selected by the wife out of three firms suggested by the trustee, & bought by or on behalf of the wife at a price based upon the valuation. Upon the taxation of the trustee's solrs.' bill of costs, the taxing master disallowed as against the wife the fee paid by the trustee to the firm of valuers, upon the ground that the costs relating to the purchase of the furniture by or on behalf of the wife under the valuation did not come within the order, & were not costs of carrying it out. On a motion by the solrs. to review the taxation :—Held : the taxation must be reviewed & the fee for the valuation allowed as against the wife, inasmuch as it formed part of the costs of carrying out the order & was therefore within the rule that where costs of suit are given generally by decree at the hearing, the subsequent costs of working out the directions of the decree will be included.—Re LAVEY, Ex p. COHEN & COHEN, [1920] 3 K. This motion was dismissed with costs. On taxing resp.'s bill of costs the taxing master disallowed part of the transcript as irrelevant to the motion & reduced counsel's fees accordingly. On motion for a review of taxation :—Held : having regard to the terms of the notice to read the transcript resp.'s solr. was justified in bespeaking & paying for the whole of the transcript, & it was his duty to supply the whole transcript to counsel, &, accordingly, resp. was entitled to all the costs of & consequential upon so doing.—Re MARKS, Ex p. VANN, [1923] B. & C. deft. had agreed to sell the remaining half interest in these rights to one G. for a sum immediately payable & the balance by deferred payments & that he had used the amount received for his own purposes in breach, as the ct. found as a fact, of his undertaking, moved the ct. for the committal of deft. or the issue of a writ of attachment:—Held: (1) the undertaking to pay the £4,000, being an undertaking to pay a specific sum out of the moneys to be received in respect of a future sale, constituted a good equitable assignment thereof, & by dealing with the moneys received in disregard of the undertaking deft. had committed a breach of his fiduciary duty to pltf. The act of deft. therefore brought the case within the third exception to Debtors Act, 1869 (c. 62), s. 4; (2) the undertaking to pay out of the first moneys received could not be construed as an order to pay forthwith or within a fixed time after receipt within R. S. C., Ord. 41, r. 5, & therefore the order for committal or for leave to issue a writ of attachment could not be made. 8435a. Motion to commit by official receiver acting as trustee—Necessity for affidavit.]—Bkpts. were musical artists, & on Sept. 16, 1920, the registrar made orders for each of them to pay £4 a week out of their respective salaries under 1914 Act, s. 51 (2). On Jan. 13, 1921, upon the application of the official receiver as trustee, under sect. 53 (1) of the Act, no trustee having been appointed, & it appearing to the ct. that bkpts., as partners, were then in receipt of at least £200 a week under a contract with the A. Co., the above orders were varied, & orders were made that during the continuance of the engagement of bkpts. at the A. each should pay weekly £25 out of his salary to the official receiver during the bkpcy., the first payment to be made on Jan. 15, 1921, with liberty to bkpts. to apply in the event of the employment with the A. Co. being determined. Appeals from these orders were dismissed by the Ct of Appeal. Bkpts. having made default in payment of instalments under the orders, the official receiver as trustee applied for a committal of bkpts. for contempt of ct. under sect. 22 (4) of the Act. It was objected that each application should be supported by affidavit & not by a report of the official receiver:—Held: the official receiver's report was sufficient evidence in support of the application in each case, & an order for committal must be made.—Re WHALEY, Ex p. OFFICIAL RECEIVER, [1921] 2 K. 8439a. —— Application by agent for unincorporated association.]—In an action by pltf. against an unincorporated body & seventeen named persons described as its committee, in which pltf. claimed damages for libel, judgment was given in the High Ct. for deft. with costs. On a bkpcy. notice founded on that judgment not being complied with, defts. presented a petition in bkpcy.; but this petition was dismissed by the registrar as being wrong in form, on the ground (inter alia) that the petition was by an agent on behalf of an unincorporated assocn. & others, whereas such an assocn. cannot sue or be sued, either in its own name or by a purported agent. Subsequently, defts. took out a judgment summons in the county ct., & the county ct. judge ordered pltf. to pay by instalments the sum due under the judgment of the High Ct., together with the costs of the summons:—Held: (1) as procedure by judgment summons is a mode of enforcing a judgment & directly in connection with the action, as distinguished from a bkpcy. petition, which is not, the county ct. judge had jurisdiction to make the order; (2) the death of one of the successful defts. since the judgment did not render it necessary for the survivors to obtain the leave of the ct. before they could enforce the judgment.—BUNDY v. MOTOR CAB OWNER DRIVERS' ASSOCN. 8645a. —— To entertain claim to enforce right adverse to deed—Creditor not entitled to benefit of deed.]—In 1922 applt. entered into the employment of debtor as manageress of his business, & as a condition of such employment she lent him a sum of £500 for the repayment of which he gave her a charge on his share & interest in his business. In 1924 debtor executed a deed of arrangement for the benefit of his creditors generally. The deed was expressed to be made between debtor of the first, the trustee of the second part, three named creditors of the third part, & "the several persons, companies, & partnership firms, being creditors of debtor, whose names & seals are set out & affixed to the schedule hereto, or who shall otherwise in writing assent to these presents, hereinafter called 'the creditors'" of the fourth part. Applt., who refused to consent to the deed, applied under the above sect. for a declaration that she was entitled as against the trustee of the deed to a charge on all the share & interest, with the exception of chattels, of debtor in his business, & for an order that the trustee should hand over & execute such documents as might be necessary for the purpose of transferring the share & interest to applt. The registrar in bkpcy. dismissed the application on the ground that he had no jurisdiction under the sect. to entertain it. On appeal :—Held : (1) the object of the sect. was to provide a trustee or cestui que trust under a deed of arrangement with a summary means of obtaining a determination of questions arising in the administration of the trusts of the deed similar to that provided by originating summons in the Ch. Div. under R. S. C. Ord. 55, r. 3; (2) applt. was not a creditor entitled to the benefit of the deed; creditors so entitled were those defined as such by the deed, & applt., not having assented to the deed, did not come within that category; (3) applt.'s claim was not for the enforcement in all, of whom sixty-eight were for sums over £10; twenty-five of the sixty-eight did not assent to the deed within the time required by the Act; forty-three with debts over £10 & twenty-eight with debts under £10 assented. The debtor escaped bkpcy. proceedings by reason of the execution of the deed & afterwards recognised it & concurred in the trustee acting under it. He subsequently made an application for a declaration that the deed was void. No creditor was made a party to the application, it being addressed to the trustee of the deed alone:—Held: (1) the deed had received the assent of the majority of creditors in number within sect. 3 (5) of the Act, inasmuch as for the purpose of the section creditors whose debts amount to sums not exceeding £10 are not to be reckoned either in calculating the total number of creditors or the majority in number; (2) inasmuch as the creditors did not, under the power of attorney, gain any control over the debtor's property or business, it was not in itself a deed of arrangement within sect. 1 (2) (e) of the Act, which required registration in order to be valid.—Re WILSON, [1916] 1 K. 8778a. —— ——.]—In 1904 debtor who was heavily indebted, & against whom bkpcy. proceedings were pending, signed an instrument under which a trustee was to receive the whole of debtor's income &, after making certain deductions, to distribute the balance among the creditors, & in consideration of the arrangement the creditors agreed that all proceedings in bkpcy. or otherwise were to be stayed & to accept payment of their debts by instalments & to release debtor from all claims or demands in respect of their debts. The instrument provided that no document executed by debtor should be registered under the above Act. A number of the then creditors including appct. assented to the instrument, which was never registered under the Act. The arrangement was carried out until the death of debtor, which occurred in Nov. 1918, appct. receiving pro rata amounts on his debt between Aug. 1905, & July, 1917. The debt carried interest at 4 per cent. & the payments under the arrangement to appct. were not sufficient to cover the interest so that an amount exceeding the original debt was still owing to appct. In Feb. 1919, an administration order under 1914 Act, s. 130, was made upon a creditor's petition for the administration of deceased debtor's estate as being a person who had died insolvent, & the estate was being administered by the official receiver. At the time of debtor's death there was in the hands of the trustee under the instrument a sum of £465 8*s.* 3*d.* which the official receiver claimed on the ground that it formed part of the general estate of debtor, & the trustee paid the amount to him upon the terms that the official receiver was to be in the same position as he would have been if the money had remained in the trustee's hands. On a motion by appct. for a declaration that the £465 8*s.* 3*d.* was held by the trustee on behalf of the assenting creditors, including appct., was divisible amongst them, & that appct. was entitled to prove in the administration of the estate for the balance due to him from debtor after giving credit for all sums received or receivable under the arrangement:—Held: (1) the instrument was a deed of arrangement within 1887 Act, s. 4 (2), upon the ground that it was an assignment of property by debtor for the benefit of his creditors generally & also upon the ground that it was an agreement for a composition; (2) not having been registered it was void under sect. 5 of the Act; (3) as the instrument was void it created no trust for the benefit of the creditors, & the trustee under the instrument held the £465 8*s.* 3*d.* to the use of the official receiver as the representative of debtor, & was bound to repay it to him; (4) as the only direction to apply the money received by the trustee was contained in the void instrument & all parties knew & acted upon the assumption that it was invalid, deceased debtor would not have been, nor was the official receiver as his representative, estopped from setting up its invalidity & claiming from the trustee any money still in his hands; (5) equally there was no estoppel which prevented appct. from setting up the invalidity of the instrument & proving in the administration for the balance due to him from debtor; (6) as the instrument was void the release of the debts it contained was of no effect; (7) as under the instrument there was only a provision for payment to the creditors of debtor's income so long as he lived, no promise to pay the balance of the debts could be implied from the payments which had been made so as to take the debts out of the operation of the statutes of limitation, & appct.'s right to prove in the administration for the balance due to him was therefore barred.—Re LEE, Ex p. GRUNWALDT, [1920] 2 K. 8782d. —— Deed of arrangement made by insolvent debtor.]—A debtor, who was insolvent, under a scheme for the composition of his debts, which amounted to about £150,000, entered into a deed of arrangement with his creditors under which he agreed to pay his trade creditors, including pltfs., a composition of their claim, together with certain profits out of his business up to Apr. 30, 1926, & he covenanted to carry on that business up to that date, the creditors covenanting to release him from the full amount of his liability. Some of his creditors, whose claims amounted to £150 were not parties to the scheme or deed, &, acting under legal advice, debtor did not register the deed. After paying his trade creditors, including pltfs., a small portion of the composition, debtor sold his business & entered into another scheme of arrangement with his creditors, to which pltfs. refused to be parties, & they sued for the original debt owing to them, less the amount which they had received under the composition:—Held: (1) the deed came within Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1914 (c. 47), s. 1 (1) (b), &, not being registered, was void; (2) pltfs., who had assented to the deed, were not estopped by such assent from denying the validity of the deed; (3) assuming that they were so estopped, debtor, by selling his business before Apr. 30, 1926, had not fulfilled the conditions of the deed under which he would be released from his original liability, & therefore pltfs. were relegated to their original rights & were entitled to succeed on their claim. Where under a scheme all the creditors would receive more than 50 per cent. & it was reasonable & provided for immediate payment of all but one of the creditors, but the creditor who financed the scheme would be entitled to be paid in full, the ct. ratified the composition as the most advantageous that could be proposed.—Re GARDNER, Ex p. CROFT & SONS, LTD., [1921] 19 O. The deed, which was executed on May 6, 1928, was in the usual form, & in all material particulars the same as that considered by the ct. in Easterbrook v. Barker, No. 9024. By the deed N. & B., the debtors, in consideration of a release of their indebtedness to the assenting creditors, assigned their real & personal estates to C. as inspector upon trust to allow N. & B. The latter portion of the document was as follows: "& we the undersigned creditors of the said A. do hereby agree to accept as full settlement of the claims we have against him such pro rata share as may be found due in respect of the sale of the said assets, & we agree to pay the said applt. the usual commission on all assets realised: applt. having taken possession of the assets & having sold some of them, resp., one of the creditors who had signed the document, in an action against applt., complained that applt. had awarded a preference to one M. a creditor who had signed the document in respect of his claim which was based on two mtge. bonds referred to in the schedule of assets, & that applt. had failed to award resp. a pro rata share of the proceeds of the assets realised. It was common cause that if M. was entitled to the preference, resp., an unsecured creditor, would get nothing. The C. P. D. ordered applt. to amend his account by striking out the preference awarded to M. & distributing the proceeds of the assets among the creditors pro rata according to the respective amounts of their claims. Extrinsic evidence showing that the parties never intended that the secured creditors should abandon their preference had been led subject to subsequent decision as to its admissibility, but was held by the cts. below to be inadmissible, on the ground that the document was not ambiguous:—Held: the words "pro rata share" meant that the three creditors were to look to the proceeds of the assets in the schedule alone for the settlement of their claims, if the assets did not realise the full amount of their debts, & that they had reference not to the respective claims of the creditors but to the proportion that the proceeds bore to the total amount of the debts & that there was nothing in the document to show that preferences were to be given up.—SWANEPOEL v. VAN HEERDEN, [1928] App. D. 15.—S. In such course of business, they consigned Brazil sugars & indigo to pltf. for G. & other merchants at Petersburg, & transmitted the bills of lading, & drew bills to the amount; upon which pltf. informed them, that he protected their drafts to the amount of all the goods consigned to the merchants at Petersburg, except those consigned to G.; that he accepted the draft for the amount of such goods provisionally, under the guarantee of defts., inasmuch as the sugars against which the bill was drawn were not, as ordered by his principal, Havannah, to the amount of which he was authorised to accept, but Brazil, respecting which he had no directions; that he would communicate with his principal on the subject, & inform defts. of the result. Such communication being made, G. at Petersburg, confirmed the order for the Brazil sugars, & directed pltf. to accept to their amount, & release defts. from their guarantee. 568a. —— Effect of 1882 Act, s. 12.]—F., a financier, L., a distiller, D. & M., a firm of shipbrokers, & one A. were minded to load a ship with a cargo of whisky to be carried across the Atlantic & sold in the U.S. or at some point from which it could easily be smuggled into the U.S., in violation of the laws of that country. D. & M. entered into a contract to buy a steamer for £2,565; F. advanced £256 as a deposit on the purchase. On Oct. 26, 1927, an agreement was entered into between F., L. & D. & M., whereby L. agreed to sell to D. & M. 7,500 cases of whisky at 27*s.* 6*d.* a case free on board at Leith or Glasgow to be delivered ex warehouse not later than Nov. 26. D. & M. were to take delivery on board a vessel of a regular line of steamers. Payment was to be made by a bill for £5,500 drawn by F., accepted by A. & indorsed to L., & a second bill for £4,812 accepted by A. & D. & M., both bills to be payable ninety days from Nov. 26, & to be drawn & accepted on Oct. 26 & handed to L. to hold as security until he should hand the shipping documents or delivery order from bond on or before Nov. 26. L. agreed to lend D. & M. £2,500 (£1,000 at 8 per cent. per annum & £1,500 at 40 per cent. per annum interest) for the purchase of the steamer, the loan to be secured by a first mtge. on the steamer. F. agreed to lend D. & M. £1,000 at 40 per cent. per annum interest to be secured by a second mtge. on the steamer. D. & M. agreed to insure the steamer for £1,000 against all risks including seizure or confiscation & £2,500 against marine risks & deliver to L. cover notes for £1,500 & £1,000 & to F. a cover note for £1,000. F. & L. agreed jointly to underwrite the insurance for £1,000 against confiscation at a figure to be agreed in the event of the ordinary market rate exceeding thirty guineas per cent. D. & M. agreed to provide £1,600, the estimated balance required for the equipment of the steamer for the voyage. In intended pursuance of the agreement two documents undated, & purporting to be bills of exchange, though written upon unstamped paper, were sent to L.; both were headed "London"; one was drawn by F., accepted by A., & indorsed by F., & was for £5,500, payable ninety days after date; the other not signed by any one as drawer; it was accepted by A. & by D. & M., & was for £1,812 payable ninety days after date. Delay having occurred in naming a liner to take delivery of the whisky & in equipping the steamer for the adventure, L. gave to D. & M. a delivery order addressed to the keepers of the bonded warehouse where the whisky was in store. D. & M. immediately pledged the whisky for £500. F. hearing of this paid off the loan & took a transfer of the delivery order. The so-called bills of exchange for £5,500 & £4,812 were sent to L., who was at Lausanne. It was made payable to another partner, & was indorsed by a third partner, who believed the same as the drawer, as well as by the payee. The payee, in fraud of the other two partners, did not affix the stamp of the syndicate & used the cheque for the purpose of raising a loan from money-lenders, for which he gave a promissory note binding him to repay an agreed sum by monthly instalments. When one of the instalments fell due, the cheque was tendered in payment & was dishonoured upon presentation, & the money-lenders then sued the drawer &

The drawer when sending the bill to the co. for acceptance stated in his letter that as a condition of his doing the work for which the bill was drawn he should require it to be indorsed by the directors as well as accepted by the co. Accordingly the same two directors signed the bill also on the back, "Fashions Fair Exhibition, Ltd. In an action against A.B. & C.D. as indorsers of the bill:—Held: (1) they were personally liable, upon the ground that if the indorsement was to be treated as that of the co. it gave no greater validity to the bill than was already contained in the acceptance, & therefore under 1882 Act, s. 26 (2), the construction that it was the personal indorsement of defts. was to be adopted; (2) even if the indorsement stood by itself, as defts.' signature did not in terms say that they were signing on behalf of the co., the addition to their names of the word "directors" must be treated as a word of description only & not as excluding their liability; (3) the ct. were entitled to look at the surrounding circumstances under which the bill was signed, including the letters which passed between the parties on the subject of the indorsement, from which it was to be inferred that defts. by indorsing intended to guarantee the payment of the bill.—ELLIOTT v. BAX-IRONSIDE, [1925] 2 K. sx. Giving credit.]—In an action upon promissory notes made by defts. husband & wife, in favour of pltfs. wholesale merchants, it appeared that in Mar. 1921, the wife deft. who had been carrying on a retail business, made an assignment under the Bkpcy. Act, & shortly afterwards made a proposal to compound her debts at 35 cents in the dollar, to be paid in ten equal monthly instalments. The composition was duly approved by the ct. Pltfs. were among the creditors. The debtor did not complete the composition payments within the times proposed, & the final payment was not made until Aug. 1923. After the composition was approved, the debtor continued to do business, & made some purchases from pltfs. In Sept. 1922, the debtor proposed to buy a large quantity from pltfs. on credit, but pltfs. refused to give credit for the quantity desired unless defts. would make some settlement of the old debt, i.e. the unpaid balance of pltfs.' compound claim. Defts. thereupon signed the promissory notes now sued upon, delivered them to pltfs.. & received a new supply of goods upon the credit they desired:—Held: the notes were not made for the accommodation of pltfs.; but, though representing a compromised debt, were in fact made 843a. Fraudulent pledge of debentures—Surrender for renewal—Rights of pledgee.]—A man, entrusted with certain debenture securities for the purpose of collecting the interest on behalf of the owners, by means of forged endorsements pledged all the debentures with his bankers to secure his own indebtedness. Later the debentures, which constituted negotiable instruments, were surrendered by the bank to the issuing authority, who exchanged them for new debentures of the same total value. All the new instruments were issued directly to & in the name of the surrendering bank, & clear of all previous endorsements. The original securities were then cancelled & retained by the makers. Later the said bank at the request of the pledgor of the securities endorsed the new instruments over to another bank, the present respondents, to whom he had transferred his loan account. On a claim by the owners of the original debentures, the present applts., for the delivery to them of the new instruments by resp. bank :—Held : there was nothing in the circumstances of the transaction to put resps. on inquiry. The issue by the makers of the "renewal" debentures constituted in effect a new contract between them & the first bank, &, resp. bank being the holders in due course of those instruments, applts. had no right of action against them. The "renewals" were in form & in substance new & independent obligations in substitution for those under the surrendered instruments.—MASCARENHAS v. MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LTD., DA SILVA v. MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LTD. n (p. 140) i. —— Notice that transferor not entitled to transfer.]—Defts. entered into a hire-purchase agreement with the H. Co. in respect of a motor car, & gave promissory notes as collateral security, but not in payment of the instalments payable thereunder. It was a term of the hire-purchase agreement, that defts. should be entitled to determine the hiring by returning the car to the H. Co. &, thereupon, the H. Co. was obliged to surrender all promissory notes given by defts., & not then due. Pltf., in course of an arrangement for financing the H. Co.'s transactions, paid the H. Co. an agreed price for the car, & the H. Co. indorsed deft.'s promissory notes & delivered them to pltf. Thereafter, defts. proposed, in lieu of the instalments, to pay £150 at once, & the residue of the consideration in a single deferred payment. The H. Co. sought to retire the promissory notes held by the pltf., but as the parties could not agree as to the rebate for payment in anticipation of the due dates, nothing eventuated. The H. Co., however, accepted the £150, & later, the balance of the consideration, from defts., & met each note held by pltf. as it fell due, until it went into liquidation. Pltf.'s representative was aware, in another capacity, of what had occurred between the other parties. Pltf. having brought an action against defts. on the promissory notes still held by it :—Held : it was a part of the bargain between defts. & the H. They were renewals for the balance unpaid of a previous note from deft. to L. There was conflicting evidence as to the reason & consideration for giving the original note. L. asserted that the note was given for the amount owing to him by deft. on a loan. Deft. asserted that the note was for L.'s accommodation; that the loan from L., asserted by L. to have been made to deft., had in fact been made to one R., that subsequently L. wanted the money, R. could not then pay, that deft. gave the note, for the same amount as that owing by R., to enable L. to raise money, but received no consideration, that it was agreed that deft. was not to be called upon to pay the note or any renewals, & that the note or any renewals would not be negotiated after maturity. The trial judge withdrew the case from the jury : —Held : there the questions whether the note was given simply for L.'s accommodation or in consideration of a debt due by deft. or by R., & whether there was an agreement, as alleged by deft., that the note should not be negotiated after maturity, should have been submitted to the jury.—GLESBY v. MITCHELL, [1932] S. 1548a. Bill treated as promissory note.]—On Mar. 23, 1920, the branch of the British Trade Corpn., Ltd., at Batoum, drew a document in the following form : "At sight pay this sole exchange to the order of Mr. B. L. Mailoff the sum of one thousand pounds sterling value received which place to account No. 2." The document was signed "For the British Trade Corpn." by the manager & accountant, & it was addressed at the foot "To the British Trade Corpn., 13, Austin Friars, London, E.C." By successive indorsements pltf. became the holder, & on Dec. 20, 1923, his agents presented the document at the London offices of the corpn. Payment was refused, as it was required that the indorsements should have a banker's certification. On Nov. 23, 1926, a special resolution was passed for the voluntary winding up of the corpn. in connection with an amalgamation with the Anglo-Austrian Bank, Ltd. On Apr. 6, 1931, pltf. sought to prove in the winding up for £1,000 in respect of the document, but the liquidator rejected the proof on the ground that it was barred by the Statute of Limitations, as more than six years had elapsed since the date of the document before the winding-up resolution. The holder took out a summons claiming to have his proof admitted and he elected to treat the document as a promissory note :—Held : the document when treated as a promissory note did not need to be presented for payment in order to render the maker liable, because, in order that a place of payment should be specified "in the body" of the note within sect. 87, sub-sect. 1, it must be embodied in the actual terms of the contract for payment. Time therefore began to run under the Statute of Limitations as from the date of the document, & it was barred before the date of the winding-up resolution.—Re BRITISH TRADE CORPN., LTD., [1932] 2 Ch. 1 ; 101 L. They were afterwards indorsed by the drawer with the intention of completing them & making them enforceable against the third party if necessary, the signature of the drawer being placed below that of the third party on the backs of the bills. The acceptor not having paid the bills at maturity, the drawer brought an action upon them against the third party as indorser :—Held : he was entitled to recover, inasmuch as the fact that his signature instead of being above was below that of the third party on the backs of the bills was a mere inadvertence which did not nullify the intentions of the parties or alter the rights which they would otherwise have had.—NATIONAL SALES CORPN., LTD. v. BERNARDI, BERNARDI v. NATIONAL SALES CORPN., LTD., [1931] 2 K. 2096a. —— —— ——.]—J. sold certain goods to C., Ltd., of which G. was managing director & in which he was largely interested. In payment for these goods J. drew a bill of exchange to his own order at three months for £450 upon C., Ltd., who accepted it, & it was indorsed by G. before J. had indorsed it as payee, & his name appeared below that of G. The bill was indorsed by G. in order to enable J. to discount it, & for no consideration moving from J. to G., who was to be under no liability to J. The bill was discounted by J.'s bank & was not met at maturity. An arrangement was subsequently made by which C., Ltd., paid £100 in cash to the bank in part satisfaction & the bank received two bills drawn by J. to his own order & accepted by C., Ltd., for £175 each at one month & two months respectively. These bills were indorsed by G. before they were signed by J. either as drawer or payee. They were afterwards indorsed by J., whose name appeared on the bills below that of G. The first bill not having been met at maturity, J. took it up & sued C., Ltd., & G. upon the bill & recovered judgment, & afterwards presented a petition in bkpcy. in the county ct. against G., founded on the judgment debt, upon which a receiving order was made against him. On appeal :—Held : (1) J. had authority under 1882 Act, s. 20, to fill in his own name as drawer & payee; (2) there was sufficient consideration passing from J. to G. to entitle J. to sue G. on the bill notwithstanding the order in which the signatures appeared on the bill; (3) by reason of the agreement between J. & G., G. could not have set up any defence against J. arising out of his own prior indorsement; (4) the judgment debt was a good petitioning creditor's debt & the receiving order was rightly made.—Re GOOCH, Ex p. JUDD, [1921] 2 K. 2096b. sold to A. & Co. 19,000 cases of tinned soup at the price of 10*s.* per case, cash against delivery order. A. & Co., being unable to find the money, applied for financial assistance to resps., who undertook as between themselves & A. & Co. to find 75 per cent. of the money, there being then about 16,000 cases which had not been taken up. On Aug. 10, 1920, at a meeting between applts., resps. & A. & Co., it was agreed that resps. should indorse a series of eight bills of exchange, seven for £1,000 each & one for £117 odd, to be drawn by applts. on A. & Co. payable six months after date to applts.' order, & that applts., in consideration of the bills being duly indorsed by resps., should hand to resps. delivery orders for the balance of the cases. These bills were at once drawn by applts. on A. & Co. expressed to be payable to applts.' order, & were accepted by A. & Co & indorsed by resps. Room was left above the name of resps. for the indorsement of the name of any person to whom applts. should direct payment. Resps. then handed the bills to applts. in exchange for the delivery orders. One bill having been discharged, applts. shortly before the remaining bills became due indorsed their name as payee on the bills above resps.' signature. Applts. duly presented the bills to A. & Co., who dishonoured them. They then gave notice of dishonour & claimed payment from resps., who denied liability. In an action by applts. to recover the amount of the bills against resps. as indorsers :—Held : (1) on the facts resps. must be taken to have intended to make themselves liable to applts. on the bills; (2) the bills, when handed to applts., were wanting in a material particular within 1882 Act, s. 20, by reason of the absence of any indorsement by applts. above the signature of resps., & applts. had implied authority to fill in their name as payees, as they did, over the name of resps.; & when so filled up, the bills became retrospectively enforceable.—MCDONALD (GERALD) & Co. v. NASH & Co., [1924] A. Before the bill became due deft. had made a verbal offer to his creditors to pay a composition in discharge of his liabilities. At a meeting of the creditors, which was attended by pltf.'s agent, the creditors passed a resolution accepting deft.'s offer. The resolution was reduced to writing & was signed by a number of the creditors, including pltf.'s agent, but not by deft. The creditors subsequently executed a deed assigning their debts to deft.'s solr. in consideration of deft.'s solr. paying the amounts owing to them under the composition. Pltf. was not a party to that deed. In an action by the holder of the bill against the acceptor, for the amount of the bill:—Held: upholding a contention of pltf., which was not raised in the cts. below, 1882 Act, s. 62, had not been complied with, as pltf. had neither renounced his rights under the bill in writing, nor delivered the bill up to the acceptor &, therefore, pltf. was entitled to recover the full amount of the bill.—RIMALT v. CARTWRIGHT (1924), 93 L. They wished to invest a sum of £5,000 through a firm of stockbrokers, & C. accordingly prepared a cheque for that amount payable to the stockbrokers; pltfs. then signed the cheque & handed it back to C. to deal with as directed. C., however, fraudulently added to the cheque the words "per C. & P.," & then indorsed the cheque with the words "C. & P." & handed it to a branch of deft. bank to be credited to the account which a co. in which he was interested kept at that branch. The cheque was credited to that co. & was passed through the clearing house, & in due course pltfs. were debited by their own bank with the sum of £5,000. On discovering the fraud pltfs. brought this action to recover the £5,000 from defts.:—Held: the words added by C. to the cheque constituted a material alteration & rendered the cheque void under Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 64 (1). In an action by pltfs. against defts. for conversion, negligence & breach of duty:—Held: (1) the cheque had been "materially altered" within Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 64, & was avoided as between pltfs. & defts. by that sect., & therefore defts. could not rely upon sect. 60 of the Act as excusing them for paying the cheque; (2) for the same reason defts. could not rely on sect. 80 of the Act; (3) assuming the description of the payees, "J. P. & Co. per C. & P." to be a recognised although unusual description, the indorsement of "C. & P." without any reference to "J. P. & Co." was irregular & invalid, & defts. were negligent in honouring the cheque, & for this reason also were not protected by sect. 80, or semble by sect. 60 of the Act; (4) the additions & alterations referred to in the proviso to sect. 79 (2) of the Act are additions to & alterations in the original crossing of a crossed cheque & not to or in the body of a cheque.—SLINGSBY v. DISTRICT BANK, LTD., [1932] 1 K. On presentation for payment, resps. refused to meet it on the ground that it did not bear the indorsement of M., the payee, but merely the indorsement of E. C., Ord. 3, r. 6, by indorsees against the maker of a promissory note, pltfs. in an affidavit in support of a summons for leave to sign final judgment under R. S. C., Ord. 14, r. 1, stated that they were holders in due course of the note, having taken it in good faith for value from the payees without notice of any defect in their title. Deft. in his affidavit in answer stated facts which, if true, showed that the note had been negotiated in fraud of him. The judge in chambers made an order, under R. S. C., Ord. 14. r. 6, that deft. should have leave to defend the action if he brought a sum of money into ct. within a certain time, but that if he failed to do this, pltfs. should have leave to sign judgment for the amount claimed. On appeal from this order :—Held : (1) a triable issue was raised between the parties ; the mere statement in pltfs.' affidavit that they had given value without notice of any defect in their indorsers' title was not sufficient to decide that issue in pltfs.' favour, but that the ct. must have an opportunity of deciding it, & therefore deft. was entitled to leave to defend the action without the condition that he should pay money into ct. ; (2) by GREER, L.J., &

g i. —— Protection of creditors.]—Bills of Sale Act, R. S. It is not the intention of the Act that the buyer of a chattel who leaves it in the possession of the vendor until it can be sold again & then sells it & makes delivery to a person who takes it away is to be deprived of the proceeds of the resale by reason of garnishee or other proceedings taken by creditors of the person in possession before the resale & delivery.—Re AYLING, ROYAL BANK OF CANADA v. HEYLER & AYLING, [1930] 1 W. 80 ii. ——.]—A. an employee of pltf. co., being desirous of obtaining a new motor car for the purposes of his work, arranged with an officer of pltf. that the co. would advance him £200 to enable him to purchase the car. A. selected a car & signed an order for it in his own name, & an invoice addressed to pltf. was issued to A. A cheque for the balance of the amount owing on the car was given by the pltf. to A., who handed it to the vendor. The co.'s ledger showed the amount of the cheque as an advance to A. As security for this advance A. entered into a hire-purchase agreement with the co., whereby the co. purported to let the car to A. upon the usual terms of a hire-purchase agreement. The agreement was not registered as a bill of sale, & A. subsequently sold the car to deft. In an action for detention :—Held : the ct. was not concluded by the form into which the parties had thrown the transaction, but was entitled, & indeed bound, to inquire into its real nature ; the transaction between A. & pltf. amounted to an advance by pltf. to A. on the security of the car ; the pltf. could not make out its title independently of the hire-purchase agreement, which contained a licence to take possession of a personal chattel, & was consequently a bill of sale within Instruments Act, 1915, s. 127, & the agreement not being registered as a bill of sale was void, & deft. was entitled to succeed.—AUSTRALIAN METROPOLITAN LIFE ASSURANCE CO., LTD. v. LEA, [1928] V. two letters written by deft. co. to pltf., one letter written before the keys were handed over, & the second letter subsequently. The second letter contained the words: "The goods to be locked up, the keys in your possession, & you to have the right to remove same as desired." The co. went into liquidation & the liquidator claimed that the transaction was invalid under Companies Act, 1908 (c. 69), s. 93 (1) (c), as being a charge created or evidenced by an instrument which if executed by an individual would require registration as a bill of sale. Pltf. brought an action claiming a declaration that the goods were in his possession, & that he was entitled to remove them:—Held: possession of the goods passed to pltf. by the delivery of the keys of the rooms in which they were locked up, notwithstanding that those rooms were on defts.' premises, inasmuch as defts. had conferred upon pltf. a licence to make the necessary entry in order to use the keys, which licence could not be revoked, & therefore the transaction was valid as against the liquidator, & pltf. was entitled to remove the goods.—WRIGHTSON v. MCARTHUR & HUTCHISONS, [1921] 2 K. 98a. Letter assigning chattel in hands of third party—Or proceeds of sale—As security for overdraft.]—The owner of a motor car which was in the hands of deft., a motor engineer, for the purpose of repairs, & which he had instructed deft. to sell on his behalf when repaired, had an account at pltfs.' bank, which was overdrawn. Being requested by pltfs. to give security for the overdraft he wrote to deft. a letter authorising him "to hold the car to the order of" the bank "or the proceeds when sold," & sent a copy of that letter to pltfs. The letter was not registered as a bill of sale. The car having been sold & the price received by deft., pltfs. claimed the proceeds:—Held: the letter in question created one entire charge upon the car & the proceeds which represented it, & the equitable assignment of the proceeds could not be severed from the assignment of the car itself; the letter was consequently a bill of sale & void for want of registration & for non-compliance with the statutory form.—NATIONAL PROVINCIAL & UNION BANK OF ENGLAND v. LINDSELL, [1922] 1 K. 138a. Letter of trust on redelivery for realisation of pledged bills of lading.]—A limited co. pledged bills of lading with a bank to secure an overdraft. When it was time to sell the goods, the co. in accordance with the well-established mercantile practice obtained the bills of lading from the bank for realisation on the terms stated in the usual letter of trust given by the co. to the bank, to wit, that the co. received the bills of lading in trust on the bank's account & undertook to hold the goods when received & the proceeds when sold as the bank's trustees & to remit the entire net proceeds as realised:—Held: the letter of trust was not a bill of sale at all within the definition of 1878 Act, s. 4. Semble: if it had been so, it would on the evidence have been a document "used in the ordinary course of business" within the exception in that definition.—Re ALLESTER (D.), LTD., [1922] 2 Ch. 211; 91 L. Each debenture provided security for its payment by creating a first floating charge on all its assets & undertakings both present & future:—Held: the words used in creating the charge did not constitute the debentures a mtge. with Bills of Sale & Chattel Mtge. After the father had paid off the vendor the car was seized under an execution against the son:—Held: the transaction was not a "sale, assignment or transfer" of the car; its only effect was to give the father an equitable interest in the car which did not depend upon the delivery of possession; &, therefore, it was not affected by Bills of Sale Act then in force, R. 213a. Substantial accuracy—Payment of loan by cheque.]—Pltf. granted a bill of sale over certain furniture to a money-lender, &, as she was unable to pay him the first instalment when it became due, defts. agreed to advance to her £1,000 on another bill of sale for the purpose of paying him off & of having her furniture released from the first bill of sale. Pltf. accordingly received a cheque for £1,000 from defts., & after receiving it she executed the second bill of sale, which stated that the consideration for it was £1,000 paid to pltf. In an action by pltf. to restrain defts. from disposing of the furniture comprised in the second bill of sale, pltf. relied on 1882 Act, s. 8, & she contended that the real consideration was the payment off of the money-lender & the release of her furniture from the first bill of sale:—Held: the consideration for the second bill of sale was the loan of £1,000, & as a cheque was a good payment until dishonoured there was no need to state in the second bill of sale that the payment was by cheque, & therefore, as the consideration was correctly stated in the second bill of sale, the action failed.—D'USEZ v. TRAFFICS & DISCOVERIES, LTD. It was agreed that pltf. would purchase the wheat from A. at a price which was equal to the amount of A.'s indebtedness to pltf., & pltf. would immediately re-sell it to A. at a price per bushel which made the total price at about the same as on pltf.'s purchase. This was carried out, & to secure the purchase price pltf. took from A. a seed grain mtge. on the crop to be grown:—Held: as A. did not require the whole of the wheat for seed, & as the price fixed had no relation to the value of the wheat but was fixed with reference to the debt owing by A. to pltf., the actual value being much less than the price agreed on, the transaction could not be considered a bonâ fide sale to A., & pltf.'s mtge. was invalid.—LYNCH v. TURNEY (Sask.), [1923] 3 D. There was no evidence indicating that the difference between the price of the quantity referred to in the mtge. & the quantity delivered was to be paid by the mtgor. for anything but barley:—Held: it could not be inferred from the above facts that the consideration set forth in the mtge. & affidavit was not truly stated.—HORTNESS v. FEFCHAK, [1931] 2 W. (the grantor of the bill of sale) "hereby covenants with the mtgee." (the grantee) "to pay to him on Dec. 24 next £1,600 with interest thereon, & it is hereby agreed & declared that (subject to the right of the mtgee. to require repayment of the principal on Dec. 24 next according to the foregoing covenant by the mtgor. or at any time thereafter) the principal money hereby secured shall be repaid by instalments of not less than £20" on specified dates; these provisions not being contained in the bill of sale:—Held: the bill of sale by being made contemporaneously with, & as part of the same transaction as, the mtge. containing that clause for repayment of the principal by instalments, was not made or given subject to a "defeasance or condition" within 1878 Act, s. 10 (3), & the fact that that clause was not contained in the body of the bill of sale or written on the same paper or parchment therewith did not avoid the registration of the bill of sale under that sub-sect.—STOTT v. SHAW & LEE, LTD., [1928] 2 K. 237a. —— ——.]—Pltf., H., had had a number of betting transactions with deft., W., a bookmaker, since 1918. Pltf. lost various bets & paid his losses by cheques. He won other bets for which he was paid by various cheques. Eventually, pltf. obtained judgment against deft. for £692 10*s*. Execution was levied at the instance of the judgment creditor whereupon deft.'s wife, claimant in the interpleader proceedings which followed, claimed the goods seized, alleging that they belonged to her because her husband, the judgment debtor, had given her a bill of sale covering them to secure the repayment of a sum of £600 which she had advanced to him. The judgment creditor contended that the bill of sale was bad because it did not truly state the consideration. The bill of sale contained the words "In consideration of a sum of £600 now paid . . ." & the judgment creditor said that the £600 was not paid at the time of making the bill of sale, & therefore was not "now paid," as therein stated, but was paid some time later. It was therefore contended that the bill of sale was not a good bill of sale because the statement that the money was "now paid" was untrue. According to the evidence, deft.'s wife had borrowed the £600 from her mother to help her husband, & she handed the £600 over to her husband to pay his debts at 6 p.m., on the same day that the bill of sale was executed:—Held: there was evidence in the present case on which the county ct. judge could find that the £600 was "now paid" within the meaning of the statement in the bill; the bill of sale was executed, & the money was paid over by claimant at substantially the same time the bill was therefore valid & the appeal must be dismissed.—HENSHALL v. WIDDISON (1923), 130 L. The furniture remained in the house, which continued to be occupied by the husband & wife. The deed was not registered under 1878 Act. The furniture having been taken in execution by a judgment creditor the bill of sale holder claimed the furniture under the bill of sale. 830a. —— ——.]—In June, 1921, a bill of sale, which was duly registered, was given to secure £400 with interest at 24 per cent. per annum. An agreement was afterwards made by which the present claimant agreed with the grantor of the bill of sale to pay to the grantee £450 then owing thereon & to lend to the grantor a further sum of £550 upon having the payment of these sums, making together £1,000 with interest thereon, secured by a transfer of the £450 then owing on the bill of sale & the securities for the same. Subsequently, in Nov. 1921, a deed was made between the parties to the bill of sale & claimant, by which, in pursuance of the agreement & in consideration of £450 then paid to the grantee of the bill of sale by claimant, the grantee assigned to claimant the principal & interest secured by the bill of sale & all securities therefor, & the grantee also at the request of the grantor assigned to claimant the goods comprised in the bill of sale free from all equity of redemption under the bill of sale, but subject to a proviso for redemption in the deed, & the grantor covenanted with claimant to pay to her on a specified date the £1,000 with interest at 6 per cent. per annum. The latter deed was not registered as a bill of sale under the Bills of Sale Acts :—Held : the deed was not a " transfer or assignment " of the registered bill of sale within 1878 Act, s. 10, but was a new bill of sale which itself required to be registered &, therefore, claimant was not entitled to rely upon the registered bill of sale as assignee thereof.—MARSHALL & SNELGROVE, LTD. v. GOWER, [1923] 1 K. 171a. —— ——.]—Pltfs. were incorporated, under Canvey Island (Sea Defences) Act, 1883, for protecting Canvey Island from inundation by the sea. They succeeded former comrs. appointed by an Act of 1729 (32 Geo. 3, c. 31), which contained a power for these comrs. under s. 13 to erect a new sea wall further inward, on giving compensation to the owner whose land was taken for this purpose. In 1813 the new wall was built, & £150 given as compensation to the owner of the land taken. Under the Act of 1883 the property & rights of the former comrs. were vested in pltfs. who had power under that Act to hold lands. Pltfs. claimed to be owners in possession of the foreshore between the new & the old wall. Deft. claimed under a conveyance of Apr. 1919 to be the freeholder in possession of a strip of land comprising part of this foreshore, & to be entitled as of right to excavate & remove shells & other drift even although, as pltfs. alleged, it deprived the new wall of protection & support, & exposed it to injury by the action of wind & water. The greater risk to the wall in consequence of deft.'s action was established by the evidence. In an action by pltfs. to restrain deft. from so removing the drift, & from trespassing on their land :—Held : (1) assuming the strip in question to be deft.'s freehold, pltfs. were still entitled to an injunction restraining him from so removing drift from the strip as to expose their wall & works & the lands protected thereby to greater risk of inundations of the sea ; (2) pltfs. had established their statutory title under the Acts of 1792 & 1883 to the whole of the land taken & set out pursuant to s. 13 of the first Act, & had exercised specific acts of ownership over the foreshore ; the possession of pltfs. & of deft. being at most doubtful or equivocal the law attached possession to the title ; deft., therefore, was a trespasser, & must be restrained from excavating or removing stones, shingle, shell or soil from the particular strip of foreshore & from otherwise trespassing on same.—CANVEY ISLAND COMRS. v. PREEDY, [1922] 1 Ch. 179 ; 91 L. It was (inter alia) agreed that the claimant would furnish the plant, for which he was to receive as rental thereof a certain percentage of its value per annum for a working season of 150 days; this to be payable when each piece commenced operation, & to cease when determined by resp.'s engineer. A portion of this rented plant became locked in behind a coffer-dam constructed in connection with the works in question. It was properly there engaged on the works, but it could not be removed when its work was completed on account of the coffer-dam, & while so retained was not available for use, which condition of affairs was not due to any fault of the contractor:—Held: said portion of the plant never ceased to be part of the rented plant under the terms of the contract & was still retained for use on the works by resp.'s engineer & the claimant was entitled to recover rent therefor.—ROGER MILLER & SONS, LTD. v. R., [1930] S. 8k. "Extra haul" & "overhaul."]—The view of a contract advanced by resp. was that the contract phrases "extra haul" & "overhaul" have, by usage, in construction contracts, or at all events in railway construction contracts, a special & specific meaning; & that they signify that the length of the haul in respect of which the contractor was entitled to charge for overhaul, was to be ascertained by taking the distance, measured along the centre line of the railway in process of construction, between the projections, first, of the centre of mass of earth, to be excavated in making the cut, & second, of the embankment, & deducting therefrom 500 feet; the projections being for this purpose the several points on the centre line nearest the respective centres of mass:—Held: the alleged usage had not been proven. It had been established that there was a practice widely followed of inserting in railway construction contracts a clause providing for the computation of payment for overhaul according to the method contended for by resp.; but in the text books, engineering manuals & writings by engineers produced, there was no basis for the view that the effect of the words used in the present contract is, apart from such special stipulations, what was contended by resp.—GEORGIA CONSTRUCTION CO. v. PACIFIC GREAT EASTERN RY. 58a. —— Contract for supply between employer & third party.]—A. co. carrying on the business of builders & decorators entered into a contract with a corpn. for the erection of two lodges & a park entrance. With the assent of the builders, the corpn. conducted the negotiations with a stone firm for the supply of the stone which was required for the work & fixed the quantity & price. The contract between the builders & the corpn. provided that the corpn. should pay the stone firm the price of the stone, to be deducted from the contract price. Owing to delay in delivering the stone the builders were unable to complete the work until some months after the date fixed for completion by the contract. In an action by the builders against the corpn. in respect of the loss arising to the builders by reason of such delay :—Held : there was no implied obligation on the corpn. under the contract between them & the builders to supply the stone ; at the highest there was only an obligation on them to hold the benefit of the contract with the stone firm for the builders ; & that "business efficacy" did not require that there should be implied an obligation on the corpn. to make good to the builders any loss which they might suffer by reason of the failure of the stone firm to deliver in time. Accordingly the corpn. were not liable to the builders for such loss.—GAZE (W. H.) & SONS, LTD. v. PORT TALBOT CORPN. (1929), 93 J. P. 89 ; 27 L. G. R. 200.

65a. —.]—By a contract in writing dated Feb. 21, 1912, defts. agreed to build a steamer for, & deliver her to, pltf. on or before Feb. 28, 1913. The contract contained the following exceptions clause :—" If the steamer is not delivered entirely ready to the purchaser at the above-mentioned time, the builders hereby agree to pay to the purchaser for liquidated damages, & not by way of penalty, the sum of £10 sterling for each day of delay & in deduction of the price stipulated in this contract, being excepted only the cause of force majeure &/or strikes of workmen of the building yard where the vessel is being built, or the workshops where the machinery is being made, or at the works where steel is being manufactured for the steamer, or any works of any sub-contractor." As a result of the universal coal strike of 1912 the works from which defts. obtained their materials for other ships they were building got behindhand ; the ship in turn to be built before pltf.'s occupied the berth that was intended to be occupied by pltf.'s much longer than otherwise she should have done, & consequently pltf.'s steamer was late in being laid down. The steamer having been delivered after the contract date, pltf. claimed damages :—Held : (1) the general dislocation of the business of defts. & those from whom they obtained materials operating indirectly on the completion of pltf.'s steamer, by preventing the completion of the vessel prior in turn, constituted a case of force majeure within the exceptions clause & excused defts. in respect of the delay so caused ; (2) delay due to breakdown of machinery was, but delay due to bad weather was not, covered by the exception of force majeure.—MATSOUKIS v. PRIESTMAN & CO., [1915] 1 K. s (p. 380) i. —— ——.]—A contract for the execution of road making works for a municipal council provided that no extra works done by the contractor would be paid for unless there were an order in writing & a certificate of the engineer in respect of them. Pltf. alleged that certain extra works were in fact done at the oral request of the engineer & with his knowledge, & that certain of the extra works were actually paid for by progress payments on the work completed, that deft. stood by & took the benefit of the extra works, & that he thereby had been induced to believe that deft. would not require written orders, & had acted to his detriment in the belief so induced :—Held : even if these allegations were proved, they did not establish either waiver or estoppel.—Bysouth v. Shire of Blackburn & Mitcham (No. 2), [1928] V. sc. Entire contract.]—Pltf. contracted to perform the whole of the works required in & about the construction of a concrete retaining wall for deft. for a fixed price according to a certain plan & specification. The contract provided that the specification should form & be construed as forming part of the agreement. It also required pltf. to build the wall in a certain position. This involved removing a sand bank. The plan showed a bank approximately 6 ft. in width. Pltf. claimed that the bank was 12 ft. in width, & he brought an action on the common counts for the work & labour done in removing the extra 6 ft.:—Held : the contract was an entire contract to build the wall for a fixed price & that inasmuch as the specification was, & the plan was not, expressly incorporated in the contract, pltf.'s obligation to complete the works for the agreed price was not affected by the alleged understatement in the plan, & therefore he was not entitled to recover payment for extra work occasioned thereby.—Walker v. Randwick Municipality Council (1930), 30 S. Part VIII.—Breach of the Contract.

225a. Approval of council's surveyor & inspector—Subsequent discovery of breach of contract—Whether approval conclusive.]—Defts. agreed to build for pltfs. a number of houses in accordance with certain plans & specifications, the work to be carried out to the satisfaction of the surveyor and the sanitary inspector of the urban district council. The houses were completed to the satisfaction of the surveyor & the inspector, & pltfs. sold them at a profit. In fact the express agreement to cement & the implied agreement to do the work properly had been broken, & on complaint by the purchasers pltfs. carried out repairs to put the houses in a habitable state, & they sued defts. for the cost of the repairs. Defts. contended that they were under no liability as the surveyor & the inspector had approved of the work, that pltfs., having sold the houses at a profit, had suffered no damage, & that, as the repairs were only an act of generosity, pltfs. could not recover the cost:—Held: there being in the contract no statement that the approval of the surveyor & the inspector was to be final & conclusive, their approval was only a superadded protection, & pltfs. were entitled to recover the difference between the value of the houses as they ought to have been when completed & their value in fact.—NEWTON ABBOT DEVELOPMENT CO., LTD. v. STOCKMAN BROS. (1931), 47 T. L. R. 616.

225b. Liability for defects limited to defects discovered within five years—Discovery within five years—Effect on subsequent discoveries.]—A district council employed contractors to make a road, the contract containing the following clause: "Should it at any time subsequent to the termination of the period of maintenance up to but not exceeding a period of five years from the date of the completion of the works be discovered that the terms of this specification have been violated by the execution of bad, insufficient or inaccurate work the council shall be at liberty to make good such work & to recover the cost thereof from the contractor . . ." :—Held: the council could recover only for the defects discovered within the five years to the actual extent of that discovery, & such discovery did not entitle the council to recover for defects thereafter discovered.—MARSDEN URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL v. SHARP (1931), 48 T. L. R. 23, C. A.

230a. —— Excess of cost of completion over contract price.]—By a contract in writing dated May 12, 1916, deft. agreed to build for pltf. a house, subject to the conditions set forth in the schedule thereto, for the sum of £1,900. The conditions provided (inter alia) that deft. should begin the works immediately after possession of the site was given to him, & should regularly proceed with & complete the same within six months after the date of the plans being passed by the local authority, & that if deft. should suspend the works or should not proceed with them with due diligence, pltf. by his architect should have power to give notice to deft. requiring him to proceed, & on failure of deft. to comply with such notice for thirty days pltf. should be entitled to enter upon & take possession of the works & site & employ any other person to complete the works. On July 10, 1916, the plans were duly passed. On July 14, 1916, an order was made by the Minister of Munitions under the powers of the Defence of the Realm (Consolidation) Regulations, 1914, which provided that on & after July 20, 1916, no person should without licence from the Minister of Munitions commence or carry on any building or construction work. On July 21 deft. applied for a licence to proceed, & continued to work fairly well until Aug. 12, when he ceased to proceed with due diligence with the deliberate intention, as the ct. held, of ensuring that the licence should be refused & that he should thereby be enabled to put an end to the contract. On Sept. 9 pltf.'s architect gave him thirty days' notice to proceed with the works. On Sept. 30, before the expiration of the notice, the Minister of Munitions refused to grant the licence to proceed. In an action by pltf. for damages for breach of contract:—Held: deft. could not take advantage of the intervention of the Minister of Munitions, which was brought about by his own act, & the proper measure of damages was what it cost pltf. to complete the house substantially as it was originally intended & in a reasonable manner at the earliest moment he was allowed to proceed with the work, less any amount that would have been due & payable to deft. by pltf., had deft. completed the house to the roofing-in at the time agreed by the terms of his contract.—MERTENS v. HOME FREEHOLDS CO., [1921] 2 K. k 1. —— Different contractors for building & joiner work.]—A builder contracted to carry out the building & plastering work in connection with the erection of a house, & another contractor undertook to carry out the joiner work. The builder finished his work, & the owner accepted possession of the house & paid two instalments of the account. Afterwards the outside walls began to crack, & it was discovered that the walls were off the plumb. In an action by the builder for the balance of his account, the owner averred that the defect in the walls was occasioned by the use of faulty materials in the construction of the concrete floors by the builder. The builder averred that the damage to the walls was caused by the use of unseasoned timber in the construction of the roof by the other contractor. Neither of these averments was established at the proof, but either of them might have been the cause of the cracking of the walls:—Held: breach of contract had not been established against pursuer, & he was entitled to decree for the balance of the contract price.—CARRUTHERS v. MACGREGOR, [1927] S. Before the builders had commenced to build the trawlers so contracted for the Admiralty issued an order to them under Reg. 8A of the Defence of the Realm Regulations, directing them not to proceed with any work on vessels for private owners, but to work for the Admiralty instead. At the time of making that Order the Admiralty had full knowledge of the existence of the claimant's contract with the builders. By reason of the order he suffered substantial loss. On a claim being made for compensation under Indemnity Act, 1920 (c. 48), s. 2 (1) (b) & Sched., Part II. :—Held : the Admiralty's knowledge of the contract was wholly immaterial, & in so far as the order interfered with claimant's business it was only a secondary & indirect interference, with the result that claimant was not entitled to compensation.—BLACK v. ADMIRALTY COMRS., [1924] 1 K. Even if the contract provides that the work will be performed under the supervision of the city engineer, the contractor cannot complain of the fact that the engineers had not given him any instructions or advice as to the way the trenches should be cribbed, as he was at liberty to do such work in his own way without the permission of the engineer as long as the latter was not making any formal objection.—RIVET v. LA CORPORATION DU VILLAGE DE ST.-JOSEPH, [1932] S. 342a. ——.]—Pltfs. claimed £1,000 being retention moneys due from defts. to a firm of contractors. Pltfs. claimed under an assignment dated Apr. 7, 1924. On Nov. 21, 1922, defts. entered into a building contract for a lump sum with S., the contractors, for the construction of a number of cottages under a housing scheme. The contract provided for interim payments, but no money was to become payable to the contractors except on the architect's certificate in writing, & certificates were to be issued when work to the value of £1,000 had been executed & thereafter at monthly intervals as certified by the architect in writing. He was to certify the amount from time to time payable to the contractors under the contract. The amount to be certified by the architect on his first & monthly certificates as due to the contractors was to be at the rate of 90 per cent. of the value of the work, including extras. The balance of 10 per cent. of the value of the work was to be retained until the sum so retained, called a retention fund, should amount to £2,472 after which the contractors were to be paid monthly to the full value of the work done & the materials supplied. The retention fund was to be deposited in a bank until the final adjustment of accounts. The contract was varied by consent, & in the events which happened the retention fund amounted to £1,000 at the beginning of 1924. This was never deposited at the bank & remained a merely notional fund, but both parties treated it as a separate sum capable of being earmarked. It was included without distinction in the architect's final certificate for £1,848 10*s.* 2*d.* on Jan. 28, 1927. Meanwhile pltfs., who were supplying cement to the contractors, Due notice of that assignment was given by pltfs. to defts. on the following day. This was acknowledged by defts. on May 26, 1924. By that time the contractors had issued a number of debentures to the M. & C. Bank. These debentures were dated at various periods from Feb. 1, 1900, to Feb. 2, 1924, & they charged the undertaking & property, both present & future, of the contractors, the charge being a specific charge on their freehold & leasehold property, machinery, goodwill, & uncalled capital & a floating charge on all the co.'s other assets, subject to a proviso that the contractors were not to be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge on any of the assets in priority to the debentures. A receiver for the debenture holders was appointed in Oct. 1924, & he duly entered into possession. Seven days after the appointment of the receiver a resolution was passed for the voluntary winding-up of the co. The receiver refused to recognise the right of pltfs. to payment under their assignment in priority to the debenture holders, & on the architect's certificate being given in Jan. 1927, defts declined to interplead & paid the retention moneys to the receiver for the debenture holders: —Held: the assignment in question was a good legal assignment & pltfs. were entitled to sue on it. The retention fund in this case arose out of an existing contract, & although it did not become payable until a date later than that of the assignment, it was a debt or other legal thing in action which could be assigned. The assignment was within Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25, & Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 136. It could be sued on by the assignee without joining the assignor as a party. Pltfs. were therefore entitled to recover on the assignment.—EARLE (G. & T.) (1925), LTD. v. HEMSWORTH RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL (1928), 140 L. T. 69; 44 T. L. R. 758, C. A.

345a. Effect of—On contractor's rights under arbitration clause.]—Building contractors assigned to a bank all money due & to become due to them under a building contract, which contained an arbn. clause, & the proper notice of the assignment was served on the building owners. Disputes having arisen regarding a claim by the contractors for compensation & extra payment, recourse was had to arbn.:—Held: (1) the arbitrator had jurisdiction to entertain the arbn., since the contractors' rights under the arbn. clause did not constitute a "legal" or "other remedy" for the debt within Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 136 (1), & were not passed & transferred to the bank by the assignment; (2) the arbitrator had to consider not merely the terms of the contract within the limits of the document, but also the application & enforcement of those terms, having regard to the whole legal position which the parties had created, including the relinquishment by the contractors themselves by the assignment of their right to claim the debt, & he must make his award in favour of the building owners.—COTTAGE CLUB ESTATES v. WOODSIDE ESTATES CO. PART XV. SECT. 1.

h i. ——.]—A contract for the construction of a covered way from the mainland to a lighthouse contained an arbn. clause, the first part of which referred all disputes, whenever arising, as to the contract & its execution to the employers' engineer, while the second part referred any dispute or claim arising after, or consequent on, the completion of the contract to another engineer. A dispute having arisen as to the rate payalbe for the removal of certain rock, the contractors refused to continue the work, & the employers took the work out of their hands. An action having been brought by the contractors for payment of sums alleged to be due under the contract & for damages:—Held: as the work was still in progress, the first part of the arbn. clause applied, it being immaterial that the work had been taken out of the hands of the pursuers, & action sisted to allow the arbn. to proceed.—CRAWFORD v. NORTHERN LIGHTHOUSES COMRS., [1925] S. 388a. Clause restricting time for opening reference —" Until after completion of works "—Meaning of.]—The form of building contract issued by the Royal Institute of British Architects provides, by condition 31 in the schedule thereto, that should the building owner not pay the builder any sum certified by the architect within the time limited by the contract, the builder is to be at liberty to determine the contract & recover from the building owner payment for all work executed. Condition 32 provides that in case any difference shall arise between the building owner & the builder as to the construction of the contract or as to any matter arising thereunder, such difference is to be referred to arbn., but that " such reference . . . shall not be opened until after the completion of the works." During the progress of certain works which were being carried out under a building contract in the above form the building owner neglected to pay the builder a sum certified by the architect within the stipulated time, & thereupon the builder determined the contract under condition 31. The builder commenced arbn. proceedings while the contract works were still uncompleted, & the arbitrator made an award in his favour for the money due to him under the contract :—Held : the words " until after the completion of the works " in condition 32 meant until after completion of the whole of the works contracted for, & not merely until after completion of so much of the works as the builder was under the circumstances bound to perform ; consequently the arbn. was premature & the arbitrator had no jurisdiction to make the award ; or at all events the validity of the award was sufficiently doubtful to render it improper to enforce it summarily.—SMITH v. MARTIN, [1925] 1 K. While the houses were in course of erection deft. gave interim certificates, & he also gave documents under which pltfs. paid the Board for articles supplied by the Board. Under these certificates & documents pltfs. had to pay both the builders & the Board for the same material. In an action by pltfs. to recover the amount from deft. on the ground of negligence :—Held : as the certificates were only interim certificates, & as deft. on going into the figures with pltfs. had indicated to them that the amount paid to the Disposals Board was to be deducted from the final balance due to the contractors, deft. had not been guilty of negligence, & the action failed—WISBECH RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL v. WARD, [1928] 2 K. 230a. —— —— Insufficient surplus funds to carry out purchase.]—Although a building society may transfer its mtges. either to an individual or to another building society, yet if it agrees to sell those securities to a purchaser & makes no stipulation as to what it is that the purchaser is to take under such agreement for sale, the only conclusion that can be drawn is that it agrees to transfer such benefits as it itself enjoys, & that it cannot do. Pltf. society was in liquidation, & in May, 1919, its liquidators entered into a contract with deft. society for the sale to deft. society of thirty-seven of the freehold & leasehold mtges. of pltf. society for £6,400. Deft. society having declined to complete, pltf. society issued a writ for specific performance. Subsequently the parties by agreement stated a special case for the opinion of the ct. as to, amongst other things, whether the contract was ultra vires deft. society, because it had not at the date of the contract surplus funds properly available for investment, & whether pltf. society could transfer the mtges. without the consent of the mtgors. Both these points were decided in favour of pltf. society :—Held : (1) although the contract might be intra vires in its inception, notwithstanding that deft. society had not sufficient surplus funds to carry it out, yet if at the time when an order was made for its specific performance deft. society had not sufficient surplus funds the effect of the order would be to require the society, which was not an investing society, to invest moneys which were not its surplus funds in a security in which it had no power to invest them; (2) a further effect of the order, if made, would be to require deft. society to borrow money to pay for the mtges.; & as its borrowing powers could not be resorted to except for borrowing for the purposes of the society, & as the purchase of the mtges. was not one of those purposes, the order would be an order requiring deft. society to do an ultra vires act; therefore no order for specific performance ought in the circumstances to be made; (3) having regard to the fact that the mtges. in question were building society mtges., pltf. society was not in a position to transfer to deft. society all the rights & benefits to which under them it was itself entitled, pltf. society was not ready & willing to perform its part of the contract, & consequently it could not enforce the contract.—SUN BUILDING SOCIETY v. WESTERN SUBURBAN & HARROW ROAD BUILDING SOCIETY, [1921] 2 Ch. 438; 91 L. Part XII.—Amalgamation and Transfer.

285a. Amalgamation—Effect of 1874 Act, s. 33—Dissolution of constituent societies unnecessary.]—By a contract dated Sept. 15, 1928, applt. agreed to sell to resp. two freehold plots of land & a dwelling-house. On Nov. 30, 1925, the property so contracted to be sold was mtged. to the H. Equitable B.B. Society, & on Jan. 31, 1928, that society was united in accordance with the provisions of the Building Societies Acts with the

H. Permanent B.B. Society under the name of the H. Building Society. On June 28, 1928, the money due on the mtge. was repaid to the H. Building Society, which society gave a receipt endorsed on the mtge. A note was also endorsed that on Jan. 31, 1928, the H. Equitable B.B. Society & the H. Permanent B.B. Society were united & became one society under the name of the H. Building Society, & that the transaction was duly registered as required by the Building Society Acts. The purchaser required an abstract of the documents effecting the transfer of the mtge. to the H. Building Society from the H. Equitable B.B. Society & asserted that resolutions as to union, the notice to the registrar, & consents in writing of the shareholders in the two societies must be abstracted. The purchaser also claimed to be entitled to see the instrument of union to ascertain that the provisions of the Building Societies Acts had been complied with. The vendor contended that this was not necessary as under 1877 Act, s. 5, the registration operated as a conveyance of the property which was then vested in the H. Equitable B.B. Society. The judge held that under the Building Societies Acts the possibility was contemplated of a union without a dissolution of the uniting societies, & 1877 Act, s. 5, which provided that the registration of the union should operate as a conveyance, must be read as subject to 1874 Act, s. 33, under which the instrument of union might provide that certain properties should be excepted & not transferred, & it was therefore necessary for the purchaser to be furnished with an abstract of the instrument of union to enable him to see whether 1877 Act, s. 5, could operate without any qualification :—Held : 1874 Act, s. 33, & 1877 Act, s. 5, contemplated that a union of two societies might be made without a dissolution of each society, & it was putting too much on 1874 Act, s. 33, to say it gave complete union so that no inquiry could be made as to the terms of union, & 1877 Act, s. 5, made it clear that only such properties vested in the united society as the instrument of union provided, therefore it was necessary that the vendor should abstract & verify the resolution of union, the notice to be given to the registrar of the union, & the other instrument of union if any, & until he had done so he had not produced to the purchaser a proper title.—Re FRYER & HAMPSON'S CONTRACT (1929), 140 L. 237a. Allotment of unconsecrated part — For parishioners of particular denomination— Extent of rights.]—1853 Act, s. 7, upon its true construction, authorised the allotment by a burial board of portions of the unconsecrated part of a new burial ground for burials exclusively of parishioners belonging to the particular religious denomination for whom an allotment is made.

Under the provisions of the Burial Acts such an allotment was in 1854 made by pltfs., as the burial board, of a portion of the unconsecrated ground for the burial of the Roman Catholic parishioners. Upon an originating summons under R. S. C., Ord. 54, r. 1, taken out by pltfs. to have it determined whether, by virtue of that allotment for the Roman Catholic parishioners, a deceased parishioner not a member of the Roman Catholic denomination could be buried in such allotted portion ; & if he could, whether he could be so buried with the rites or ceremonies of any denomination other than those of the Roman Catholic :—Held : (1) the portion so allotted for the Roman Catholics was by virtue of its allotment appropriated exclusively for the burial of the Roman Catholics ; (2) a Roman Catholic parishioner had, under the Burial Acts, no greater rights in the portion so allotted for their burial than a parishioner, as such, had, before those Acts, in his old parish burial ground ; &, consequently, although he still had, under those Acts, a right of interment in that allotted portion, he had no individual right, as a parishioner, to interfere with the burial therein of a parishioner of a different denomination ; (3) the A.-G. was entitled in properly constituted proceedings, if he should think fit to institute them, to an order restraining pltfs. from permitting the burial of persons other than Roman Catholics in the portion allotted to Roman Catholics ; (4) nothing in 1853 Act enabled any particular rites or ceremonies to be enforced in regard to burials within the portion allotted to Roman Catholics or rendered the performance in regard to such burials of any particular rites or ceremonies unlawful.—PRESTON CORPN. v. PYKE, [1929] 2 Ch. 338 ; 98 L. 291a. —— ——.]—A parish council being the duly constituted burial authority for the parish took from pltf., in consideration of a covenant to redeem the tithe rentcharges charged on the land being conveyed & on adjoining land retained by pltf., a conveyance of land "to hold the same . . . according to the true intent & meaning" of the Burial Acts. The land proved unfit & was never used for interments, & it was never fenced off or consecrated, nor did it adjoin any burial ground. The council agreed with pltf., with the approval of the parish meeting, to exchange the land for other land suitable for use as a burial ground :—Held : (1) the land first acquired by the council had never been "set apart for the purposes of interment" & was not therefore a "disused burial ground," so as to be subject to the restriction imposed by 1884 Act, s. 3 ; (2) the council had power to effect the exchange by virtue of the powers to sell land not required for interments & to buy land for the purposes of interment conferred respectively by 1852 Act, ss. 28 & 26, as extended by 1853 Act, s. 7.—NICHOLL v. LLANTWIT MAJOR PARISH COUNCIL, [1924] 2 Ch. 214 ; 93 L. 294a. Land set apart for interment—Interments abandoned as to part—Continued as to other part.]—(1) Where a piece of land has been effectually set apart for the purposes of interment it becomes a "burial ground" within the aggregate definition of Metropolitan Open Spaces Act, 1881 (c. 34), 1884 Act, & Open Spaces Act, 1887 (c. 32), & any portion for which the purposes of interment are subsequently abandoned becomes a "disused burial ground" within the similar definition, although interments still go on in other parts of the cemetery.

(2) A sale of a "disused burial ground" by the Admiralty under the general powers of Admiralty Lands & Works Act, 1864 (c. 57), s. 15, is not a sale under the authority of an Act of Parliament within 1884 Act, s. 5, & consequently the disused burial ground still remains subject to the building prohibitions of 1884 Act, s. 3.—LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL v. GREENWICH CORPN., [1929] 1 Ch. 305 ; 98 L. 300a. Urinal.]—A borough council petitioned for a faculty to authorise the conversion of a consecrated churchyard, which had been wholly closed for interments by Order in Council, into an open space, & the laying out & maintenance of it as such. Authority was sought for laying out & maintaining part of the churchyard as a playground for children & for the erection upon it of urinals & a small toolshed :—Held : (1) the proposed urinals were "buildings" within 1884 Act, s. 2, & Open Spaces Act, 1887 (c. 32), s. 4, & the ct. had no jurisdiction to authorise their erection ; (2) the proposed toolshed was necessary for the laying out & maintaining of the churchyard as an open space, & was not a "building" within the above Acts ; (3) the facts proved justified the authorisation of games in the converted churchyard, but organised games, such as cricket & football, the laying out of tennis courts & the erection of swings & other structures should be prohibited. Faculty decreed, but not to issue until the council had made bye-laws embodying the above prohibitions & prescribing the hours during which the churchyard should be open to the public, so as to prevent any nuisance to the occupants of adjoining houses, & had carried a copy thereof into the diocesan registry for approval by the chancellor.—BERMONDSEY BOROUGH COUNCIL v. MORTIMER, [1926] P. 87.

234a. ——.]—A carrier who regularly receives goods for carriage upon terms limiting his liability may be under the obligations & subject to the liabilities of a common carrier in so far as the limitation of liability does not extend. He does not by limiting his liability assume for all purposes the position of a bailee for reward who is liable only for negligence of himself or his servants, unless the limitation of liability is so extensive as to be inconsistent with the profession or contract of a common carrier.

A consignor who tenders to carriers for carriage goods apparently harmless but in fact dangerous, whether the carriers are common carriers bound by the custom of the realm to carry goods provided they are safe & fit for carriage or whether they are a railway co. bound by statute to afford reasonable facilities for the receiving, forwarding & delivering of goods, must give warning of the danger; otherwise he impliedly warrants that the goods are safe & fit for carriage.

Forwarding agents delivered to a railway co. for carriage certain carboys containing a corrosive fluid & also certain bales of felt goods on the terms of consignment notes exempting the co. from liability in certain events & stating that they did not undertake to carry dangerous goods except on special conditions. The carboys were insufficient to contain the fluid, which escaped & injured the felt goods. The co. professed to carry the felt goods as common carriers. The owner of the felt goods claimed damages against the co., & the co. paid £437 in settlement of the claim. In an action by the co. against the forwarding agents to recover this sum as damages for breach of warranty :—Held : (1) the terms of the consignment notes did not prevent the co. from being, as they professed to be, common carriers of the felt goods; (2) the co. were therefore liable as insurers, & without proof of negligence, to the owner of the felt goods; (3) they were entitled to recover from the forwarding agents, as upon an implied warranty that the carboys were fit to be carried, the amount they had paid to the owner of the felt goods for the damage done to his goods.—GREAT NORTHERN RY. 685b. Injury on journey by special train.]—Pltf. was engaged as a workman by contractors to the Ministry of Health for the construction of a road near H., & the Ministry made with deft. railway co. arrangements for a special train to take pltf. & other men from C. to H., a distance of twenty-six miles. Pltf. received from his employers a voucher which was addressed to the booking clerk & which contained these words: "On surrender of this voucher please supply the bearer with a return workman's ticket to H. by any ordinary workman's train without payment. This voucher is only available by workman's train." The voucher, on presentation at the booking office, was exchanged for a ticket. One side of the ticket had on it (inter alia) the words: "See back. Workmen. By special cheap train for the 'working classes.'" On the other side were (inter alia) the words: "This ticket is issued subject to the bye-laws, rules & regulations of the Managing Committee," & "This ticket is issued subject to the conditions mentioned in the Managing Committee's Act (62 & 63 Vict. c. clxviii), & its use by the holder is to be taken as evidence of a special contract upon those conditions. The liability of the co. is limited to a sum not exceeding £100." The above-mentioned Act contained provisions as to the running of workmen's trains on the particular railway within twenty miles of London, & limited the co.'s liability to £100, subject to certain conditions. Pltf. was injured by a collision between his train & another train. In an action for damages defts. admitted negligence, but contended that the issue of the ticket created a special contract between themselves & pltf. whereby their liability was limited to £100. The ct. found that pltf. must be taken to have been aware of the conditions indorsed on the back of the ticket. On the further question whether the terms of the contract applied to the particular journey:— Held: although the ticket & the conditions on it had been drafted as applicable to a journey by a train coming under the co.'s private Act, & contained no reference to such a journey as pltf.'s by a special train to a destination beyond twenty miles from London, yet, in the case of a passenger in the position of pltf., the conditions were a plain intimation that one condition on which the contract was made was that the co.'s liability should be limited to £100, & pltf. could recover no more than that amount.—HEARN v. SOUTHERN RY. CO. (1925), 41 T. L. R. 305, C. A.

685c. Time limit for making claim.] — Pltf. was received by defts. under a contract to be carried in one of their steamships. The contract contained a clause that the shipowners should not be liable for loss, damage or delay to a passenger or his baggage arising from the act of God, or from causes of any kind beyond the carrier's control, even though the loss, damage or delay might have been caused by the neglect or default of the shipowners' servants. A subsequent clause provided that no claim under the contract should be enforceable against the shipowners unless a written notice thereof was delivered to them within three days after the passenger should be landed from the steamer at the termination of her voyage. In the course of the voyage one of pltf.'s hands was injured by reason of the negligence of defts.' servants, but no written notice of any claim was given by pltf. within the time limited by the contract:— Held: (1) the clause relieving defts. from liability for the negligence of their servants was valid & enforceable, but applying the ejusdem generis rule, the clause did not absolve defts. from liability for pltf.'s injury; (2) as pltf. had failed to give any written notice of his claim within the time prescribed by the contract, he was not entitled to recover.—JONES v. OCEANIC STEAM NAVIGATION CO., [1924] 2 K. p i. —— —— —— ——.]—In an action by a passenger against a ry. co. to recover damages for personal injury sustained by him while travelling on one of their trains, defenders maintained that, under the contract of carriage, they were exempt from liability. When the accident occurred, pursuer was travelling on a "pleasure party" ticket issued at a fare less than the ordinary fare. The ticket bore on the front, in legible print, "See Back," & on the back, also in legible print, "This ticket is issued subject to the General Notices, Regulations, & Conditions in the co.'s current Time Tables & Bills." Defenders' current Time Tables contained a section headed "General Notices, Regulations, & Condition," which included a condition that the holder of a ticket issued at a fare less than the ordinary fare should have no right of action against the co. in respect of injury, however caused. Pursuer admitted that he knew that there was printing on the back of his ticket, & that he must have read what was printed on the back of a similar ticket when travelling on previous occasions, but deponed that what he read had conveyed nothing to him:—Held: the condition formed part of the contract, in respect that the reference of the ticket to the conditions in defenders' time tables was reasonable notice of their existence & terms, & further, as pursuer knew there was printing on the back of the ticket, & admitted that at some time he must have read the printing, he must be taken to have known that it referred to conditions. Defenders assoilzied.—GRAY v. L. & N. E. RY. CO., [1930] S. C. 989.—SCOT.

695a. —— —— —— Conditions ascertainable by reference to time-table.]—Pltf., who could not read, had an excursion ticket taken for her by her niece on the face of which were printed the words : " Excursion. For conditions see back " ; & on the back was a notice that the ticket was issued subject to the conditions in the deft. co.'s time-tables & excursion bills. On the excursion bills excursion tickets were stated to be issued subject to the conditions shown in the company's current time-tables. The time-tables, which could be obtained for sixpence each, stated : " Excursion tickets . . . are issued subject to the general regulations & to the condition that the holders . . . shall have no rights of action against the co. . . . in respect of . . . injury (fatal or otherwise) . . . however caused." A special jury found that an accident to the pltf. on the journey covered by the excursion ticket was due to negligence on the part of deft. co. To prevent the case going back for a new trial, the jury were asked whether the deft. co. took reasonable steps to bring the conditions to the notice of pltf. & answered " No," & awarded damages. Argument was then allowed whether the jury could so find, & it was held that as a matter of law when the ticket was accepted the contract was complete, & therefore there was no evidence on which the jury could find as they did :—Held : (1) the fact that pltf. could not read did not alter the legal position ; she was bound by the special contract made on the excursion ticket on the acceptance of the ticket ; & the indication of the special conditions by reference to the time-tables was sufficient notice of their existence & contents ; (2) the question put to the jury for the sake of convenience as to reasonable notice must be determined upon the law applicable to the conditions upon which thet icket was issued, & those conditions negatived the right of pltf. to recover damages.—THOMPSON v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. Pltf. asked for " Waterloo return," & was supplied with one of these tickets, which he accepted without objection. He was injured on the journey through the alleged negligence of defts.' servants :—Held : in the absence of proof that pltf. actually knew of this condition, defts. must show that they had taken reasonable steps to bring it to his notice, but on the facts there was no evidence for a jury that they had not done so.—PENTON v. SOUTHERN RY., [1931] 2 K. 851a. —.]—Pltf., who was a passenger with a ticket from Paris to London via Dover, & thence by the railway of deft. railway co., took an additional ticket from the second defts., the Pullman Car Co., for a Pullman car forming part of the train between Dover & London. The Pullman car ticket stated that the Pullman Car Co. accepted no liability for passengers' luggage, & that co. did all that was reasonably necessary to bring this condition to pltf.'s notice. At Dover pltf. took a seat in the Pullman car, but an official refused to allow her to take her suit-case with her & directed a porter to put it in the luggage vestibule at the end of the car. There was no evidence in whose employment the official was, or as to the exact relationship between the two deft. cos. On the arrival of the train in London the luggage was unloaded by the Pullman car officials, but pltf.'s suit-case could not be found. In an action against both cos.:—Held: as a railway co. contracted as insurers of passengers' luggage except where the loss was caused by the passenger's own default, the railway co. were liable, but as there was no evidence that lack of care, if any, by the Pullman Car Co.'s officials in unloading had contributed to the loss, the Pullman Car Co. were not liable.—EHINGER v. SOUTH-EASTERN & CHATHAM RY. Their luggage included two dressing cases which they directed a porter to put in a carriage in which they had reserved seats. The porter carried out these instructions & placed pltf.'s dressing case on the rack of a corridor carriage which was about the middle of the train. As the porter left, pltf. lifted down her case & placed it on the seat. Having removed a book therefrom, the two ladies left the carriage, without closing the door, & proceeded to a bookstall on the platform about the end of the train. Upon their return seven minutes later pltf.'s dressing case had disappeared:—Held: the onus of proving that the loss was due to negligence on the part of the passenger lay upon the co. Pltf., by leaving her dressing case unprotected in a carriage with the door open, was not guilty of such negligence as would exonerate the co., who were, accordingly, liable for the loss.—CARR v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. Failing to find them, she went to telephone to them, leaving the luggage in charge of the porter along with her two young children. In her absence the porter left the luggage unattended, & a thief having got rid of the children by a device, stole the lighter articles. In an action by the passenger against the railway co.:—Held: the co. was liable, in respect that its liability as carrier of passengers' luggage lasted until the passenger, using due diligence, had been afforded a reasonable opportunity of taking delivery of the luggage; & here it was not proved that the passenger had failed to exercise due diligence.—PARKER v. L. PART X.

For cases decided by the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, see, generally, RAILWAYS, Vol. XXXVIII., pp. 254–256, 375–378.

1921 Act, s. 16 (1), the ct. must be satisfied that in refusing such facilities & conveniences the railway co. are acting without due regard to the proper discharge of their obligations, & the facility or convenience asked for will not be ordered where it is only for the benefit of a special class of persons who form a small proportion of the travelling public. Where it is sought to restore a former convenience & conditions have changed, there is nothing in the fact that it was afforded before, & the question will be decided on its merits.

Therefore where an application was made for an order for the re-opening of a subsidiary side entrance to the station of the Midland Ry. Co. at N. which had been closed in pursuance of a general policy of " closed " stations adopted by the co., & it was shown that only 16 per cent. of the passengers using the station, who were mainly season & weekly ticket holders, would be likely to use such entrance, & that no general public inconvenience existed, the ct. refused to make any order.—NOTTINGHAM CORPN. v. MIDLAND RY. A through rate was ultimately fixed at a sum of 2*d.* per ton in excess of the original charge, in order to allow one of the cos. to make a rebate of that amount in accordance with its practice with respect to other coal traffic. The new rate having been withdrawn, an application was made for a through rate equal to the original charge:—Held: (1) the question of rebate had been rightly excluded in fixing the amount of the through rate; (2) the Railway Comrs. had power to apportion the rate in such a way that part of it would be finally handed over to the trader. —GLENAVON GARW COLLIERIES, LTD. v. RHONDDA & SWANSEA BAY RY. 1166a. —— Wharfage.]—By its Act a canal co. was precluded from charging for wharfage in respect of private wharves constructed under provisions of the Act, which empowered adjoining owners to construct wharves on the banks of the canal. An oil co. acquired from the canal co. land adjoining the canal bank, under three conveyances, by one of which they were obliged, & by another empowered, to construct a wharf on a line beyond their boundary, so that the front part of the wharf should extend beyond the canal bank over the canal. On a wharf so erected the oil co. fixed a pipe & discharged oil in bulk from vessels lying in the canal. Competitors of the oil co. owning land that was near to but did not adjoin the canal obtained from the canal co. easements to erect valve houses on the canal bank, & discharged their oil in the same way. The canal co.'s sched. of charges contained two classes of oil. As to the one it was stated that the rate was inclusive of a charge for wharfage, as to the other, that the rate was for tolls only but that the use of the canal co.'s wharves was free. The oil co. & their competitors were charged the same rates, which were less than the maximum tolls for the use of the canal :—Held : the oil co.'s wharf was not a private wharf, to which the wharfage rate was inapplicable, firstly because it was constructed, not under the powers conferred by the Act on adjoining landowners, but under the obligations imposed as part of the consideration for which the land was acquired; secondly, because the wharf, extending over the canal, was not wholly constructed on the land of the adjoining owner; therefore, the oil co. was not unduly prejudiced by being charged the same rates as their competitors who did not own land adjoining the canal. The Commission found as a fact that the canal co. did not, in certain cases, charge for wharfage, though they charged an inclusive rate which covered the use of their wharves.—Anglo-American Oil Co. v. Manchester Ship Canal (1929), 20 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 45.

1166b. Rebate on sidings rate.]—Upon a complaint of undue preference it was admitted that appcts., whose works at S. were connected by a private siding with defts.' railway, paid the same rates as if their traffic used that station, while two of their competitors, whose respective works at B., ten miles from S., were also connected by private sidings with defts.' railway, received a rebate of 2½*d.* per ton off the B. station rates on traffic similar to that of appcts. Appcts. called no evidence. The railway co., while submitting that the onus of proof had not shifted on them under 1888 Act, s. 27 (1), called evidence & put in tables based on the Pidcock principle with the object of showing that the value of the private siding services rendered to appcts. at S. was in excess of the amounts included in their rates for station terminals at that station & also of the value of the respective private siding services rendered to appcts.' competitors at B. after allowing for the rebate :—Held : without deciding whether the onus had shifted to the railway co., but inclining to the view that it had, the Pidcock principle had been properly applied in the dissection of the respective rates, & there was no preference of appcts.' competitors.—Prentice Brothers, Ltd. v. London & North Eastern Ry. Co. (1925), 18 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 177.

1219a. —— Injunction—Rate quoted but not actually made.]—Appcts. were owners of a bonded warehouse situated in Trafford Park, Manchester, in close proximity to, but not on, the premises of the Manchester Ship Canal Co. The latter co. also owned a similar warehouse within their dock area at Manchester. A large consignment of cigarettes was conveyed over the Ship Canal to appcts.' warehouse, & was thence consigned to London over the railways of resp. cos., who charged a rate of 107*s.* per ton in two-ton lots, this being the ordinary Manchester town rate, whereas for similar traffic consigned from the warehouse of the Ship Canal Co. they quoted a rate of 54*s.* 6*d.*, the latter being the Liverpool to London rate, which was governed by competitive shipping rates. Upon a complaint that the Manchester Ship Canal Co. were being unduly preferred the above difference in rates was sought to be justified by the railway cos. on the ground that, the ports of Manchester & Liverpool being in

SECT. 6.—EXCEPTIONAL RATES AND FARES

(Vol. VIII., p. 207).

1323a. Under 1921 Act—Meaning of " standard " & " exceptional."]—The expression " standard " as applied to charges in Part III. of the above Act is the correlative or complementary term to " exceptional," &, there being therefore no other alternative, every chargeable rate, fare, or charge for conveyance must necessarily be included in one or other of the above categories. Railway cos. are therefore required, under sect. 30 of the above Act, to submit to the Rates Tribunal forms of schedules for standard season tickets & workmen's fares.—Re STANDARD CHARGES SCHEDULES (1923), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 147.

1323b. New exceptional rates—Grounds for granting.]—The fact that equal rates were formerly charged from two competing points to a common market unequally distant from them, whereas the corresponding standard charges are unequal, is not a ground on which the Railway Rates Tribunal will grant a new exceptional rate so as to restore the equality. —DOWLOW LIME & STONE Co., LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. Co. (1928), 20 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 41.

1323c. Disintegration—On continuation.]—Where an exceptional rate is referred to the Rates Tribunal for its determination under 1921 Act, s. 36, then, if the Tribunal decides to continue the rate, its duty is to disintegrate it in the manner provided for in sect. 40 of the Act, & the performance of this duty may at its discretion be postponed until some party interested in the rate applies for the disintegration.—DISINTEGRATION OF CONTINUED EXCEPTIONAL RATES (1928), 20 Ry. & Can. 1323d. —— Time for.]—A railway co. applied to the Rates Tribunal to sanction a rate, more than 40 per cent. below the standard rate, between a seaport town & the Midlands. Another seaport town competing in the same traffic, having been admitted to oppose the said rate, sought to administer interrogatories to the railway co. as to the disintegration of the existing rates between the two ports respectively & the Midlands & of the new proposed rate, with a view to showing the effect that the new rate would have on the competition, & the prejudice that would be caused to the opponents of the rate :—Held : by the Rates Tribunal, such rates are to be disintegrated by the Rates Tribunal, under 1921 Act, s. 40, at the time when they are sanctioned; it is proper for the railway co. to present the rate for sanction without any proposed disintegration, & there is no procedure for obtaining a preliminary disintegration of such a rate.—BRISTOL CORPN. v. GREAT WESTERN RY. CO. (1928), 20 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 28.

SECT. 7.—OWNER'S RISK RATES (Vol. VIII., p. 207).

1323e. Conveyance of goods by passenger train at owner's risk — Application for reduction of rate—Difference in risk negligible—Whether ground for two scales.]—Appcts. were consignors of gramophone records in the form of flat discs by passenger train. Resps. conveyed these discs at full parcels scale, but under owner's risk conditions. Appcts. claimed that since the discs were conveyed at owner's risk, a reduction should be made from the full parcels scale. It was admitted that when packed by the manufacturers the risk of breakage in transit was negligible. Resps. contended that in the case of goods carried by passenger train the difference between the owner's risk rate & the co.'s risk rate was not intended as a measure of the difference of risk :—Held : the difference in the risk to the railway cos. under the two sets of conditions being negligible, on the analogy of 1921 Act, s. 46 (3), there was no ground for directing that there should be two scales, but the discs, when properly packed, should be carried at co.'s risk, &, when not properly packed, at owner's risk. " Properly packed " means packed according to reasonable regulations made by the railway cos., the question of reasonableness to be settled by the Tribunal in case of difference.—BRITISH MUSIC INDUSTRIES FEDERATION v. CALEDONIAN RY. CO. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 121.

1323f. Grounds for ordering.]—Revised scales of rates based on the " zone " principle for the carriage of parcels by passenger train at co.'s risk & owner's risk respectively were put into force by resp. cos in Nov. 1918, & were subsequently twice increased in 1920 by uniform percentage additions in accordance with directions of the Minister of Transport. In May, 1923, new & reduced scales for the above traffic were introduced, whereby the above increases of 1920 were reduced in unequal proportions in order to remove what resp. cos. considered to be anomalies between the co.'s risk & owner's risk scales, with the result that the reductions made in the charges under the owner's risk scale were considerably less than those made in the charges under the co.'s risk scale. Upon an application under 1921 Act, s. 60, to reduce the rates for parcels containing sausages, etc., consigned by passenger train at owner's risk : —Held : looking to the circumstances in which the above percentage increases had been recommended & imposed & subsequently continued by 1921 Act, s. 60, the railway cos. were not entrusted with them for any purpose connected with the adjustment of relationships between scales of charge but for the purpose of meeting increased expenses, & in the absence of special circumstances the proper practice was to give equal reduction to all; taking the above owner's risk scale of Nov. 1918, & not that of 1914, as sought by appcts., as a basis of calculation, the owner's risk rates by passenger train on appcts.' above traffic should not exceed those in force in Sept. 1920, as reduced, by 25 per cent.—SAUSAGE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCN. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO., LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. CO., GREAT WESTERN RY. CO., SOUTHERN RY. CO., & CHESHIRE LINES COMMITTEE (1924), 18 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 59.

1326a. Charges imposed by Ministry of Transport.]—Appcts. claimed reductions in the charges made by resps. for the detention of ordinary wagons & sheets, which were in the case of wagons 3*s.* per day for the first two days after the expiration of the free periods allowed for loading & unloading & thereafter 5*s.* per day, & in the case of sheets 6*d.* & 1*s.* for the like periods. These charges had been imposed on & after Jan. 1, 1920, by an order of the Minister of Transport, made in accordance with a recommendation of the Rates Advisory Committee, with the object of diminishing wagon detention & causing traders to exercise more diligence in loading & unloading them. The charges in force in 1913 had been 1*s.* 6*d.* per day for wagons & 3*d.* per day for sheets after the free periods then given. Appcts. also claimed that in reckoning the above periods Saturday should be treated as half a day. Resps. contended that the charges complained of were reasonable, & also that it was not open to the ct. to reverse the policy of the Minister of Transport in making a differentiation between the first two days following the free periods & subsequent days :—Held : (1) the ct. had jurisdiction to modify the charges complained of; (2) having regard to the value of wagons & sheets as compared with 1913, the loss of profit to the railway cos. arising from detention, the standing & overall charges & the extra expenses of shunting & occupation of siding involved, the charges of 3*s.* per day for wagons & 6*d.* per day for sheets, while on the high side, were not unreasonable, but the additional charges of 2*s.* & 6*d.* per day upon wagons & sheets respectively after the expiration of the first two days beyond the free periods were no longer justified, & should be discontinued, & the existing arrangements with regard to 1331a. —— Congestion caused by increased traffic —Insufficiency of unloading sidings.]—Pltf. co. had on their railway system at P. a small junction station, where there was a siding with sufficient accommodation for unloading the normal goods traffic consigned to that station. Defts. were contractors who were interested in one of three local building schemes which were started about the same time, involving a large increase in the goods traffic consigned to P. Owing to the congestion brought about in P. station by this increased traffic, & the fact that the unloading siding could only accommodate a limited number of wagons at a time, a number of the wagons arriving with goods at P. on defts.' account had to be put into storage sidings, to await their turn to be taken into the proper siding to be unloaded. Great delay in the discharge of wagons was caused thereby, but all the delay occurred at the storage sidings before the wagons were put into the unloading siding. Pltf. co. claimed from defts. exceptional charges for the detention of wagons in the storage sidings, under an implied contract or for accommodation or services provided or rendered by pltfs. to defts. within the scope of pltfs.' undertaking by the desire of defts. :—Held : as, on the facts of the case, the wagons were not put into the storage sidings at the desire of defts. they were not liable to pay the exceptional charges claimed.—GREAT WESTERN RY. 1337b. Terminal charges not in fact made.]—Appcts. carried on business as timber merchants at a private siding about half a mile from resps.' station at R. They made no use of the station for their traffic. On an application to reduce the rates on appcts.' traffic on the grounds (1) that they were excessive, inasmuch as they were the same as those charged for similar traffic which made use of the station at R., & (2) that the rates in fact included charges for the use of the station, & resps. were not entitled to make any charge over & above the charge for conveyance :—Held : (1) the conveyance of appcts.' traffic started from or ended at a siding in the R. station, & resps. were entitled to charge for any services prior or subsequent to such conveyance, & such services were in fact rendered & the charges were not excessive.

(2) The ct. will not infer that station terminals are being paid simply because a siding rate & a station rate are the same in amount. It is only open to the ct. to do so when comparable traffics are passing from the station & the siding under such rates.—DIXON (T. & M.) LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. CO. SECT. 12.—REDUCTION OF RATES
(Vol. VIII., p. 217).

1377a. Who may apply for—Trader "interested" —Warehouseman & forwarding agent.]—Appcts., who were warehousemen & forwarding agents at Trafford Park, Manchester, & who had unsuccessfully applied to the Railway Comrs. in respect of an alleged undue preference founded on the same facts, applied for a reduction in a rate of 106*s.* 7*d.*, formerly 107*s.*, charged upon cigarettes consigned in two-ton lots from their Trafford Park warehouse, which was near to, but outside, the Manchester Docks, to King's Cross, London, upon the ground that the corresponding rate from Liverpool was 54*s.* 6*d.*, provisionally reduced to 50*s.* The lower rate was also charged on similar traffic consigned from Manchester Docks, while the higher rate was the ordinary Manchester town rate. Appcts. contended that where traffic as to which the conditions were in all respects alike is sent from two places A. & B. in the same district to the same destination, the same railway co. shall not charge a higher sum from A. than from B., unless the distance of the destination in the case of A. is greater than the distance in the case of B., provided that the rate in the case of A. is a productive rate. They admitted that conditions could not be treated as in all respects alike, if in the one case there was competition which did not exist in the other. Resps. objected that appcts. were not interested traders within 1921 Act, s. 60, & that the rate complained of, which was the ordinary Manchester town rate, was reasonable:—Held: (1) while something in the nature of a direct interest must be shown, the interest of appcts. in the above charges was sufficiently direct to entitle them to prosecute these proceedings; (2) in deciding what was a reasonable rate to be charged to appcts., regard should be had to the following considerations: (a) that it was not enough for a trader to show that without a reduction in rate he could not carry on a particular branch of his business; (b) that when railway cos. declared that in their own interests they could not grant facilities or reductions in rates, it would not be right for that ct. to compel them to adopt such a course of business unless appcts. showed that the railway cos. were mistaken; (c) that it was not intended by 1921 Act to establish the principle of equal mileage rates for all places & the consequent adoption of exceptional rates based on competition by water or road as the standard for all rates whether such competition existed in other places or not, & therefore that the existence of a low exceptional rate, not being in fact an undue preference, while a fact to be considered, was not alone a sufficient ground for ordering the reduction of a rate for goods in competition with those having the benefit of the low rate; (3) applying the above principles & taking all the circumstances into account, appcts. should be allowed a rate of 72*s.* 6*d.* subject to any general revision of rates.—PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. CHESHIRE LINES COMMITTEE, GREAT CENTRAL RY. CO., & GREAT NORTHERN RY. CO. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 95.

1377b. Grounds for ordering—Necessity for primâ facie case.]—Confectionery in bottles & jars was carried by the railway cos. originally at co.'s risk, & subsequently under certain agreed packing conditions. In 1920 the cos., without making any reduction in rates, refused to carry confectionery packed as above except at owner's risk, owing to the heavy proportion of claims against them for damage. They continued to carry confectionery not contained in bottles & jars at co.'s risk. Upon an application for a reduction in the rates for confectionery when contained in bottles & jars:—Held: (1) an appct. for a reduction in rates must make a primâ facie case for the same; (2) such a case had been made upon the above facts; (3) the cos. were not precluded from making special conditions by reason of the fact that they for some time had carried the above goods without conditions; (4) while certain losses in respect of confectionery not contained in bottles & carried at co.'s risk were borne by the cos., which losses did not arise in the case of confectionery in bottles carried at owner's risk, the saving to the cos., e.g. 4 or 5 per cent., was not sufficient to justify a reduction in rate.—MANUFACTURING CONFECTIONERS' ALLIANCE, INCORPORATED v. CALEDONIAN RY. 1377d. —— Experimental rate.]—Upon an application for an experimental reduced rate of 40*s.* per ton for flax straw in full train loads for a transit of approximately 200 miles, resp. railway cos. offered for a period of five months a rate of 45*s.*, plus siding haulage charge. The ordinary class rate was 88*s.* 2*d.*, less 12½ per cent. Similar traffic was being carried to the same destination from places forty or fifty miles away at approximately the same rate as that offered:—Held: the rate should be 45*s.* Qu.: whether the Tribunal ought to take into account the possibility that an experimental rate will result in bringing a large future traffic.—MARSH v. GREAT EASTERN & GREAT WESTERN RY. COS. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 129.

1377e. —— Removal of flat-rate additions imposed by Minister of Transport.]—Upon applications to remove certain flat-rate additions to the rates on appcts.' traffic which had been imposed by the Minister of Transport in exercise of his powers under Ministry of Transport Act, 1919 (c. 50), s. 3 (1) (c):—Held: (1) the ct. would not assume that the Minister was wrong in imposing such flat-rate additions; (2) it was not competent to the ct. to remove such flat-rate additions on the ground that the reasons given in support of their imposition by the former Rates Advisory Committee were not applicable to appcts.' traffic; (3) the rates on appcts.' traffic were not excessive, notwithstanding that the percentage increase resulting from such flat-rate additions was greater on traffic carried at low mileage rates than on that carried at higher mileage rates, & that larger reductions in rates had been given to blast furnace than to appcts.', i.e., coal, traffic.

(4) A rate is not necessarily excessive because a railway co. are not handing back on balance to the traders all the savings that they are making in reduced expenses.—MONMOUTHSHIRE & SOUTH WALES COAL OWNER'S ASSOCN. v. GREAT WESTERN RY. 1377f. —— Reductions granted to other interests.]—Upon an application for the removal of a flat-rate increase of 2*d.* per ton, being part of a larger increase which originally had been imposed on appcts.' traffic in coal, coke & patent fuel in accordance with a second general revision of rates directed by the Minister of Transport which had since been voluntarily reduced by resps., the following grounds were relied upon by appcts. in support of their case: (1) that a greater proportionate reduction in rates had been given to the traffic of certain admittedly necessitous industries than to their traffic; (2) that their traffic, & in particular their short distance traffic, had increased in density since the above increase in rates, thereby producing an exceptional profit for resps.; & (3) that they apprehended in the future an intensive foreign competition which a reduction in railway rates would assist them to meet:—Held: (1) the reductions in rates granted by resps. to the traffic of other industries were justified & did not establish a case of hardship or injustice to appcts.; (2) while it was doubtful as to how far the increase in coal traffic had resulted in increased profit to resp. cos., the period of prosperity in appcts.' trade which was mainly due to the abnormal European political situation was passing away; (3) in an application for a reduction of a rate under 1921 Act, s. 60, the onus lay upon an appct. to show the existence of some element of unfairness or of hardship amounting to unfairness, & appcts. had not discharged that onus by alleging that a reduction in rates would assist.—MINING ASSOCN. 1377g. —— Abolition of free storage facilities.]—Appcts., the owners of a warehouse at Trafford Park, Manchester, claimed that a rate of 10*s.* 11*d.* per ton for sugar from Liverpool to their private siding at Trafford Park, being the same amount as the corresponding rate from Liverpool to resp. co.'s Oldham Road station at Manchester, should be reduced by an amount equal to the cost incurred by resps. in providing terminal accommodation & services, including twenty-eight days' free warehousing, at their Manchester station. No sugar had been consigned by rail to appcts.' warehouse, nor was there any evidence that any trader desired to consign sugar to it. Prior to the war resps. had given fourteen days' free storage at Manchester for sugar in view of similar free accommodation provided by competing water-carriers from Liverpool to Manchester. This facility having been withdrawn by resps., they had lost as a result a large part of their sugar traffic from Liverpool to Manchester, &, therefore, as from Nov. 1923, had restored the above free storage for an extended period of twenty-eight days:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction to abolish the facility of free storage, there was no evidence that the 10*s.* 11*d.* rate to Trafford Park was unreasonable or excessive, & there was no presumption that the rate when compared with the corresponding rate to Oldham Road station was unreasonable, because the latter included free storage at that station.—PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. Where, on Aug. 15, 1921, there was a rate for sugar & a lower rate for sugar in four-ton lots, & the railway cos. subsequently conceded a still lower rate for sugar in five-ton lots:—Held: the five-ton rate was not a new rate, & on Aug. 15, 1921, there was a rate in force for sugar in five-ton lots, namely the rate for sugar in four-ton lots.—TATE & LYLE, LTD. v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. 34a. Distributing coal & making loans to poor & deserving inhabitants.]—Testator, a native of F., a small village, bequeathed his residuary estate to trustees upon trust to set aside £800 as a "Coal Fund," the income whereof was to be used for the purchase of coal to be distributed among such poor & deserving inhabitants of F. as a committee should think fit, & to hold the rest of his residuary estate as a "Loans Fund" & to apply the capital & income thereof, under the direction of the committee, "in making loans to poor & deserving inhabitants of the parish of F. in manner hereinafter provided." No loan was to exceed £100, repayable within nine years at longest. No interest was to be charged & no borrower to have more than one loan. Only one-sixth part of the fund was to be lent in any one year, & the borrowers were to be inhabitants or residents of F. not above the age of thirty-five years. Testator directed that "all surplus money forming part of or arising from the 'Loans Fund' over & above £500 & not required for loans shall be invested by the trustees under the direction of the committee, but all investments purchased shall be from time to time sold for the purpose of advancing the produce thereof in loans if & when required" :—Held : (1) the will displayed a general charitable intention & contained an immediate & effective gift of the whole of the residue to charity, displacing the claim of the next of kin ; (2) the question of accumulation beyond the period allowed by law did not arise, the possibility of a surplus hereafter not impairing the validity of the immediate gift to charity ; (3) the doctrine of cy-près could be at once applied, if necessary, to any surplus income after the period allowed by law for accumulation had expired.—Re MONK, GIFFEN v. WEDD, [1927] 2 Ch. 197 ; 96 L. 47a. Nursing home—Persons of moderate means—Gift charitable.]—Testator made the following gift in his will: "I give & bequeath all the residue & remainder of my estate not otherwise disposed of by this my will to: (a) such institution, society or nursing home, or nursing homes, or similar institutions as assist or provide for persons of moderate means such as clerks, governesses & others who may not be able or eligible to benefit under the National Health Insurance Act, Old Age Pensions, or other Act of a like character to have either surgical operations performed together with medical treatment or medical treatment alone on payment of some moderate contribution; (b) the Royal National Lifeboat Institution; (c) the Lister Institute of Preventive Medicine; (d) & such other funds, charities & institutions as my exors. in their absolute discretion shall think fit; & I direct that such residue shall be divided amongst the legatees named in the paragraphs (a), (b), (c), & (d) lastly hereinbefore contained in such shares & proportions as my trustees shall determine." It was admitted that the objects under (b) & (c) were charitable. On the question whether the residue was validly disposed of by the will or failed in whole or in part for uncertainty:—Held: (1) the objects included under paragraph (a) were charitable since the means of the recipients would necessitate their being unable without the bounty of testator to procure the treatment of which they might stand in need; (2) the objects specified under heading (d) being for such indefinite charitable & non-charitable objects as the exors. should think fit were not exclusively charitable, & therefore though a trust for charitable & non-charitable indefinite purposes indiscriminately failed by reason of uncertainty, this trust being of a part of a fund for charitable purposes & another part for non-charitable indefinite purposes the ct. could ascertain what the parts were.—Re CLARKE, BRACEY v. ROYAL NATIONAL LIFEBOAT INSTITUTION, [1923] 2 Ch. 407; 92 L. The Sisters of the Community were engaged on charitable work & their individual incomes were pooled. It was doubtful whether it was practicable to carry on the Home of Rest with the resources available:—Held: (1) the devise & bequest were a good charitable trust; (2) the Sisters & the Clergy were good objects of a charity; (3) the Mother Superior should only appoint persons who were suitable objects of a charity, & to do otherwise would be a breach of trust; (4) there should be an inquiry in Chambers whether it would be practicable now or at any future time to establish the Home of Rest, & if so to settle a scheme; (5) & if it was found not practicable the question must be determined whether the trust failed or should be applied cy-près.—Re JAMES, GRENFELL v. HAMILTON, [1932] 2 Ch. 25; 101 L. the residue of his estate, about £13,000, should be paid to certain persons to be held by them upon certain trusts as follows: "Whereas I believe in the universality of the Christian religion & that the remedy for the unrest & disorders of the body politic will be found in the application of Christian principles to all human relationships. & whereas I believe the drink traffic to be one of the most subtle & effective forces in preventing the successful application of these principles & I therefore hope & trust that active steps will be taken to minimise & ultimately extinguish this enemy of my country's welfare. Now therefore I declare it to be my wish that my general beneficiaries shall hold the whole of my residuary trust estate together with the income thereof in spreading the Christian principles before mentioned & in aiding all active steps to minimise & extinguish the drink traffic." The public trustee issued a summons to have it determined whether that gift in the will constituted a valid charitable trust or whether the gift so far as given for the minimising of the drink traffic was not charitable & therefore the whole gift was invalid & the next of kin became entitled. The judge held that the gift was a good charitable gift. On appeal by the next of kin:—Held: the first recital in the gift was the dominant clause showing that the main object was the advancement of Christian principles with a suggestion as to a particular method by which the advancement could be furthered & that method was subsidiary & ancillary, therefore the whole gift was a good charitable gift, being one for the advancement of Christian principles.

70a. Zoology—Zoological Society of London—Valid.]—The objects of the Zoological Society of London as defined by its Charter are "the advancement of zoology & animal physiology & the introduction of new & curious subjects of the animal kingdom":—Held: the first object was clearly educational & the second object, being on construction merely in aid of the first, was also educational &, semble, it was educational in itself. The Society was therefore an educational charity, although in carrying out its objects it was found necessary to provide its pupils with food & amusement. The second object necessitated & involved the upkeep & improvement of Zoological Gardens. Consequently a bequest of money to the Society upon trust to apply the income for "the upkeep & improvement of the Zoological Gardens, & for the objects of the said Society," was a good charitable gift & not void for perpetuity.—Re LOPES, BENCE-JONES v. ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF LONDON, [1931] 2 Ch. 130; 100 L. 73a. —— Trust to erect national theatre—& revive English classical drama—Valid.]—(1) The Shakespeare Memorial Trust was established to erect & endow a Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre, with the object of performing Shakespeare's plays, reviving English classical drama, & stimulating the art of acting:—Held: the trust was a good charitable trust, on the ground either that the objects were for the advancement of education or that they came within the class of purposes beneficial to the community other than by way of the relief of poverty or the advancement of education or religion referred to by LORD MACNAGHTEN in Income Tax Special Purposes Comrs. v. Pemsel, [1891] A. (2) At the time when a donation of £70,000 was made to the charity, part of which was applied by the charity in the purchase of a site for the theatre, no annual subscription had been received, but within only nine days of that time the first annual subscription was received. On the subsequent sale of the site, the question arose whether, in those circumstances, the consent of the Charity Comrs. was required to the sale by the charity:—Held: notwithstanding that in the inception of its formation it was contemplated that the charity should be supported by annual subscriptions as well as by income from endowment, & notwithstanding that there was an interval of nine days only between the donation & the first of the annual subscriptions, the charity was not at the time when the donation was received a mixed charity within 1853 Act, s. 62; & as it was, therefore, not exempted from the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs., their consent to the sale by the charity was required.—Re SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL TRUST, LYTTON (EARL) v. A.-G., [1923] 2 Ch. 389; 92 L. 75a. ——.]—Testator by his will, wherein he described himself as a Clerk in Holy Orders, gave all his property to the Public Trustee upon trust for investment. He then directed that the income should be paid to the Bishops of the dioceses of St. D. & B., the rector of L. & the vicars of two other parishes & their successors, together with a layman appointed by the conference of each of those dioceses, whom he nominated administrative trustees. After stating that his wife left her interest in certain property to him to be used as he wished, but for preference for Church purposes, testator, in expressed accordance with her wish, by clause 3, devised all he should die possessed of as a fund for assisting the education of candidates for Holy Orders in the Church of England, to be administered by the trustees. Clause 12 contained the following proviso: "If for any sufficient reason, whether disendowment may or may not have taken place, the trustees decide that the interests of the Church could be better served by any changes in the method of administering, or even in the object to which the fund is applied under my will, such change or changes may be made with the several consents expressed by a majority of the Diocesan Conferences of B. & St. D." :—Held: the objects to which the trustees were, by clause 12, empowered to change the application of the fund were not other than charitable objects & were religious objects in the interests of the Church as an organisation existing for the instruction & edification of the public, & the gift in clause 3 was a valid charitable gift.—Re WILLIAMS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. WILLIAMS, [1927] 2 Ch. 283; 96 L. 79a. Benefit of Roman Catholic Church—Open to public—Valid.]—(1) A bequest for the benefit of a church belonging to a monastic order of the Roman Catholic Church but open to the public was not rendered invalid by Roman Catholic Relief Act, 1829 (c. 7).

Testatrix by her will dated Sept. 7, 1903, gave the residue of all her property, after the death of G., to whom she had given a life interest, in the following terms: "To the Superior of the Jesuit Church of the Immaculate Conception, Farm Street, London, to the Superior of that Church at the moment of the legacy falling due, & failing him to any other representative Father of the Order of the Society of Jesus . . ." :—Held: the gift was to this Superior upon trust for the benefit of the church at Farm Street as he might in his discretion think fit; & this was a valid gift.

(2) Testatrix died in 1910, & G. died in 1928. The Superior of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Farm Street, London, was not the same person at the death of testatrix as at the death of G.:—Held: the gift was a valid gift to the Superior at the moment of G.'s death absolutely.—Re BARCLAY, GARDNER v. BARCLAY, STEUART v. BARCLAY, [1929] 2 Ch. 173; 98 L. Roman Catholic Church to be invested by them; the principal to remain invested for all time in the names of the successive parish priests & curates of C., the interest thereof to be applied in saying masses for the repose of testator's soul. After bequeathing a pecuniary legacy, testator gave the rest, residue & remainder of his property to the Abbot of M., & the Franciscan Friars in C. in equal shares for the purposes of having masses said for the repose of his soul in M. & C. At the dates of the execution of the will & of the death of testator the same person was Abbot of M. & the same three Franciscan Friars were resident in C.:—Held: (1) the legacy of £200 was void as a charge upon lands under Charitable Donations & Bequests Act, 7 & 8 Vict. c. 97; (2) in reference to the gift of residue so far as it consisted of pure personalty, there was a gift of one-half to the person who filled the office of Abbot of M. at the date of testator's death in his individual capacity for the offering up of masses & same was valid; there was a gift of the other half for the offering of masses to a specified body, because they were members of the Order of Franciscan Friars bound by monastic vows, which was void as contrary to the policy of Catholic Relief Act, 10 Geo. 4, c. 7.—BURKE v. POWER, [1906] 1 I. By a preceding clause, clause 13, testator had made a disposition of certain moneys, in certain events, in the following terms: "Upon trust for any scheme to be approved by my trustees of a national character excluding hospitals & works of an educational character. Without binding my trustees I would prefer a scheme which would give open-air recreation to as large a number of people as possible." Testator died on Feb. 14, 1931, leaving ultimate residue of the value of about £35,000:—Held: (1) upon the true construction of the will, the dominant object of testator was the health & welfare of the working classes, & the benefits authorised by clause 14 were the supply of healthy recreation, mainly in the open air & in particular by providing playing fields, parks and gymnasiums; & (2) through legislative recognition indicated by Mortmain & Charitable Uses Act, 1888 (c. 42), s. 6, of the dedication of land to the public for recreation as a charitable object, the provision of means for public recreation was a charitable object within "the meaning, purview & interpretation" of the preamble to the 43 Eliz. c. 4. In May, 1888, the Diocese of Wakefield was newly formed, & H. was enthroned on June 25, 1888, as first bishop of that diocese. The income of the fund so deposited was not drawn upon, & the fund with £900 accumulated interest was found intact by the exors. of the archdeacon, who was the survivor of the three persons in whose names the money had been deposited. The fund was not contributed to by those in whose names it was deposited :—Held : in such circumstances the exors. of the archdeacon who was the survivor were not beneficially entitled to the fund, but the fund was one subject to charitable trusts.—PEASE v. HOW (1922), 91 L. 740b. " Patriotic purposes or charitable institutions or objects "—At discretion of trustees—Void.] —(1) Testator by his will directed his trustees to apply one-fifth of his residuary estate " for such patriotic purposes or objects & such charitable institution or institutions or charitable object or objects in the British Empire " as they in their absolute discretion should select :—Held : the words of the gift must be read disjunctively, " patriotic purposes " were not necessarily charitable, & the gift was void for uncertainty.

(2) The general rule is clear that if you are making a will you must declare your wishes, & not leave it in wide & uncertain terms to some one else to make a will for you. Special treatment is meted out to a gift for charitable purposes, & in that case the cts. have recognised that it is open to a testator who declares a charitable purpose to leave it to his trustees to select the particular charities for whose benefit his fund is to be applied. But that does not apply to cases not coming within the description of charity (VISCOUNT CAVE, C.).—A.-G. v. NATIONAL PROVINCIAL & UNION BANK OF ENGLAND, [1924] A. C. 262 ; 40 T. L. R. 191 ; 68 Sol.
